It contains some useful proposals: The immediate removal from the tax rolls of all those earning less than the poverty levels set by the Economic Council of Canada; exemptions of the family home from the capital gains tax and the taxation of gains only when realized. It contains as well some proposals which are so charmingly vague as to be meaningless: "Reasonable rates of tax for small business or unspecified action to close tax loopholes."

But the weakness of Mr. Stanfield's proposal does not lie in its specific absurdities. It stems from its failure to deal with the tax system as a whole. The Conservative leader plans to stump the country to demand that the government's tax proposals be totally scrapped. If he seriously expects people to swallow that proposal, then he is bound to produce a comprehensive alternative. But this he has totally failed to do.

While admitting that he does not know how much it will cost to remove those below the poverty line from the tax rolls, he provided no estimate of what tax rates he would impose to replace revenue lost through his proposal to limit capital gains tax rates to a maximum of 25 per cent. He gave in fact no indication at all of how much money his tax proposals were supposed to raise.

The slipshod preparation of the Conservative plan left the people without the information they must have if they are to make a rational choice of alternative proposals. It indicates a degree of irresponsibility which is surprising in a man of Mr. Stanfield's well-known rectitude.

Letter to The Hamilton Spectator

As an American citizen who has recently emigrated to Canada with intentions to remain and become a Canadian citizen, I find myself at least partially disappointed and dismayed at the recent reaction to Mr. Edgar Benson's White Paper in Toronto.

The clamor seems to be directed solely at the rise in taxes and not at what they are for.

The opposition to the White Paper claims that it will reduce the incentives of small businessmen, foreign (i.e. U.S.) investors, and the retired for living in Canada, the result being that they will migrate to the U.S. where the tax incentives will be greater.

Are tax incentives the only characteristic of a healthy, dynamic, yet peaceful society? What kind of a society, in the long run, do Canadians desire to build? One with the enormous ghettoes, the lonely alienation, and the violent foundation that the U.S. now has to contend with? I believe that if Canada wants to keep its generally superior school systems, if it wants to build equally and justly as a co-operative society, if it wants to avoid the ramifications of a dyng nation like the U.S., then it will have to look at long range goals rather than making the quick buck.

Man of the Year

A Collective Pat on the Back!

Brantford Expositor

Is the decision of the Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce to name all 33,000 residents of the city as Citizen of the Year a judgment worthy of Solomon or a chickenly evasion of responsibility?

Perhaps the Jaycees felt that so many members of the community deserved consideration for the honor that selection of a single individual would have led to an invidious comparison of qualifications. Or maybe the group genuinely could not find a person in a lean year whose achievement during 1969 so clearly merited recognition that conferring an award on the recipient would not be interpreted as downgrading the status of Citizen of the Year. Not every community is in the same happy circumstances as Brantford in having a nominee so richly deserving of the honor as Larry Pennell, our 1969 Citizen of the Year.

Whatever the reason, it is not often that the whole population of a city from the newest born member to the oldest inhabitant receives a collective pat on the back. Quite obviously each Belleville resident cannot receive tangible recognition of his achievement. To give all 33,000 recipients a plaque or invite them to a banquet would bankrupt the local Jaycees, while to put the bill on the mill rate would evoke a response from the citizenry that would cast doubts on their appreciation at being honored.

Still a community in which everybody, in the words of the citation, has made an "enthusiastic, unselfish" contribution is to be envied.

One Question, Sir

Surrounded by eager questioners assistant deputy minister of university affairs, Alan Gordon, attempts to provide a few answers after a lively discussion of the student loans system, held last night at the Kiwanis Centre. The discussion, sponsored by the Belleville Progressive Conservative Association filled up the Centre with a good crowd of interested parents, students and educators.

Abuse of Loan Plan Hampers Student Aid

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

The familiar barriers between speaker and audience were removed one by one last night as an atmosphere of frank rapport and honest communication got a good foothold at the Kiwanis Centre.

Engineered by the Belleville Progressive Conservative Association, the evening brought together Alan Gordon, assistant deputy minister of university affairs and an eager audience — to discuss the student loans system.

Introduced by Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP for Quinte Riding, the pace for the session was set when the MPP told the gathering that "Mr. Gordon is not here to talk, but to listen and to hear what you have to say about the student loan plan."

"Your problems and suggestions for change are of vital importance to us," Mr. Gordon told his audience.

Before opening the discussion, the assistant deputy minister explained briefly the purpose of the plan, and how it works.

"This program offers supplementary assistance to students who wish to pursue post-secondary education, and do not have the resources to meet the costs".

"One thing we often forget", Mr. Gordon reminded his audience, "is that for many years families did finance the further education of their children."

"Our program is not meant to replace these resources, but to supply these resources where there are none", he added.

Steps that must be taken to be eligible for a student loan include the completion of an application form, in which the student's and the family's resources must be declared.

"What we are looking for are indications that the student attempted to find employment in order to obtain some type of financing. Once we are able to assess what the student's resources are we can discern how much he will need to further his education."

Mr. Gordon told the audience of students, parents and educators that during this past year, approximately $350 million has been supplied to educational institutions which, he said, shows "that the state has a large investment in our students."

The loans system operated on a "loan and grant" method, so that if the student's needs amount to $900, $600 would be a loan and $300 a grant from the province which doesn't have to be paid back.

"This program will cost $30 million in grants and another $30 million in loans for 1969-70 for the more than 40 per cent of 200,000 students receiving assistance this past year," said Mr. Gordon.

Most of the questions directed to the minister indicated that parents and students alike want more detailed information on specific points in the program, particularly concerning how the needs of students are assessed.

"We have stricken the phrase "independent student" from our vocabularly," explained the minister, "because from our point of view there is no such thing. Either they are dependent on their parents or the state."

The minister said the program has more than its share of problems in its attempt to assist students onto higher education.

One of course, is the fact that there is always misuse of any program of assistance.

This, emphasized Mr. Gordon, "only makes it more difficult for other students to receive assistance in the future".

"This is one of the reasons we have had to set up a verication department to make spot checks on all applications," he added.

"Then, too, there is the problem of money. If this program continues to escalate at the rate it has been doing, it will eat up the toal provincial program within five years. Then, I am afraid we will have to look to other sources."

"This program was instituted on the premise that people would only ask for assistance if they needed it — which sadly isn't the case," remarked the minister.

He told his audience that facts have proven this to be untrue, and this is having an adverse affect on changes instituted in the program.

"What happens is that it makes the bureaucrats more bureaucratic, and the whole problem even bigger."

He urged the group to supplement any information by talking to the student awards officer at Loyalist College, or write to the department of university affairs.

"This is a broad program, and we would like to make it as equitable as possible," he concluded.

Picton Author on Bridge Finds Book in Big Demand

PICTON — Former press reporter Ruth K. Dersnah recently wrote 30 to a news scoop exploring one of the games people play.

Her findings, contained in the 31 - page book, Basic Bridge for the Casual, Unsure, Rusty Player, scored an immediate hit in the Quinte area and now will enter its third printing for national distribution.

A native of Ahn Arbor, Mich., where she worked as a press reporter for several years, Mrs. Dersnah settled with her family in Picton four years ago.

A bridge player for 35 years, and for 20 years an instructress in the game, Mrs. Dersnah quickly organized bridge classes here and consequently gained the idea for her first book.

To assist her pupils the attractive teacher prepared witty, and to - the - point instruction sheets.

Her direct approach to bridge playing appealed to her students and their enthusiasm prompted Mrs. Dersnah to draft her teaching sheets into a book.

Mrs. Dersnah feels that most of the books written today concerning bridge are too technical for the novice player.

Discussion of potential hands fill many pages and, sometimes, can confuse the casual player, in her opinion.

With this in mind, she compiled a straight - from - the - shoulder guide to bridge, establishing herself as the first Canadian author of a book on the game.

Mrs. Dersnah swiftly explains that she is not critical of the books, written by experts such as Goren, Sheinwold or Jacoby, but feels they are meant for the advanced player.

To bridge the gap she has prepared a precise guide to a game popular with both men and women.

Already, more than 2,000 copies of basic bridge for the casual, unsure, rusty player have been printed at the Picton Gazette and sold throughout the Quinte district.

Book publishers Nelson, Foster and Scott, of Willowdale, now are investigating the market for this book on a national scale.

Several thousand copies soon will be printed for further distribution across Canada.

Mrs. Dersnah notes the versatility of bridge, explaining that women can enjoy playing a hand while chatting, advancing to duplicate bridge the mood suddenly becomes formal. There is almost no conversation as players reorganize their thinking.

She adds that men players in this division outnumber women competitors about three - to - one.

With the success of the first book assured, Ruth Dersnah now looks forward to writing a second bridge handbook. She expects to write a beginner's book this fall.

For Ruth Dersnah bridge is the name of the game and she has expertly defined its rules in Basic Bridge for the Casual, Unsure or Rusty Player.

Blood Clinic Reminder Now by Telephone Call

TRENTON — Telephone lines here are extra busy this week as Trenton Memorial Hospital Auxiliary's telephone committee swings into action to remind 636 potential blood donors of Monday's clinic at the Canadian Legion Hall.

Due to increased mailing costs, reminder cards are not being sent to everyone who has donated blood previously.

Instead, Mrs. Rutherford and her 15-member telephone committee are placing a total of 636 phone calls — over 40 per person — to recruit donors. If a donor cannot be reached by telephone, he will receive a reminder card by mail.

Target of the decade's first blood clinic is 275 units of blood.

Clinic hours are from 2.30 to 5 p.m. and from 6.30 to 8.30 in the evening at the Canadian Legion Hall on Quinte Street in Trenton.

Trenton Memorial Hospital Auxiliary assists the Red Cross mobile team at each clinic conducted here by providing the volunteer telephone callers, typists for registration and nurses to help staff the clinic.

Trudeau Feels Ties with Europe Offset U.S. Influence

OTTAWA (CP) — The idea that Canada can use strong ties with Europe as a means of offsetting or deflecting the massive American influence on Canada has long been established dogma in the external affairs department.

Prime Minister Trudeau, however, has given little if any indication that he buys the concept. At any rate that was the case until last week.

Then, in an interview with the Paris newspaper, Le Monde, Mr. Trudeau showed that he does indeed subscribe to the thesis. Canada attaches "high priority" to its relations with Europe, he assured Le Monde.

Some observers find the prime minister's statements significant, coming at a time when the government's foreign policy white paper is still in preparation and when he is under attack in some quarters for allegedly leading Canada into isolationism, or at least "continentalism."

Canada Ratifies Sea Shelf Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has ratified a 12-year-old Continental Shelf convention deemed to support Canada's position in sovereignty disputes with the United States and France.

The areas in dispute are Georges Bank off the East Coast between Nova Scotia and Maine and portions of the shelf between Newfoundland and the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon.

The convention will come into force for Canada March 8. It was worked out at a United Nations law-of-the-sea conference in Geneva in 1958.

One of its clauses provides that where the same shelf is adjacent to two states whose coasts are opposite each other its boundary will be determined by agreement between them.

"In the absence of agreement, and unless another boundary line is justified by special circumstances, the boundary is the median line, every point of which is equidistant from the nearest points of the baselines from which the breadth of the territorial sea of each state is measured."

British Shippers Relieved as Red King of Docks Retires

LONDON (CP) — The British treasury and many shipping magnates are breathing easier now that Jack Dash has taken his small golden handshake and given a younger generation the job of raising cain on the docks.

Dash, a pint-sized Communist with a prickly social conscience and a gift for rabble-rousing, has cost the treasury and the employers of dock labor untold millions of pounds in the 25 years up to his retirement at the age of 62.

Prime Minister Wilson suggested in 1967, when—instigated a long tieup of London's 20,000 stevedores which choked dollar-earning foreign trade, that the "uncrowned king of dockland" was largely responsible for devaluation of the pound as exchange reserves shrank.

Jack modestly disclaimed this, though he accepts credit—and has earned it—for bringing the long-underpaid dockwallopers up to the point where they earn $98 a week, about tops for manual labor in Britain.

His personally-invented Port Workers' Liaison Committee was the scourge of employers, the government and his own union, the Transport and General Workers' Union. The huge labor group, largest in Britain, could only throw up its hands ineffectually when Dash decided to pull out the dockers in defiance of it.

The TGWU didn't dare throw him out for fear of losing control completely of waterfront labor in the Thames shipping operation.

While Dash joined the Communist party in 1936—largely because of unemployment here and the ideological impact of the Spanish civil war—he has said since that he's been hurt by accusations of being a "Communist agitator and wrecker."

In truth, the only line he has followed in recent years has been the Jack Dash line of clouting the employers—and the government—around for all he could get for the dockers.

Off the hurly burly of the docks, the little firebrand is a friendly man, a man of close family ties in his cheap flat just off the waterfront, an author, a lecturer and, surprisingly, a connoisseur of sculpture and painting.

He recently turned out a fair-selling autobiography entitled Good Morning, Brothers—his customary soapbox salutation to the dockers—and is in some demand for lectures at such places as Oxford University and the occasional pulpit in London.

Strictly Personal

There Are No Natives Here

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

There are no "native" Americans, in strictly scientific terms; even the Eskimos and Indians emigrated to this continent from Asia, as evidenced by the fact that no humanoid pre-historic skeletons have ever been found in North or South America.

In order to make a lot of money, you have to love it for itself alone; the goddess of acquisition surrenders herself only to those who swear eternal fidelity and monogamy, and not to those who would merely trifle with her or use her for extraneous purposes.

My favorite sensible answer to a stupid question was given to a reporter visiting a nudist camp, who asked one of the campers, "How did you get to be a nudist?," and the camper replied, "I was born that way."

Nothing testifies so eloquently to the imperishable quality of the game of tennis that it has managed to survive the fatuous fops who run it.

One facet of the pollution problem that has not yet been given sufficient notice is the open garbage dump in so many communities—which can be the source of a score of human diseases, including bubonic plague, dysentery, intestinal worms, meningitis and rabies.

(Speaking of pollution, one of the best and briefest statements of our quandry was made by Prof. John Platt, when he observed: "Endowed as we are in the technology of Doing, we are miserably poor in techniques of Undoing, which the progress of Doing makes ever more necessary.")

In all the advice and instructions I have read about applying for a job, the most crucial factor is rarely mentioned — that nothing the applicant says about himself is as damaging to his chances as his expression of critical remarks about a former employer.

Children should be encouraged by their parents to go beyond themselves, not to stay within safe limits; for the great majority of emotional cripples who seek psychiatric therapy in adult life are those who have been conditioned to say, "I can't," and need outside help to be able to say, "I can."

Creative Co-ordinator Teaches Experimentation with Fashions

MONTREAL (CP) — Young and chic Janice Buxton says "rules are out, quite out" in her course on mod fashions at the YWCA.

In fact, the only rule to remember about fashion is that there aren't any rules.

She wants to teach her students "to experiment with fashion" and develop their own individuality. "Too many girls are scared of fashion and afraid to try new wild styles."

As creative co-ordinator for J. R. McCann Promotions and a former fashion copywriter, Janice has had plenty of opportunities to work with clothes—to see what they can and can't do for a woman.

For example, although she personally is "completely sick, sick of chain belts," Janice agrees that any woman who really loves them "is of course free to go on wearing them as long as she likes."

However, once shoppers see "racks and racks of any item in department stores, that item is on its way out."

Janice, a University of Alberta graduate, realizes her job offers advantages other girls don't enjoy.

"Because of my job I can wear wilder clothes to the office than the average girl, but I believe that even girls who work in large conservative companies can enjoy the fun of new fashion."

She tries to involve the students, mostly between the ages of 20 and 30, by getting them to find eight new ways to tie a scarf or four ways to fit an old dress with accessories to give it a new look.

The biggest mistake is "to over-spend on big items."

"You have to think of the whole outfit. The grooviest dress demands special shoes and it is useless to have the dress and no money for shoes."

Budget - conscious women should consider bringing old, but still loved, dresses up to date. "The new thing is to buy small."

Like a lot of others her age, Janice got a maxi this fall—bright red, trimmed, buttoned and belted.

"I still love it but I have discovered that the maxi is not for our climate. It gets dirty and when you are loaded down with a bag, a paper, a key and some parcels, there is no way, but no way to walk upstairs with a maxi."

Determined not to let style get the best of her, Janice plans to chop off the bottom of her maxi and "turn it into a midi."

She thinks the real future of maxis lies "in the reversible idea with a length of skirt which goes on or comes off with a zipper."

Wigs will be "the ultimate fashion accessory," she predicts.

"Some of the synthetic ones are quite fantastic, better than the real thing. A new wig can mean a new you."

But even the experts make mistakes, Janice admits.

WEDDING

DONALDSON — CROSS

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother, 22 Brassey St., Saturday, February 21, 1970 at 2 p.m. when Mary Jean Cross, daughter of Mrs. R. J. Fergusson and the late Mr. R. J. Fergusson and George Gordon Donaldson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Donaldson, Millbridge were married. Rev. Robert Crooks, of Tabernacle United Church, Belleville officiated.

The couple were attended by Mrs. Betty Fougere, Ottawa, sister of the bride and Mr. Gilbert Seeley, friend of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at the same address with Mrs. Lena Vincent, grandmother of the bridegroom pouring tea.

Present along with the other guests were the bride's three children, Cindy, Robbie and Kim also the bridegroom's two children, Cathy and Patty.

The family will reside at 15 Brassey Street, Belleville.

HOME FIRE HAZARDS

CALGARY (CP) — Lint and other fluff in furnaces and automatic washers and dryers can create a serious fire hazard, says Fire Marshal L. C. Marks. Furnace and dryer filters clogged with lint and dust force the motors to work overtime to circulate air and often cause them to burn out.

It's All in the Family

The youngest member of the Belleville Art Association, Donna Cameron, casts a critical eye over her mother's entry in the second annual non-juried Artist's Choice show, being held at the Corby Public Library, which ends this Saturday. Local artists have each contributed a number of paintings in the show, which is open to the public every morning and afternoon.

Paintings on Display

There are just two days left to see many interesting pictures by members of the Belleville Art Association.

A total of 50 paintings is being shown in the second annual Artist's Choice Show now displayed at the Belleville Public Library Gallery. This is a non-juried show open to all members of the association regardless of painting experience. For some members, this is the first time they have had a picture hung in the gallery. Membership is open to anyone interested in furthering the appreciation and development of fine arts.

Officers in the association are: president, Mrs. Oscar Bovin; vice-president, Mrs. Thorton Brown; treasurer, Mrs. D. Duminie; secreary, Mrs. L. Lennox. Committee heads are: exhibits, Mrs. Allan Cameron; picture rental, Mrs. N. Henderson; publicity, Mr. Ron Vandervelde, and Quinte Arts Council representative, Miss Leona Riggs.

The local Art Association has been in existance now for about 15 years and has a total membership at the present time of 60. It holds a month-long exhibition in the Library Gallery in November and a two-week show in February. It also takes part in the festival each year and responds to requests for sidewalk shows and other requests. A monthly picture rental service is also available.

The group is a member of the Quinte Arts Council and members are kept informed on all activities by means of a bulletin put out by the executive. They are informed of weekend workshops with professional instructors. Recently Mrs. Libby Altwerger conducted a workshop in watercolor and a workshop on figure drawing is planned for March 6, 7, and 8.

Guide Company Presents 'Fashions Through the Years'

Girl Guides have been camping and having fun in Canada for 60 years thanks to Lady Baden Powell, founder of the Girl Guide organization. As part of the year's celebration Company 10, OSD Guides with the assistance of Belleville's Rangers presented Fashions Through the Years in the OSD auditorium Tuesday evening.

Captain Betty La Londe explained the history of the Girl Guide movement. It all started when the girls decided that the boys were having too much fun belonging to the Scouts so Lady Baden Powell rectified the situation — thus the inception of the movement in St. Catharines, Ontario.

The participants in the evening's skits clarified the activities of Guides by giving mock performances of the duties as well as just plain "fun" activities. One of the more humorous skits showed the girls camping in the woods and the perils involved.

When the younger sisters of the Guides started to complain because they were missing a lot of adventures, the Brownie movement was organized. In 1920 the Ranger movement came into existence. The Rangers were former Girl Guides.

In 1926 a World Association of Guides was founded and a world flag was adopted. Dress changed over the years — the maxi-length gradually gave way to the mid-calf length during the war (1939-1945). The girls performed a number of useful services during this period such as knitting socks for the soldiers and collecting used clothing.

In 1960 a river of yellow roses was planted in Canada in honor of the Golden Jubilee of the Girl Guides.

At the conclusion of the performances a unique event took place in the history of the Belleville Girl Guides when Helen Woodward, a non-hearing Guide was promoted to Lieutenant in the movement. Rangers gathered together and sang a number of songs from various countries. The evening came to a close with the Guide and Brownie taps and the Rangers' song.

A Cow Gets in the Act!

Company 10, O.S.D. Girl Guides and some of Belleville's Rangers are making sure their cow is intact for participation in a skit about the perils of camping. "Fashion Through the Years" was presented by the group at the O.S.D. auditorium on Tuesday evening.

Girl Dispels Rumors By Removing Clothes

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My best friend has ruined her reputation for $10. I'm sure it wasn't the money that made her do it. It was pride. Here is what happened.

ANN LANDERS

Mary (made-up name) has an unusually groovy build for a girl of 15. She also has perfect posture which causes some people to think she is trying to advertise her best assets.

Last week Joe (a fellow in our class) went up to Mary and told her he and three other guys had put together a pool of $10. They believe she is falsied up and want to bet her $10 that she is faking out the viewing public.

Mary said she was sick of those falsie rumors and that she would not prove it to all the guys, but she would prove it to a representative and he could tell the others. Joe said, "O.K." We'll draw straws to see who gets to see the proof."

Joe must have won because that evening he took Mary for a ride. She won, of course, and he gave her the $10.

Of course the story spread all over the school the next morning and now Mary can't hold her head up. To make matters worse, the other three guys refused to accept a second-hand report and Joe had to pay the whole $10 himself. Please tell me how to help Mary regain her lost reputation. — A FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND: Sorry, I left my magic wand in my other purse. Mary's best bet is to put this incident out of her mind and conduct herself in a way that will help people forget it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am the mother of two children and have been divorced for eight years. For the first time in my life I am truly in love — with a homosexual.

I was charmed by his marvelous laugh and his cheery smile. Then by his warm personality and his delightful sense of humor. Now it is total love.

He says he has never felt this way about anyone — that he has severed all ties with his gay friends, that he wants to dedicate his whole life to making me happy. He also says he wonders now if he was ever a homosexual.

My children adore him and want us to marry. I am tortured by indecision. Will our love be cool one day and will he return to his other life? I can't face the thought of giving him up. Life without him would have no meaning. I am depending on you to tell me what to do. Yes or no? — IN LOVE BUT HESITANT.

DEAR I.L.B.H.: Sorry, I'm not about to tell a woman to go ahead and marry a homosexual. Talk this over with a therapist who has had homosexual patients. He can best apprise you of your chances for happiness.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is in response to "Former Turtle Owner" — and to everyone who owns a pet:

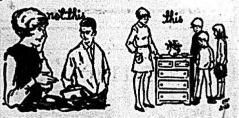
All animal dealers should give instructions on the care and feeding of the pets they sell, but beware of the ignoramuses in the trade. Too often dealers don't know a cockeyed thing about animals. And there is no excuse for their ignorance. Libraries and book stores have plenty of information. The dealers need only to get the books and read. I am not a dealer, yet I know that all turtles and tortoises require temperatures of 75 to 80 degrees F.

And speaking of pet dealers, some of the commercial turtle food on the market has no food value. A turtle can starve to death on it. Please print the truth and wake up these people. — CORNELL UNIVERSITY.

DEAR CORNELL: Thanks for your letter. I hope your letter not only wakes 'em up, but shakes 'em up — enough to go to the library and learn something about the pets they sell.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "Everybody comes in and just dumps things here on the table or sideboard. I don't know why the children can't take their books and schoolbags to their rooms when they come home. I have to move everything before I can set the table for dinner."

Mother: "This chest is for books, gloves, caps and things you want to keep handy downstairs. There's a drawer for each one of you. Please put your things away as soon as you come in."

Provide a storage spot near the entrance door and you'll do away with a lot of clutter and also with a last-minute search for lost school items every morning.

University Meal-time Conversation

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: When I was a don in a Canadian university residence for women, we had two rules on dinner - time conversation:

1. Everyone must try to contribute to the sociability of the occasion (no mum members).

2. Talk should be general: no personalities to be discussed.

Both rules were hard to follow. Shy people, or people whose families had discouraged table talk, found it hard to make conversation. And chatty people, whose stock - in - trade was personal gossip, found it hard to avoid personalities.

But we persevered, and after a few weeks we all enjoyed the kind of light, bright talk that makes dinner a social event — and contributes to digestion. Often, of course, we hit more serious notes; and coffee would find the girls still fiercely arguing over politics, or life-styles, or morals.

Now that I'm coping with dinner conversation on the family level, I often regret those tidy rules (and the ability I once had to enforce them!) Our present problem is that we have "two families" — three teen-agers, plus the two little girls who appeared later on the family scene.

When the teen - agers were little, we enjoyed hearing about their projects at school; what the teachers said about "show and tell", who swapped lunch with whom, and so on. But now the teen - agers are eager to exchange ideas on student revolt, the drug scene, national news, controversial interpretations of history that they picked up in class.

What happens to the poor little grade four and five girls? They're lucky if they get a word in edgewise! How can we incubate the old college rule that everyone must contribute, without stopping the exciting flow of adolescent talk?

If we formally take turns, as one of your correspondents suggested last fall, the whole bubble of chatter bursts. — Elizabeth.

Dear Elizabeth: The rules are good ones.

Mums and Dads, what are your answers to giving the smaller of the small fry a place to squeeze in their two cents' worth?

Dear Doris: I see where another "Worried and Let Down" has been let down by a rotter who does not value himself enough to stay by what is part of him. I expect the girl is better without him, but I am sorry such things happen.

I was always taught that woman is the weaker vessel and it was a man's duty to protect her from himself as well as from others. — A Mid-Victorian of 1887.

Dear Mr. Mid-Victorian: We could do with more of the same philosophy, in 1970.

(Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope for private reply.)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Request Recipe for Beef Croquettes

By MARY MOORE

When I get immersed in my own projects I am inclined to forget the urgency of some readers' problems.

Recently a reader asked for the recipe for Beef Croquettes to use up leftover unslice-able roast beef. I sent her a former release, discovering I had not given this recipe here for far too long.

There is a general rule for croquettes. You make a basic Thick White Sauce (approximately 4 tbsps. fat, 4 tbsps. flour, to 1 cup milk) and add whatever seasonings are appropriate to the meat or vegetables to be added.

But the great majority of you like me to be specific so I am.

BEEF CROQUETTES
— Baked or Shallow-Fried (10)

NOTE: Make this meat mixture ½ to 1 hr. in advance of mealtime because it has to chill to be shaped.

2 cups ground cold roast beef (slightly packed)
1 cup hot milk
3 tbsps. margarine
¼ cup flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 egg
COATING:
Flour
1 egg or 2 egg whites
1½ cups fine breadcrumbs
1 tbsp. water

In a medium - size pan blend together the margarine, flour and salt. Stir in hot milk and Worcestershire sauce until thick. Remove from heat and stir in ground meat. Then stir in egg. Spread out on dinner plate and chill in refrigerator.

Meanwhile buzz three slices of bread in your blender to give you 1½ cups or use packaged, or breadcrumbs made from your own stale dried out bread put through grinder.

Beat egg (or whites) with 1 tbsp. water just to mix.

Using a silver serving spoon as your measure pick up a heaping spoonful of the meat mixture and drop into shallow bowl containing flour and flip it over. Transfer to egg, flip over to coat, then on slotted spoon lift to crumbing plate and flip over. Shape these like logs or patties by hand.

Melt ¼ cup margarine or butter in frypan and pan fry until golden on both sides. Or bake in pan containing 2 or 3 tbsps. melted margarine or butter, turning them over when you put croquettes in pan to grease both sides. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 25 min. or until crusty and golden on top.

SOLD BY THE POUND

Eggs are bought by the dozen but actually sold by the pound. Grade A eggs are divided into Extra large, large, medium and small according to the weight of the individual egg.

City Endorses School Tax Resolutions

Belleville city council last Monday concurred with two out of town resolutions concerning the collection by municipalities of school board taxes.

One of the resolutions from Sarnia called for the amendment of existing legislation to allow municipalities to recover from boards of education their appropriate share of expenses relating to the building and collection of school rates.

The other resolution was from the township of Tyendinaga asking for an agreement with the Hastings county board of education to provide a different number of tax instalments and due dates from that provided in the act.

The resolution claimed that interim tax billing was not economical for small municipalities.

Hastings County Council at its January session concurred with the Tyendinaga resolution which asked that the county with Belleville and Trenton make representation to the school board.

Council also concurred with second Sarnia resolution asking for a review of existing compulsory arbitration legislation as it affects fire and police services.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey moved concurrence in the Sarnia resolution noting that in her opinion arbitration awards in the past had been for too large salary increases for police and firemen.

A resolution from St. Thomas respecting the licensing of lotteries was referred to a special committee appointed two weeks ago following the request of the local united services two weeks ago for approval of a local lottery.

Committee members are Alderman Paul Russell, Police Chief Douglas Crosbie and City Solicitor E. Guss Porter.

Hoop Play Down to Wire

By ERIC EMERSON
(Staff Sportswriter)

On the Professional Golfers Tour, the catch-phrase is, "you drive for show, and you putt for dough," with the ability to consistently make four-foot putts outweighing that of hitting 300-yard screamers down the centre. Much the same situation exists this year in Bay of Quinte high school basketball, where after completing a 14-game schedule, a dozen of the top teams must win a crucial one or two games to advance to the COSSA championships Saturday, March 7.

The championship tournament, held at Centennial Secondary School this Saturday, pits the first place team in one division against the runners-up in the opposite section. The two finalists are eligible for COSSA, which will be held a week from Saturday at the same Centennial Secondary School court.

Says league convener, Brian McKenzie, "We feel the tournament idea has been very successful. It's given practically all of the teams something to fight for all season and should provide the best Bay of Quinte representatives at COSSA. Often, because of injuries or improvement by one team, the best club at the start of the season isn't necessarily best at playoff time."

Previous to this year the first place team was given a bye into COSSA, provided they were more than two points ahead of the runner-up.

Only two teams sport unblemished records for the year, and both will be the team to beat in their class.

BCI has completed their schedule with 14 consecutive wins in the senior section. Leading the team is corner-man Dave Wright, who has averaged 29 points a game for his last five contests and is probably the finest all-round player in the senior division. Wright, who has a fine shot from the corner and the height to go underneath, poses a large-size problem to opposing defences.

Unless the Quinte juniors stumble over 13 in their final league game against winless Centre Hastings tonight, they will also enter Saturday's tournament unbeaten. While lacking an individual player of Wright's ability, the Quinte squad sports a well-balanced attack and a tough 2-3 "Hawk" defence. Much of the success of their team will depend on the performance of sharp-shooting guards Steve Nash and Stan Brookes, and under-rated centre, Barry Culkin.

The midget division shapes up as a battle between Centennial and BCI, who both finished the season with 12-2 records and split their two season encounters. Backboard-clearing centre Vahe Parmaksezian of the Chargers and BCI guard Peter LeBaron rank as the key men for each team.

Aces' Perry in Trouble If Ferguson Finds Range

Kingston Aces' goalie Neil Perry only got a taste Tuesday of what he's in for if Al Ferguson sees the light.

With only 15 seconds remaining in Tuesday night's 7-5 opening playoff loss to the Aces in Kingston, Ferguson let loose with one of his patented slapshots that Perry didn't even wave at.

It was typical of many of the 20 goals the burly Trenton winger scored in his first 28 Belleville Mo-Hawk outings this season, but "Fergy's" banana-bladed stick only accounted for two more goals in the remaining 12 games of OHA Senior A play.

Mo-Hawk coach Davey Jones was trying to account for the Ferguson drought before Tuesday night's game.

"Al's got that one good move where he fakes a shot and then slips the puck past the defenceman. That was working early in the year.

"But lately, he hasn't been getting any shots away, so defencemen around the league are expecting the fake every time. If he gets that shot off, even if he knows it'll never get past a defenceman, it would accomplish something.

AL FERGUSON

"For one thing, I'll bet the same defenceman wouldn't be so quick to block one of Al's shots a second time."

Jones is probably right. Ferguson can shoot the puck as fast as anyone in the OHA Senior A league. What's worse for opposing goaltenders, Ferguson's deliveries are what goalies refer to as "heavy" shots, and sometimes dip a foot or more from the spin imparted by his U-turn stick.

Picture trying to catch a puck heading towards you at 90 miles an hour, moving like a yo-yo, and feeling like it's made of cast iron.

That could be what's in store for Neil Perry when the Aces head into Belleville for the second game of their playoff quarter-final, an 8 p.m. Saturday night appointment at the Memorial Arena.

Minor Sports Meet

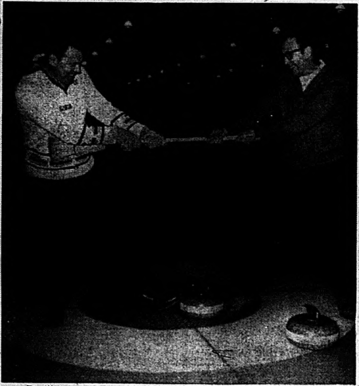
The Belleville Minor Sports Association will hold a general meeting tonight at the Legion Hall on Pinnacle Street at 8 o'clock.

The controlling body for such activities as softball, hockey, baseball, soccer, lacrosse, weight-lifting and track and field co-ordinates the activities of some 3,000 city minor sport participants.

One of the main items on tonight's agenda, will be the election of new officers for the association as a number of former officials, including two-year president Cy Coulson indicate they are stepping down.

Other topics to be dealt with are financial matters for the association, which had a budget of around $30,000 last year and the presentation of a cheque for $31,000 collected from September's walkathon to the Quinte Action Centre committee.

The general public and particularly sponsors, who have the right to vote in association matters, are invited to attend the meeting.



Despite appearances CFB Trenton skip Doug Scott and Art King are out to prove that their club is not a "one-broom outfit." The Canadian Forces contingent sported three of the five first-round winners competing for the Bay of Quinte Men's Bonspiel championship, including Art King's foursome.

CFB Rinks Get Jump

Home rinks proved to be uncongenial on-ice hosts as five teams from the CFB Trenton, Quinte and Trenton Curling Clubs emerged as first-round winners after Wednesday night's first round of play in the 10th annual Bay of Quinte Men's Bonspiel.

Three CFB rinks, skipped by Earl Jesse, Mel Sjostrom and Art King along with the Murray Johnson foursome of the Quinte Curling Club and Lisle Carr's Trenton rink, won the right to advance to the second round of the championships as Alderman Ben Corke officially opened the bonspiel last night.

Today's action is taking place at the Quinte and Trenton Curling Clubs at 5:30 p.m. Other trophies offered in the competition, besides the first-event Elliott Motors silverware, are presented by O'Keefe Breweries, Quinte Transport, Corby's Distillery, North American Van Lines, Pepsi Cola Beverages and Belle Cleaners.

None of the United States entries, which include two rinks from Utica, N.Y., and one Virginia foursome, saw opening-round action.

The Elliott Motors final will be held at the Quinte Curling Club, beginning ay 7 p.m. Sunday.

Form is foremost in synchronized swimming, the ballet of aquatic activities. Sunday, a day-long clinic in the sport will be staged at the Belleville Family YMCA pool. Among the "pupils" will be members of the 20-member Belleville 'Y' synchronized team, seen here performing one of their routines.

'Y' Shows Swimming's Esthetic Side

Belleville's Family YMCA pool will be the scene Sunday of one of sport's most esthetic activities.

Former Pan-American Games competitor Norma Douglas will oversee a day-long clinic on synchronized swimming, the ballet of water sports.

In addition to being a silver medal Pan-Am Games winner, Mrs. Douglas is the Ontario Technical Chairman of the Canadian Amateur Synchronized Swimming Association, and a qualified judge for Ontario and national competitions.

Mrs. Douglas will activate her 10 years of coaching experience through a demonstration by 11-year-old daughter Laura, the Ontario champion for her age group for two years running.

Sunday's clinic gets under way at 9:30, and a seven-pronged program including lectures and pool practice sessions will be open to the general public until 5 p.m.

Among the poolside pupils will be the Belleville Y's 20-member synchronized swimming team and another from Kingston.

Juniors to Make Amends

The Belleville Ellis Juniors, who floundered badly in their playoff opener get a chance to make amends for a 14-5 drubbing at the hands of the Oshawa Crushmen, when the two teams meet tomorrow night at 9.15 in the Belleville Arena.

The Crushmen, Eastern Ontario Junior B pennant winners are pretty much a known quantity, although they looked exceptionally sharp in the opening game in Oshawa. The big question mark will be the performance of the Ellis Juniors.

There is certainly no lack of talent, as their late season unbeaten string, which included two wins over Oshawa, indicated. The talent was far from in evidence in Tuesday night's game, however, as the Printers turned in a totally lacklustre performance. "The team was making fundamental mistakes that they haven't made since the start of the season," says coach Floyd Crawford. "I'm certain we'll do a lot better in our two weekend games."

The main objective of the Belleville team will have to improve their checking effort which was totally lacking in the first contest. The Ellis forwards were abandoning their backchecking assignments and the result was disastrous for the defence corps.

Chief target for the Printers defensive efforts will be Oshawa hub John Nestic, who sets up most of the plays for league scoring champion, Jim Robson. "We're going to play Nestic a lot tighter than we did in Oshawa," says Crawford.

Time for tomorrow night's game is 9.15 p.m., with the teams meeting in Belleville again Sunday night at 7.30.

Expos' Phillips Two Ulcers Lighter

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (CP) — Adolfo Emilio Phillips, the slender senor from Panama who patrolled Montreal Expos outfield for part of last season, is even more slender now.

Tired and run down last season with two National League clubs, Phillips finally underwent major surgery for stomach ulcers Sept. 25 in Montreal.

Now the six-footer weighs only 156 pounds, 20 pounds under his normal weight. Phillips will attempt to regain part of that poundage during the Expos spring training sessions here.

Montreal manager Gene Mauch said Wednesday all his regulars are in camp and the team is seven or eight days ahead of last year in conditioning.

Mauch attributed the fact to the good weather and the players reporting "in the finest physical condition of any club I've ever managed."

He singled out Phillips as "looking better than I've ever seen him."

Phillips was acquired by the Expos last June 11 in a trade with Chicago Cubs. The move came as something of a surprise to Phillips who had played regularly with the Cubs for more than three seasons. Before that he had parts of seasons with Philadelphia Phillies.

"Although I was a bit surprised, the change really made no difference to me," he said. "In going to Montreal I was again under Gene Mauch, who was manager at Philadelphia when I was there."

In his term with the Cubs, Phillips reached his high hitting mark in 1967 with a .268 average. In 58 games with Montreal, despite his stomach ailment, he hit .216. His over-all major league average is .224.

He is something of a streak hitter, with good power. Jim Fanning, Montreal general manager, said the Expos "have every confidence that he will be one of the best centrefielders in baseball in 1970."

Phillips said that after his playing career—and he hopes that day is a long way off—he will still want to remain in baseball in some capacity.

"I won't want to quit. I'll just want to be in some baseball job—that will suit me fine."

Phillips has a wife and two young daughters in Panama. He said he plans to move them to Montreal in June, not before.

"It's too cold for them before that."

Orioles Open School for Speed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Orioles got a lecture on speed and a contract for power. Minnesota Twins, however, settled for the latter.

That's what happened in baseball Wednesday when Jesse Owens talked about running at the Orioles spring training camp, slugger Frank Robinson signed with Baltimore and slugger Harmon Killebrew signed with Minnesota.

Robinson, who batted .308 last season, drove in 100 runs and belted 32 homers, received an estimated $125,000 for his 15th major league year. Killebrew signed for a reported $90,000 after batting .276 with 140 RBI and 49 homers in 1969 when he was voted the American League's most valuable player.

Owens, a winner of four gold medals at the 1936 Olympic Games, now works for the American League. He lectured the Orioles on the art of running and conditioning.

"He can do nothing but help some of our players," said manager Earl Weaver, whose Orioles already are known as a team with better than average speed.

Owens is available to any AL team, and the Orioles were quick to accept his services.

Besides Killebrew, the Twins signed outfielder Bob Allison and rookie Herman Hills, leaving three players still unsigned—outfielder Cesar Tovar, first baseman Rich Reese and relief pitcher Ron Perranoski.

Baltimore also still has three unsigned players. They are pitcher Dave McNally, first baseman Boog Powell and second baseman Dave Johnson.

Other signings Wednesday included first baseman Lee May, by Cincinnati Reds, first baseman Don Mincher and pitcher Diego Segui, by Oakland Athletics.

Now Ruel Has Different Complaint: Habs Winning ..But Not Well Enough!

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Coaches Charlie Burns and John Wilson would have been overjoyed with a National Hockey League win Wednesday night while Claude Ruel's anguish continued despite a victory by his Montreal Canadiens.

Burns and his Minnesota North Stars extended their current winless streak to 19 games when they settled for a 3-3 tie with Wilson's Los Angeles Kings who haven't won in their last 12 starts.

The Canadiens beat Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2 to move to within a point of the idle Boston Bruins who hold second spot in the East Division, but coach Ruel complained that it should have been an easier win.

In two other games, New York Rangers edged St. Louis Blues 2-1 to move four points in front of Boston, and last-place Toronto Maple Leafs took a 4-1 win over Oakland Seals who are fourth in the West Division.

"Always it's the same situation with us," said Ruel who last week talked of quitting his job behind the Montreal bench because of a minor slump by the Canadiens.

"We have a one-goal lead in the late stages and we have to just hope we can protect it. It used to be that the Canadiens killed other teams in the third period. But now if they have a slim lead like tonight, they just have to be cautious and try to keep it. We can't afford to take chances any more."

Ruel criticized his defence for allowing Pittsburgh to gain two first-period goals by Glen Sather.

"The defence was bad in that first period, but they didn't get any help from the forwards, either. I guess after a team has won so many league championships and Stanley Cups as Canadiens, they think things are going to come easy for them. But, nothing is easy."

FRAN HUCK
Brief Hab Debut

Jacques Lemaire scored his 30th season goal in the first period and the Canadiens took the lead in the second session on goals by Mickey Redmond and Serge Savard.

The Canadiens had only 18 shots at Pittsburgh netminder Joe Daley while Rogatien Vachon had to make 29 saves to protect the narrow victory.

The crowd of 16,529 saw the first appearance in Canadiens uniform of centre Fran Huck, former star with the Canadian Nationals. Huck, on an eight-game tryout with the Montreal team, made only a brief appearance.

The Blues, whose only goal was scored by centre Red Berenson, disputed Marshall's goal, saying the puck had not gone in the net, but referee Art Skov allowed the score to stand.

Marshall wrenched his shoulder later in the game when he checked Gary Sabourin of the Blues. The 37-year-old winger was taken to hospital with a suspected shoulder separation.

Veteran goalie Jacques Plante stopped 27 drives for St. Louis which still holds a 16-point lead over Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Flyers in the West Division.

In Toronto, veteran right-winger George Armstrong sparked the Leafs by setting up goals by Brit Selby and Mike Walton.

On both goals, Armstrong carried the puck in to the right of Oakland goalie Gary Smith and passed out in front for the scoring play.

Bob Pulford and Dave Keon got the other Toronto goals while Carol Vadnais ruined Marv Edwards' shutout bid with a goal in the second period.

Edwards, making only his second start in goal since recovering from a December knee injury, was called on to make only 24 saves while Smith stopped 39 shots.

The contest in Minneapolis, before a crowd of 12,421, ended in the fourth tie between the Kings and North Stars this season. Each team has one win over the other.

Jim Peters scored twice for the last-place Kings and Dick Duff got the tying goal early in the third period.

Goalie Denis DeJordy made his second start since being traded last week from Chicago Black Hawks and kicked out 37 shots. Cesare Maniago made 30 saves for Minnesota.

Tonight, the Rangers visit Boston, the Seals travel to Detroit, the Black Hawks are at Philadelphia and the Kings at Pittsburgh.

NHL-bound Canucks Make Last-minute Change

VANCOUVER (CP) — Joe Crozier is a general manager without a hockey club today after being fired Wednesday by the National Hockey League-bound Canucks in favor of Bud Poile.

He left with a succinct but emphatic gesture of support from players of the Western Hockey League Canucks.

Canucks' president Thomas K. Scallen told a news conference that Crozier was fired for "rank insubordination" over earlier plans to enter the NHL with him next season as coach and general manager.

Scallen said an incident Tuesday night—when Crozier ignored a summons to a club directors' meeting—precipitated the sudden move.

Directors had planned to present Crozier with a letter informing him that Poile, formerly with Philadelphia Flyers, had been named special assistant to the president in charge of over-all supervision of hockey personnel and planning.

Crozier, apparently tipped off in advance, refused to appear at the meeting.

"In any sport the team has to come first," Scallen said. "At a directors' meeting Wednesday morning we reviewed a number of incidents and decided this rank insubordination would make it impossible for Joe to continue."

Crozier appeared only briefly at the news conference and left just prior to the arrival of Scallen, Poile and other team executives.

The Scallen plan was to place Poile, a 46-year-old native of Thunder Bay, Ont., in command of the team, with Crozier running the show on the ice.

Now, Poile takes over as general manager and vice-president. He is also technically coach until one is named, possibly within the next two weeks. Poile said he may revert to special assistant if or when a general manager and coach are named.

Scallen said team executives "were not happy with Joe Crozier's business practices—he's a good hockey man but not, in my judgment, a good businessman."

'BUD' POILE
Joins Canucks

"I had several talks with Joe about the business end and I must say that the answers I got were less than satisfactory.

"We have a considerable investment in the club. We did not know where some of the money was going even when we asked."

A statement issued later by Canucks players said:

"It is agreed by all of us that he has an outstanding record for winning hockey games and championships, which is the successful conclusion to a hockey season.

"He has been a man of his word and we all respect him for it. He has brought winning hockey as well as first-class organization to Vancouver."

Scallen also said that Medicor, the club's Minneapolis-based parent company, has completed arrangements for financing a $1,750,000 down payment on purchase of Vancouver's $6,000,000 NHL franchise.

Medicor earlier bought the club for $2,800,000.

Before coming to Vancouver, Crozier coached and managed Rochester to three American Hockey League titles. In his first season with Canucks, the club finished second but coasted through the playoffs undefeated.

This season, the team has set several records for consecutive wins at home and away and remains well on top of the league over second-place Portland.

Poile has led 16 teams to the playoffs in 18 years as a coach and general manager. His clubs have won six championships, including five in the WHL by Edmonton Flyers and San Francisco Seals when they were in the league.

Lemaire Poses Scoring Threat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jacques Lemaire of Montreal Canadiens earned a goal and assist Wednesday night to threaten seventh-place Jean Ratelle's position among the National Hockey League scoring leaders.

Lemaire's assist and 30th season goal put him in a tie with Red Berenson of St. Louis Blues, a point behind Ratelle of New York Rangers.

Ratelle stayed ahead by gaining an assist while Berenson added his 28th season goal for the Blues.

Grab our great $89 two-pant suit before it becomes our great $95 two-pant suit

Inflation strikes again. When present stocks run out, the price of the Fraserdale, Jack Fraser's great two-pant suit, will be increased. Sorry, but we can't help it.
Labour and material costs continue to rise.

The Fraserdale is a terrific two-pant suit. In quality of construction and fabric it's the equal of one-pant suits costing far more. Styling is fashionable but not extreme — slightly nipped in waist, a little flare to the jacket skirt, moderately wider shoulders and lapels. In your choice of many great fabrics (including a flock of beautiful new stripes) it will do you proud.

At $95 the Fraserdale will be a super value.

At $89 it's a super-duper value.

Why not grab a super-duper while they last?

P.S. Fraserdale value is guaranteed. At its selling price the Fraserdale is designed to give you a better value than you'll find in any other suit, even during so-called "sale events". When you buy your Fraserdale you get a written guarantee that you won't see it offered next week, next month or next year at a sale price.

Lifeline Services Up by 55 Per Cent

In its second year of operation, the use of Lifeline services — a organization devoted to telephone counselling — has seen an increase of 55 per cent during 1969.

Lifeline, a 24-hour, seven day a week telephone counselling service provides a confidential "listening ear" to those in distress.

Telephones are staffed by trained volunteer men and women who listen to the caller's problem, and then attempt to provide whatever counsel or assistance is needed.

The greatest majority of the more than 1564 calls concerned problems of loneliness and depression, with the next two highest categories related to teen problems and marital breakdown.

"Our calls represent all levels of distress — from mild apprehension to absolute desperation", said a Lifeline spokesman.

He attributed the increased number of calls to the fact that "more people realize our existence." At the same time, he indicated that despite the increased use of services, the approximate percentage of calls in each category remained about the same.

At the present time, there are 45 counsellors on active duty, each spending two to eight hours weekly manning the telephones — each day being divided into five shifts.

Now in progress, the fourth training course will provide 25 new counsellors late this month.

A spokesman for the Lifeline organization indicated that information concerning its origins and role in the community have been presented before several service clubs and church groups in the city.

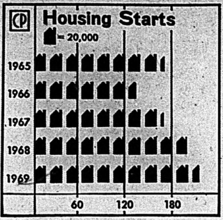
Funds to keep the group operational have been donated by interested individuals and groups — about half of these by Lifeliners themselves.

Intriguing Israel Fourth In Kiwanis Travelogues

The intriguing land of Israel will be the subject of a fourth program of the Travel and Adventure Series. The travelogue, sponsored by the Belleville Kiwanis Club, will be held on Thursday Feb. 26, at 8:15 at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium.

The film is narrated by Walter S. Dodson. Mr. Dodson is a veteran of the British army with which he served in France and Belgium. After the war he spent five years in the Middle East. Mr. Dodson's professional cinematography experience was acquired in the United States.

The travelogue shows Israel as a place where people of all nationalities have lived together in harmony. These people from 70 different countries are creating a new world in an ancient land. The natural and historical landmarks of Israel are also shown to the traveller as the setting moves from sparkling Mediterranean resorts to the Negev desert. The traveller is exposed to the old and new of Israel through such things as Herod's temple and the old city of Jerusalem as well as life in the Kibbutz and the New Jerusalem.



Dwelling Starts Up

The Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., reported a record 210,415 dwelling units, more than half of them apartments, were started in 1969. This is 14,537 more starts than the previous high recorded in 1968. (CP Newsmap)

Lunenberg MP Says Canada's Fisheries Raped

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's fish resources are being raped and pillaged by foreign fishing fleets while the federal government tackles the problem with all the energy of a jellyfish, the Commons was told Wednesday.

Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—South Shore), a fishing company executive from Lunenburg, N.S., called for an international conference of the major fishing countries to discuss the situation, which was causing "wholesale destruction" of such species as the Atlantic salmon.

He spoke during debate on a proposed government amendment to the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act. The amendment would give the government the authority to bar from Canadian ports service and supply vessels attached to foreign fishing fleets.

The bill was one of three dealing with fisheries which received third and final reading Wednesday and now go to the Senate.

The others were:

—A bill to establish a Crown corporation to market east coast saltfish.

—A bill eliminating a bounty payment to East Coast fishermen.

The bill establishing the saltfish corporation, passed with a minimum of debate, was greeted favorably by John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate).

He congratulated Fisheries Minister Jack Davis for taking his advice, and the advice of other Newfoundland MPs, in setting up the corporation.

But he said it alone could not solve the problems of the Newfoundland saltfish industry. Good men were needed in its key positions, and a pamphlet should be made up to explain its objectives to fishermen.

The bill to repeal the Deep Sea Fisheries Act would end a $4,500,000 trust fund established in 1877 for fishermen in the Maritimes and Quebec. It was set up to compensate for fishing and plundering by American boats.

Mr. Davis, responding to opposition demands that the fund be retained, said its elimination was recommended by a 1928 royal commission.

The money available to fishermen through the fund averaged about $13 per fisherman a year. Many were not aware of the act, didn't apply for the money and thus didn't receive any.

Such subsidies tended to give the industry a black eye, the minister said, and he was determined to put it on a sound commercial basis.

Mr. Crouse said the bill will give the government authority to do what it wants with the money. The government was "violating a sacred trust" by doing away with it.

Mr. Crouse's earlier attack on the government for its failure to take action to save dwindling fishing resources was the strongest during debate before third reading of the three bills.

He said the amendment to the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act, to include supply and service vessels of foreign fleets, would probably do more harm than good, although its objective was desirable.

The objective, Fisheries Minister Davis had told the Commons earlier, was to help stop overfishing on Canada's West Coast by foreign vessels.

It would give the minister power to exclude supply and service vessels from Canadian ports.

This provision, if it was fully enforced, would only make foreign fishing countries angry, Mr. Crouse said.

And, it might drive away a profitable business from the East Coast ports of Halifax, Sydney, N.S. and St. John's, Nfld.

St. John's took in $12,000,000 worth of business annually from the foreign fishing fleet, while Halifax and Sydney received about $3,000,000.

The real need was not for more legislative control over the foreign fleets but for international negotiations which would convince other countries of the need to preserve fishing grounds.

Canadian fish resources were being "raped and pillaged by eight of the largest fishing nations of the world who operate right up to our three-mile limits while Canadians stand helplessly by."

The government had a "jellyfish approach" to Canadian territorial rights.

Stocks Need Supervision

(THIRD IN A SERIES)

By KEN MANT

Toronto Telegram News Service

Once you have assembled an array of stocks (called a portfolio), you might think you can sit back and wait for them to grow.

But that is only partly true.

If you want to come out ahead of the game, a lot of supervision is needed to protect the quality of the portfolio.

To give you an idea of what to expect, it might be wise to take a look at the January issue of the Investment Letter turned out by stockbrokers Bongard Leslie and Co. Ltd.

In the issue, the company spends time analysing three types of investment portfolios formed in May, 1968.

Each portfolio started out with a value of just under $50,000.

The first was designed for above-average yield, the second to provide an attractive blend of income and capital growth potential, and the third was made up of quality-growth stocks.

Of the first portfolio, including accrued interest and trading profit that had been withdrawn, the Investment Letter said the indicated income since established represented a return at an annual rate of 8.18 per cent — significant portion of which is tax free.

The current value dropped to $44,256 from the initial investment of $49,140, but this was believed to be partly compensated for by the portfolio's yield. And because of the medium-to-short-term nature of the bulk of bond maturities, "there should be a reasonable recovery in value, paralleling a modest improvement in the market during the coming 12 months," the report said.

The second portfolio was set up for $49,500, and retained a current value of the same amount. As of Dec. 31, the yield was 4.37 per cent. The ingredients consisted of bonds sweetened by preferred and common stocks — and spiced with two speculatives, Calmor Iron Bay and Newconex Holdings.

Its most successful investment appears to be 225 Canadian Pacific Investments 4¾ per cent convertible bought at $18.37. The closing price Dec. 31 was just over $30.

The growth portfolio was supervised by Bongard Leslie this way:

Excluding the dividends received since April 30, 1969, the value of this portfolio was held very well in the bear market that has prevailed almost unabated since that date. The Toronto Stock Exchange industrial index slipped by 4.58 per cent since April 30, whereas the portfolio showed a fractional decline of only 0.56 per cent. Part of this performance related to the timely liquidation May 1 of Brascan Limited, and the decision to hold funds on deposit.

Because of decline in quotations, a number of quality investments are now at levels that considerably understate medium-term growth and appreciation potential, and thus several changes in the holdings were carried out Dec. 1.

Partial profit-taking was undertaken in Crush International ($14.25) to the extant that the original costs were recovered, and also in Electrohome Limited ($38.50) to reduce the over-concentration in this investment. The position in the Toronto - Dominino Bank ($23 ⅝) was switched into the Bank of Montreal ($16⅞), as the latter's earning performance should accelerate moves to strengthen operations.

Two other names have been added, Sherritt Gordon ($19.75) — on the way to becoming a much more important factor in the international mining industry — and Canadian Tire Class "A" ($68 ⅞ —one of the best managed retailing organizations in Canada. The holdings in Gulf Oil Canada ($17.25) were modestly increased in the anticipation that factors other than near-term earnings would lead to some price improvement.

This portfolio showed a gross return of 42.49 per cent. Part of the gain was contributed by the policy of re-investing dividends that would remain in force for the forseeable future.

Homeowners' Nightmare

BURLINGTON, Oct. (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield carried his attack against the government's white paper on taxation to this primarily residential area Wednesday night, describing the tax proposals as a homeowner's nightmare.

The white paper, if implemented, would give employment to thousands of accountants, "perhaps hundreds of lawyers and most certainly to an army of bureaucrats," Mr. Stanfield said.

Opposition Asks for Committees On Cost of Living and Housing

TORONTO (CP) — The opposition parties delayed the normal business of the legislature Wednesday by asking for a committee to allow the public to sound off on the rising cost of living and for another committee on housing and urban affairs.

The measures still were being debated as the house rose for the day.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon proposed the creation of one body to act as a sounding board for the public when "unilateral groups" force a rise in the cost of living.

He said the committee would have no power to control prices but would hold public hearings to disclose facts not always available when decisions are taken that affect consumer prices.

He mentioned rates set by medical and law societies and unilateral decisions made by such groups as car makers and marketing boards.

The NDP moved a subamendment calling for creation of a committee on housing and urban affairs. Hugh Peacock (NDP—Windsor West) wanted a royal commission to investigate agreements signed between Ontario Housing Corp. and Bramalea Ltd., developers of a housing community west of Toronto.

He said Ontario had traded the "instant profits and sharp price increases in Bramalea shares" for the land it needed for its Home Ownership Made Easy program.

At another point, Premier John Robarts denied any link between his office and John Hull, president of Public Relations Services Ltd. of Toronto, who strongly opposes the federal white paper on taxation. Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) brought the matter up in the house.

Mr. Sopha said Mr. Hull, who is founding director of the Canadian Council for Fair Taxation, had advocated the overthrow of the federal government in a speech at a Feb. 8 rally held to outline opposition to the white paper.

Speaker Fred Cass told the legislature his office plans to improve the service of Hansard, the official record of legislature debate.

He said he hopes it will be possible "in the very foreseeable future" to make copies of an uncorrected transcript available to each member of the house and press shortly after the words are uttered in the chamber.

The question of Hansard operation was raised by Opposition Liberal Leader Robert Nixon who said he had discussed with officials of a Toronto newspaper the possibility of publishing extracts from the legislature question period.

Mr. Nixon said he was told this was not possible because a verbatim record of the question period is not available in time.

In other legislature business:

—Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park), accused Correctional Services Minister Allan Grossman of preventing inmates of the Vanier Centre for Women in nearby Brampton from writing members of the legislature. Mr. Grossman then accused Dr. Shulman of distortion and of intimidating female staff members at the centre on a recent visit.

—Premier Robarts rejected opposition charges that fiscal figures presented to the federal-provincial tax structure committee had been misleading. He said the estimate conformed with the rules established for the committee and the figures never were intended to represent actual budgetary requirements, but only how much money the various government departments would need to do a proper job.

Robarts Outlines Legislature Rules

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature will meet daily Monday through Thursday at 2 p.m. and from 10 a.m. on Fridays until it rises for a summer holiday probably in June, Premier John Robarts said Wednesday.

He told the legislature evening sessions will end at 10:30 p.m., unless otherwise ordered, and temporary rules adopted as an experiment last year will be continued until they are put into permanent form by a legislature committee.

The session sits until March 19 when it breaks for an Easter holiday ending March 31.

It wil break again on an April date still to be named so that all members can attend a special provincial-municipal conference on urban problems.

The 1970-71 budget also will be presented to the house in April.

An experiment begun in the second session of debating some departmental spending estimates in committee rather than in the house will be repeated.

PCs, Shulman Resume Feud

TORONTO (CP) — The third session of the 28th Ontario legislature opened Wednesday in the same way the second session ended last December—with Morton Shulman charging the government with permitting "cruel and unusual punishment" of prisoners in institutions and cabinet ministers accusing Dr. Shulman of irresponsibility.

Dr. Shulman, New Democratic Party member for Toronto High Park, interrupted the opening business of the house on a point of privilege in which he charged that mail addressed to him from a woman in Mercer Institute had been intercepted.

The letter was found in a search of the women's file at the institute, he said, and it was marked for rewriting by the woman "in a more accurate way."

He said the woman was told the facts were true but might cause harm to the institute.

The letter had not been delivered two weeks later, and the prisoner was punished "in a cruel and unusual way," Dr. Shulman said.

She had been doing part-time work through an employment agency, but two days after Dr. Shulman had intervened prospective employers were being told where she came from, the NDP member said.

Allan Grossman, minister of correctional services, admitted the woman's letter had been held up contrary to department orders, but he said Dr. Shulman was trying to "make headlines on a completely misleading story."

While Dr. Shulman had not asked him about the case, "I happen to know it because when that member visits one of our institutions he leaves enough debris to cause a disturbance."

Mr. Grossman said the woman was part of a therapeutic community at Vanier Institute of the Family in which both staff and patient members of a cottage become personally involved in the activities and problems of all.

An employee felt it was better therapy for the letter to be discussed and broke a department regulation that all mail to members of Parliament and the legislature must be delivered unhindered, he said.

"I will have more to say later on the manner in which the member for High Park attempted to intimidate the employee," Mr. Grossman said.

Over Counter Market To Be Assessed Daily

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario executive of the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada has been named to assemble and publish daily information on the prices at which securities have been traded in the over-the-counter market.

Bert Lawrence, minister of financial and commercial affairs, told the legislature Wednesday the recognition made under the Securities Act confirms a recommendation made by Commissioner D. S. Beatty of the Ontario Securities Commission in a report on the financing of exploration and development companies.

Mr. Beatty called for a centralized agency to collect statistics on market prices, transactions and volumes for both unlisted mining and industrial stocks.

Mr. Lawrence said the agency also will provide general surveillance of the unlisted stock market.

A pilot project covering a selected list of active industrial stocks has been started and the list will be expanded until almost all unlisted trading in Ontario is covered.

In a news release following the minister's announcement, the Securities Commission and the Investment Dealers Association said the system is designed to provide statistics and inform the public, fostering a better market.

Initially, all transactions in 73 of the most actively traded stocks will be reported by dealers to a Toronto data centre. It will employ a computer to report at 8 p.m. daily volumes of issues traded and high and low prices. There also will be weekly and monthly reports.

Robarts Opposed To Daily Television

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said Wednesday there will be no full-time coverage of the Ontario legislature by television "as far as I am concerned."

However, the use of TV in the house is a matter for the legislature to decide and he expected a decision should come from an all-party committee.

"The experience yesterday and the discomfort we all felt shows the impracticality of TV coverage day by day," he told the legislature.

Cameras, accompanied by banks of hot lights, were used Tuesday for live coverage of the speech from the throne.

Mr. Robarts said there have been suggestions that the debate on the throne speech be televised in full but said "I don't know if I care to deliver my three or four-hour contribution in the circumstances of yesterday."

Hydro Icebreaker

The Niagara Queen slams into 10-foot deep ice on the Niagara River above Ontario Hydro's control dam one mile above the Horseshoe Falls. The icebreaker, powered by two 225 horsepower engines, keeps the ice broken and moving. There is a danger that if enough ice accumulates and enters the power plants, it could freeze up operations. In left background are some of the 18 control dams which hold back water for use in generating power. During winter months the dams have to allow at least 50,000 gallons of water a second to drop over the falls.

Revised Tax Plan Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto accountant said Wednesday controversy over the white paper on tax reform could force the government either to reject any suggested amendments or scrap the white paper entirely.

J. K. Gibson, a partner in the chartered accountancy firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Co. of Toronto, said the only satisfactory way to avoid these unacceptable extremes is for Ottawa to consider a revised program which could be adopted in stages.

He told a tax seminar sponsored by the Metropolitan Toronto Board of Trade that "a practical program of staged tax reform is urgently required."

He suggested a three-stage program of tax reform to begin with higher personal exemptions and some changes in the rate structure to take effect on Jan. 1, 1971.

The second stage, to be implemented Jan. 1, 1972, could include a capital gains tax and a further revision of the rate structure.

The third stage could introduce measures affecting the integration of personal and corporate income taxes and the international aspects of tax reform.

"If something along these lines is not put forward soon, we will be faced with the unsavory choice of accepting the white paper pretty much as it is or of starting all over again — presumably with a different government," Mr. Gibson said.

Protests Widespread

Criticism of Tax White Paper Quietly Received by Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson's proposals to make sweeping and basic changes to Canada's income tax law have provoked criticism and protests that are spilling beyond the parliamentary arena.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has launched a cross-country speaking tour, which has been called a crusade against the tax proposals.

Advertising agencies, teachers and small businessmen are promoting postcard and letter campaigns calling on MPs to see that the proposals are shelved. House of Commons secretaries are staggering under the load of correspondence.

Mr. Benson, however, is responding to the criticism quietly. Some of his advisers are hoping he and the Liberal MPs will soon start to answer the criticism more forcefully.

The tax change proposals were made public in a white paper last Nov. 7, and criticism now has begun to concentrate on seven or eight of the more than 40 proposals made in the white paper.

The Canadian Council for Fair Taxation, headed by John Bulloch, a Toronto teacher, has a $300,000 budget for speeches against the white paper proposals, and plans a May rally.

Unsigned full-page newspaper advertisements are urging voters and taxpayers to write to their MPs. The advertisements say the proposals will make it more difficult to start a new business, to retire outside of Canada, or to build up any large amount of capital.

Mr. Benson appears to be taking the criticism in his stride. An aide disclosed that the minister found it amusing that W. G. Leonard, the former senior partner of the minister's old accountancy firm in Kingston, Ont., should criticize him for dragging in "such political issues as the bonusing of low-income taxpayers by raising exemption levels."

Mr. Benson has said repeatedly the tax ideas in his 96-page 50,000-word white paper are only proposals, and that he wants them widely discussed.

Finance department people plan to step up their efforts to counter criticism. They add that many of the proposals have caused no complaint. They liked this comment of one speaker at a white paper symposium at Queen's University:

"It is impossible to be, intelligently, either for or against the white paper, it contains so much."

The principal changes proposed in the white paper, the criticisms most strongly voiced against them, and the answers being made to the criticisms, are these:

Tax Rates—The white paper proposes raising the basic personal exemption for a single person to $1,400 from $1,000, and for a married couple to $2,800 from $2,000.

New exemptions would be allowed for child-care expenses of working mothers, and up to $150 a year for the general expense of earning an income from employment.

Tax rates would be adjusted to reduce the federal and provincial tax load on single persons earning up to $4,000 a year, and on married taxpayers earning up to $10,000 a year with no or up to two dependents. Rate increases would be highest in the $15,000-a-year bracket, and would be reduced for those with incomes over $40,000.

Chief criticisms of the new rates are that those below the so-called poverty line of $2,000 for a single person or $4,000 for a family of four will still be taxed, while the rich have their tax rates cut.

This is the nub of NDP criticism. Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo), leading critic on the Commons committee, has called it farcical and no reform at all.

Mr. Benson's reply is that, based on 1967 incomes, about 750,000 of the country's 6,650,000 taxpayers will be taken off the tax rolls and pay no income tax under the proposed changes.

For the upper incomes, Mr. Benson argues the capital gains tax will more than offset the lower income tax rates.

Capital Gains—The white paper proposes taxing income from the sale of assets at the same rate as ordinary income, except that only half the profits on the sale of stock in widely-held Canadian corporations would be taxed, after offsetting half of any stock market losses.

Chief criticism is that taxing the profits from investment in land, stock or other capital assets will discourage investment, making it more necessary for Canadian firms to find financing abroad. It would encourage people to spend rather than save.

Gordon Sharwood, former chief general manager of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, says the capital gains tax and other proposals will be "discouraging initiative, reducing risk capital pools, and making it difficult for small companies to grow."

Mr. Benson's reply is that this has not been the experience in other countries.

Periodic Revaluation—The white paper proposes that owners of common stock in widely-held Canadian corporations should be required to pay taxes on any increased value of their holdings every five years, even without selling the stock. This would apply to both individuals and companies investing in other companies.

The main criticism of this is that taxpayers might be forced to sell their stock holdings in order to pay the tax. The taxpayer might also be taxed on a paper profit one year that would turn into a loss before he sold the stock. The taxing of capital gains, whether realized or not, could coincide with estate taxes and compound the burden.

The revaluation proposal is one that Mr. Benson has said might not work.

However, he argues that capital losses will be offset by gains, and that revenue department computers will automatically average tax burdens on individuals over a period of years.

The estate tax was recently revised, freeing from taxation all bequests to a spouse, and the periodic revaluation plan applies only to common stock in widely-held Canadian companies—not to all capital assets.

Small Business—The white paper proposes a single tax rate of about 50 per cent on the profits of all businesses, doing away with the present lower rate of 21 per cent on the first $35,000 of corporation profits.

Mr. Benson says the intention is not to hurt small business but to see that all businesses pay taxes at the same rate. The owners of small businesses could choose under the plan to be taxed at their individual rates of personal income if that is to their advantage.

Inflation—Many critics see the combination of white paper proposals as adding to business costs, drying up available investment funds, and encouraging people to spend rather than save.

Among the supporters of this view are Robert M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association and a member of the Economic Council of Canada, G. A. Hart, chairman of the Bank of Montreal, and N. J. McKinnon, chairman of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Mr. Benson says the white paper is "neutral" on economic restraint or incentive, and that by the time changes are made in the Income Tax Act—possibly in 1971—the economic climate may have changed.

Mining—The metal mining industry has been the loudest in its condemnation of the white paper proposals, which include doing away with the present three-year tax holiday on new mines and revising the rate at which they can escape taxes on their wasting assets.

Finance department sources say the proposals affecting mining will be reassessed, but mining has had a favored position in Canadian industry for many years and world demand for metals will continue strong.

Canadian Auto-makers Fight Pollution

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Following steps being taken by their parent companies in the United States, Canadian auto manufacturers have committed themselves to extensive programs to control environmental pollution—not only from their products but also in their manufacturing processes and plants.

But they are finding out that clean air and water can be quite expensive.

Collectively, Canada's Big Three auto makers are spending more than $36,450,000 to improve the quality of the air and water in and around their plants.

Some of this money already has been spent, and much more will be spent in the next few years.

General Motors of Canada Ltd. alone is spending $26,200,000 on air and water purification programs in its plants in Ontario and Quebec.

Chrysler Canada has already spent in excess of $4,250,000 in its Windsor plants and its program is virtually complete.

Fort of Canada is spending at least $6,000,000, at least $4,000,000 of which will go into its Windsor manufacturing operations.

General Motors already has spent $4,500,000 on its plants in Windsor, Oshawa and St. Catharines, in a program that is scheduled to continue without interruption for another three years.

"Responsibility for clean air and water will not end at any point in time," Roland S. Withers, president of General Motors of Canada, has said.

"The newest changes in production methods will be replaced in future years by still-newer methods, and these will undoubtedly call for new purification techniques. It will be a never-ending challenge."

Chrysler Canada Ltd. early last year put into operation a $3,000,000 waste treatment plant to process all effluents from its passenger car assembly and engine manufacturing plants. That facility is capable of handling the waste treatment requirements of a city of 25,000.

Two years ago, the company completed a $1,250,000 air pollution control program at its Windsor foundry. That plant, however, will be closed down by the middle of this year.

As part of its pollution control program, Ford recently put a dust and fume collection system into operation at its foundry here, eliminating the cloud that used to hang over the city's east end. That program cost $425,000 and a $740,000 waste treatment plant that will eventually handle effluent from two engine plants is under construction and scheduled for completion this year.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For February 27

Your birthday today: Inventions, new technical methods, more understanding of your own best interests characterize your coming year's career. You must take the initiative alone at times, and trust that others will follow and join forces after you have made the early breakthrough.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You are so busy getting started that you may leave somebody or something essential behind. Make a list, count noses, and master your eagerness for progress.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Pay attention mainly to your work and the promotion of your career. Other matters recede into the background for later review. Your perspective improves as the day advances.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You are well commended and reported. Carry on as though nothing is unusual. Take time and trouble to check your health-maintenance program.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Purposeful use of your time for aesthetic, balanced work pays off beyond immediate financial reward. Your money has wings and takes off at the sight of luxuries or in answer to emotional pleadings. Avoid installment buying.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): It is your turn to ask favors wherever anybody has benefited from your co-operation. Just make sure you really want whatever it is and can put the results to immediate use in conjunction with other factors.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Check any deliveries for errors or damage in shipping before signing. Incidents lack the precision and clarity needed to satisfy your standards, but there's little to be done about it. Short cuts are of no avail.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Trust your luck with finances, moderately speculative investments. Competition is a bit easier to cope with. Tidy up your work so that next week will get off to a smooth start.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Accept and carry responsibility gracefully—the authority that goes with it is on the way. Increase your savings rate; set some sort of pattern.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Windfalls, fringe benefits, other extra money seems headed your way. As it arrives put it to good use without fanfare or excitement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Select your company rather carefully so as to avoid gossip or being a subject of idle talk. Business travels and entertaining promise well. Take brief rest-breaks beyond normal habit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your reward for recent efforts arrives. Try to adjust quickly and expansively. The feeling of competence may be more important than learning skills.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The temptation is toward excessive activity. Make sure travel is essential to your immediate goals, and if so, cover the whole repertory of issues on a single trip. The evening finds you saying too much, in all likelihood.

SUMMER SCHOOL AT TRENT OFFERS YOU...

small group teaching

30 courses in 14 subject areas

an unmatched summer setting

Trent University's campus on the Otonabee River at Peterborough offers summer school students an unusually attractive combination of small-group teaching with a vacationland setting. Tutorials and seminars are used to complement lectures and to provide for individual participation in the teaching-learning experience.

Summer courses for 1970 are offered in: Anthropology (3), Biology (2), Chemistry (1), Economics (1), English (4), French (1 credit, 1 non-credit), Geography (3), History (3), Mathematics (1), Philosophy (1), Physics (1), Politics (1), Psychology (4), Sociology (3).

Trent's course in Canadian Indian Studies will be offered as a summer course; it is a survey of the physical anthropology, pre-history and ethnology of the native population of the Americas. Other courses include a fourth-year Biology course in Entomology designed especially for secondary school teachers and a second-year course in Urban Geography to be given by Dr. D. M. Morrish, University of Exeter, England.

Applications must be received by 1 May, 1970.

St. Boniface Festival to Honor Memory of Early Voyageurs

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP) — Family ties from the times when the Western wilderness lured the boldest of the young men of Quebec will be recalled at the St. Boniface Festival de Voyageur opening today.

Sashes will swirl and drink will flow freely, even on Sunday, in four lusty days of winter fun from another era, including snowshoe and canoe competitions portaging, a costume ball, a moccasin dance, torch light parades and fireworks displays.

The winter carnival was organized by this French flavored city on the Red River, across from Winnipeg, as a part of Manitoba's 1970 centennial celebrations.

In its few serious moments it will also honor two grand names from the fur trade past —Marie Anne Gaboury and Jean Baptiste Lagimodiere who were married 163 years ago in Maskinonge, Que.

Marie Anne is generally credited with being the first white woman to live in the northwest wilderness that later became a part of the young dominion of Canada.

Jean Baptiste Lagimodiere, a son of Maskinonge, voyageur and buffalo hunter, was of a hero's stamp.

In October, 1815, he set out to carry to the Earl of Selkirk in Montreal a message describing the destruction of Selkirk's Red River settlement by elements of the North-West company.

Skirting company posts, he arrived at Montreal in March, 1816, after a journey of approximately 1,800 miles accomplished partly by canoe but mainly on snowshoes.

On his return with Selkirk's reply, he was captured by Indians who delivered him into the hands of the nor'westers at Fort William. After a period of imprisonment, he was released and returned to the Red River settlement.

Steps to reforge the link between the Red River country and Maskinonge were taken this January when Georges Forest, official voyageur, visited the Quebec community with Mrs. Forest.

They invited citizens of the town to come to St. Boniface for the festival and the offer was taken up by nearly 80 of them who are making the trip by chartered jet.

"We sure never expected that many," says Mr. Forest.

The visiting delegation will include Maskinonge mayor Guy Otis and Mrs. Otis, and many of the guests carry the Gaboury name.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Blood Storehouse Of Many Products

Blood is a storehouse of many products manufactured in various parts of the body. These factories transform the air we breathe, the food we eat, etc., into important material for health and survival.

Among these are sodium and potassium (in addition to red and white blood cells, blood platelets, enzymes, hormones and other life - giving substances).

We've all heard of low salt diets to control excess sodium in the blood serum during heart disease and high blood pressure. But I wonder how many know of the importance of potassium. When there is too little of this in the blood, the patient may become exhausted — and doesn't know why.

Often overlooked is taking strong anti - hypertensive drugs like the thiazids and mercurials which may cause an abnormal loss of potassium from the body. For this reason I think you should be willing to take occasional checkups to determine if your potassium level in the blood is normal.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I read your answer to Mrs. T., regarding the loss of potassium as a possible cause of her weakness after taking thiazid drugs for a long time without a checkup.

I have a friend who took large doses of thyroid and thiazid pills for months without returning to the doctor. Although she did not have a real mental breakdown, she had to be placed in a mental hospital for several months. One morning she went to Mass, wrapped in a sheet — absolutely nothing else! She improved after doctors found a potassium deficiency and put her on potassium chloride.

Naturally, I am concerned, although I don't take any thyroid tablets and my doctor has me on potassium chloride to prevent trouble. — Mrs. B.

Comment: I doubt that the potassium deficiency alone was responsible for your friend's mental breakdown. Therefore, stop worrying so much about it. Especially when you say your doctor checks on your potassium level and prescribes necessary potassium medication.

I have seen many hypertensive patients, and those who took diuretics (thiazids, etc.) over long periods to reduce, who complained of extreme fatigue. They blamed their exhaustion on their high blood pressure or on their reduced dietary intake. But the real trouble was their lack of a normal amount of potassium. After a few weeks of proper drug regulation, their tiredness disappeared.

What I have said today is important. Too many exhausted high blood pressure patients and "reducers" and heart patients may not realize that some of their symptoms may be due to potassium shortage.

For Mr. J.: As you have a painful bunion on each foot and your bone specialist has advised operation, I would forget your friend's well-meaning advice that such operations will cripple you.

How you still manage to walk miles delivering mail puzzles me. Some people suffer pain and disability needlessly because they take a friend's advice rather than a competent doctor's.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: When I work I don't hear it, but when I sit or lie down, at times I hear my heart pumping. My doctor hasn't found anything wrong. Is it anything to worry about? — Mr. B.

Comment: Often this is a common meaningless symptom in healthy persons.

Manufacturers' Association Wants Parley on Sales Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Manufacturers' Association Wednesday suggested to Finance Minister Benson that a federal-provincial committee be set up to decide on future changes in sales taxes in Canada.

In a pre-budget submission to Mr. Benson, CMA officials said they were disappointed the government plans to take no action to reform the sales tax structure until recommendations in the white paper on tax reform regarding income taxes have been implemented.

"It is most important that the government makes known its views on taxes on goods and services as early as possible," the association's brief stated.

As a start, it recommended that a proposed federal retail sales tax be imposed on the same base as now used in the nine provinces with a provincial retail sales tax. Alberta has no sales tax.

Other recommendations of the brief included:

—Exemption of all materials used in manufacturing from excise tax, as well as air and water pollution control equipment, air conditioning and fire fighting equipment.

—Inclusion of property acquired to reduce air pollution for accelerated, 50-per-cent capital cost allowance.

—Continued accelerated capital cost allowances for water pollution control equipment.

—Clarification of the government's policy on capital cost allowances, as indicated in the white paper.

MacEachen Defends New Immigration Trend

OAKVILLE (CP) — Alan J. MacEachen, federal minister of manpower and immigration, said Wednesday Canadians should not be disturbed because changing immigration patterns are "admitting more black and brown people into Canada."

Canada does not have "the elements of conflict which in the United States have led to tension between black and white," he told a meeting of the Ontario Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"Nor should we import or allow to be imported that kind of dissension from the United States or any country," he said.

THIRD PRIZE: A CASH AWARD OF $50.00
WON BY: ...... J. C. WATT & SON, R.R. 1, Lancaster, Ontario

All of the above have been regular customers for many years and we wish to congratulate them and to thank the hundreds of other farmers who took advantage of this Early Booking promotion and helped to make it an unqualified success. Our plans are already formed to repeat this contest another year.

As a matter of interest, some 60% or more of the draw tickets issued went to our customers in Northern and Eastern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes who have long held the habit of ordering early to be sure of price and supply. Although we have enjoyed a remarkable increase in early local business this year, we would hope to further this trend in future in order to spread out our selling season so that we can continue to give all customers the best of service.

CFB Rink Stopped

WELLAND (CP) — Bea Cole's London rink will need only one win against the Kingsville Rink of Betty Peindera Thursday to take the southern Ontario women's curling championship.

The London rink remains undefeated after a bye in Wednesday's action while the Kingsville rink has already had one loss in the double knockout tournament.

The Peindera rink moved into the finals with two wins in Wednesday's play. Her rink downed the Nini Munch rink of Toronto 9-7 in morning play and then edged the Canadian Forces Base Borden rink of Eleanor MacIntosh 8-6 in the afternoon.

The Peindera rink, with its previous loss, will have to win two games Thursday against London for the title while the London rink can end the tournament with a single win.

The MacIntosh rink had qualified for afternoon semi-final play by defeating the Lindsay rink of Fern Reynolds 9-4 in the morning round.

Quinte Golfer Wins In Texas

A Bay of Quinte Golf Club member, Mrs. Mary Morton, of Roblin Lake, teamed with Duncan Dewar, a fellow Ontario resident, to win the Winter Visitor Golf Tournament held at the Riverview golf course at Brownsville, Texas earlier this month.

The competition, held as part of the Charro Days Mexican Festival, was restricted to Canadian visitors at the annual festivities at Brownsville.

The pair shot a 42 to win the nine-hole event.

The Original Knight SOLUNAR TABLES When To Fish Or Hunt

The schedule of Solunar periods, as printed below, has been taken from Richard Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Use Eastern Standard Time.

"The Hardest Working Classified Want Ads are the ones that are Written the Best!"

Follow These Helpful Suggestions For Writing A Good Want Ad.

1—IT'S ALWAYS BEST to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale, start your advertisement with the location.

2—Be CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete or definite information. Always include "price".

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always insert your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, give a preferred time to have prospects contact you.

4—THE GREATEST READER ATTENTION can be secured for your advertisement by using consecutive insertions.

You can stop your ad in the event of results, and then you pay only for the days it is published.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know (about your offer). The answer you give will make a good Classified Ad.

6—CLASSIFIED readers are already interested in buying your used or new merchandise. These people have the money and are already in the market to buy. So give them every advantage you can with good ad copy.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL to bring satisfaction do so, not through any lack of readership, but because they are often carelessly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.

Mideast Topic of Talks By Pompidou and Nixon

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Franco-American differences over Middle East policy are expected to take priority today when French President Georges Pompidou meets President Nixon at the White House before leaving to inspect the space centre in Florida.

Pompidou began his American tour Tuesday.

Nixon predicted Wednesday night at a French embassy dinner their talks would produce real progress on fundamental issues.

Nixon himself is close to a decision on an Israeli request for more Phantom and Skyhawk warplanes to offset Russian aid against Israel, combined with the sale of 100 Mirage jets to Libya, led to a largescale boycott by members of the House of Representatives and Senators when Pompidou addressed the Congress Wednesday.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange were mixed in light mid-morning trading today.

Mechanical difficulties with the exchange's computer delayed exact first-hour trading results. The exchange said it hoped to have the computer operating normally by noon today.

Provisional 11 a.m. indexes had industrials down .06 to 182.61. Western oils were up .47 to 204.31 and base metals .01 to 113.22. Golds were unchanged at 146.59.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 642,000 shares compared with 451,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Trading in shares of Denison Mines and Roman Corp. was delayed at the opening pending releases from the companies. Roman holds about 25 per cent of Denison's outstanding shares.

Roman closed Wednesday at 11, up ¾, and Denison at 40, up 1¾.

Wednesday, a late surge sent prices to their best daily gains of 1970.

The market held at a mixed position for most of the session but shot ahead in the final hour of trading following a similar move on Wall Street.

The upswing was touched off by reports that the Lincoln National Bank in Philadelphia planned to reduce its prime rate to eight per cent from 8½.

But major New York and Canadian banks indicated that the move had no significance and that they would not follow with similar reductions.

On index, industrials rose 1.42 to 182.67, western oils 2.17 to 203.84 and base metals .70 to 113.21. Golds slipped .81 to 146.59.

Volume was light with 1,913,000 shares traded compared with 2,184,000 Tuesday.

Sixteen of the 17 industrial components advanced, led by steels; real estate issues declined.

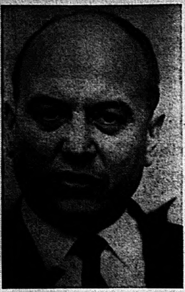
Benson Reports Surplus, First in Thirteen Years



He Has Surplus

Hon. E. J. Benson of Kingston, Canada's minister of finance, today tabled in the Commons a white paper showing a surplus for the fiscal year ending March 31.

Budget Paper Highlights

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Federal budget expected to show surplus of $455,000,000 — first in 13 years — at close of current fiscal year March 31.

Some increase in unemployment rates expected in 1970 following last year's average jobless rate of 4.7 per cent of the labor force.

More moderate increases forecast this year in prices and costs than last, when con sumer price rose by 4.5 per cent and disposable personal incomes by 4.2 per cent after taxes and discounting inflation.

Consumer spending likely to advance, but more slowly for automobiles and other durable goods and for services.

Housing starts expected to drop to about 200,000 dwelling units from 210,415 last year, but with more public and low-rent homes.

Net national debt projected at $16,881,000,000 March 31, down from $17,336,000,000 at the end of the last financial year — a reduction of $32 in the debt for each Canadian to $793.

Price Pressure Is Said Easing

OTTAWA (CP)—A budget surplus of $445,000,000, representing a turn-around of more than $1,000,000,000 from last year's deficit, is forecast in pre-budget background papers tabled in the Commons today by Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

The surplus, for the fiscal year ending March 31, is the first in 13 years. It compares with a deficit of $576,100,000 in the fiscal year ended last March 31 and the record deficit of $794,800,000 in the previous year.

The $445,000,000 surplus compares with Mr. Benson's forecast of $250,000,000 when he delivered his 1969-70 budget speech last June 3.

The last surplus, in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1957, was $257,500,000. The biggest federal surplus was $676,100,000 in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1948.

The budget papers, setting the stage for Mr. Benson's 1970-71 budget speech Thursday, March 12, said considerable progress has been made in the first phase of fighting inflation—reducing the growth of demands on the economy.

Looking to the economic prospects for the calendar year 1970, the 232-page book says:

"It is expected that before the end of the year, the continued effect of the slowdown in the growth of demand, the much less buoyant profit situation, and more moderate advances in wage costs will be beginning to show in smaller rates of price increase."

For Other Stories On Pre-Budget Papers See Page 8

The swing from deficit to surplus in the federal budget was accomplished by higher taxes and severe spending cuts. The surplus has been used to finance government lending on housing mortgages and other investments.

This reduces the net debt of the country to $16,880,800,000 at March 31 from $17,335,800,000 a year ago.

Estimated revenues for the fiscal year ending next March 31 are $12,270,000,000, up from $10,191,100,000 last fiscal year. Expenditures are estimated at $11,815,000,000 compared with $10,767,200,000.

The budget papers noted that these figures are based on the government accounts for the first 10 months of the fiscal year and estimates for February and March. Final accounting for the year takes place later and the figures may be different when they are released in July or August.

No Municipal Lotteries Allowed in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — There will be no municipally-operated lotteries in Ontario under permissive amendments to the Criminal Code, Bert Lawrence, financial and commercial affairs minister, said Thursday.

Mr. Lawrence, who told the legislature the regulations for the operation of lotteries went into effect Wednesday, said later:

"It is not my intention to license municipalities to run lotteries in their own right."

The House of Commons Hansard and statements by federal justice department spokesmen indicate the intention and interpretation of the legislation, and "both clearly suggest that municipalities as such are not to be recipients of permission to operate lotteries," he said in an interview.

The law on lotteries was liberalized in amendments to the Criminal Code which became effective Jan. 1. Responsibility for administering the law was passed to the cabinets of provincial governments.

Mr. Lawrence's department was made agent for the government in handling the responsibility. Licences for lotteries with prizes totalling no more than $3,500 are issued by municipalities. Any which offer prizes of greater amounts must be approved by a lotteries advisory board which represents several provincial departments.

Mr. Lawrence said there are certain to be court challenges to the regulations as they apply to municipalities and, although the provincial government will not launch any, he "looks forward" to clarification by the courts.

One area that might be questioned, he said, is whether such "quasi-municipal" organizations as hospital boards could be considered charitable organizations, which are permitted to operate lotteries.

Agnew Wants To Drive 'Kooks' Off Front Page

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew has called on the country's governors to join in the fight to drive what he variously describes as "kooks," "societal misfits" and "bizarre extremists" from their "pre-emptive positions" on newspaper front pages and on television screens.

In a speech Thursday to the National Governors Conference, the vice-president said:

"The threat of revolution" is a "clear and present danger" in the United States. The greatest threat to the country is "not the war in Vietnam, nor inflation, nor the environment - - - it is: Will the government of this country remain in the hands of its elected officials or will it descend to the streets?

"Never in our history have we paid so much attention to so many odd characters. Twenty-five years ago, the tragic-comic antics of such societal misfits would have brought the establishment running after them with butterfly nets rather than television cameras.

"It is in this inordinate attention to the bizarre, this preoccupation with the dramatic, this rationalization of the ridiculous, that we threaten the progress of our nation."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: It was another clear cold night across Northern Ontario. Over the rest of Ontario there was snow as a weather disturbance moved into the Great Lakes area. As this system moves eastward into Quebec the snow will change to a few flurries and northerly winds will bring colder temperatures.

Pompidou Meets Leading Jews

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — French President Georges Pompidou, met by orderly picketing on his arrival Thursday night, embarked today on a busy schedule featuring a visit with local Jewish leaders who oppose his country's sale of Mirage jets to Libya.

A crowd of 600, by police estimate, met Pompidou with a mixture of boos and applause as he was whisked from a limousine into the St. Francis Hotel, where he and his wife are staying in a $350-a-day suite.

Barricades kept demonstrators across the street from the hotel's main entrance facing Union Square. Helmeted police ringed the hotel.

Pompidou's plane arrived an hour late from Cape Kennedy, Fla., where he made a whirlwind tour of the spaceport. A San Francisco rally protesting his visit already had subsided.

Pickets carried signs reading, "Peace is not a Mirage," and "Et tu Pompidou, listen to your people."

Britain Wants Laos Action

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government is in favor of international diplomatic action aimed at restoring peace to Laos, a foreign office spokesman said today.

But the foreign office has not received any proposal from the Laotian government for the convening of a Geneva-type conference on the situation in Laos, the spokesman added.

Britain and the Soviet Union were co-chairman of the 1962 Geneva conference which agreed to make and keep Laos neutral.

Farmers to Be Paid Not to Plant Wheat

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government today announced a one-shot program to pay western farmers to all but eliminate the 1970 wheat crop.

Under the $100,000,000 program, wheat farmers in Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and parts of British Columbia will be paid $6 an acre for wheat land switched to summerfallow, in effect taken out of production.

The federal payment rises to $10 an acre for farmers who switch wheat land to a forage crop such as hay or grass for more than one year.

As a powerful additional incentive to take wheat land out of production, a new delivery quota system has been devised for the 1970-71 crop year in which the fall harvest falls.

Toronto's Jobless Up A Third

TORONTO (CP) — Unemployment in Metropolitan Toronto rose 33 per cent in January, forcing the welfare department to help out the overworked unemployment insurance commission, Metro Welfare Commissioner John Anderson said Thursday.

Mr. Anderson told Metro welfare and housing committee that the rise has created a big backlog of applications for benefits and the commission cannot handle them quickly enough—many unemployed must wait up to eight weeks.

Murder Attempt Charged

Napanee Men Recovering from Pig Parasite; Roommate Hunted

MONTREAL — Two young Napanee men may be released from hospital here within 10 days — after treatment for a parasite infection which has led to warrants of attempted murder being issued against a U.S. student.

In all four students of Macdonald College here are being treated for a parasite known as ascaris — endemic to pigs but never before detected in humans.

The Napanee men are Richard Davis, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen B. Davis, and Keith Fern, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fern.

Doctors at Queen Elizabeth Hospital here said yesterday the two, along with fellow students William Butler, 22, of Richmond, Que. and David Risk, 24, of St. Paul d'Abbotsford, Que., are "making "remarkably rapid" recoveries.

Police are still seeking Eric Kranz, a 23-year-old graduate from New York City, on warrants charging him with the attempted murder of the four men — his former roommates.

The four victims were taken to hospital two weeks ago suffering from an unknown ailment apparently connected with the food they had eaten.

Police say Kranz, a postgraduate student in parasitology at Macdonald, left Canada by air for New York about 12 days ago. Police say he was asked to leave the apartment because he wasn't paying his share of the rent.

It took doctors five days to isolate the parasite involved.

Once swallowed in food, the parasite moves from the intestines to the liver and then to the lungs where it multiplies rapidly and causes severe swelling of the lung walls. It can be fatal, doctors said.

It develops into worms reaching six inches in length. These worms can lay eggs at the rate of 2,000,000 a day.

The ensuing disease manifests itself in pneumonia.

Belleville Family to Return To Iran for Two More Years

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

It often gets to 135 degrees in the summer and once only rained for five days in a six-month period.

Donald Belfry, of 134 Hastings Drive, can recall almost everything he observed about Iran where he lived from 1962 until 1965, working for the Ontario Hydro Commission.

In 1962 the Ontario Hydro agreed to supply technical assistance to Iran and Mr. Belfry left for the country to assist in the commissioning of two generator units for the Khusestan Water and Power Authority — and the training of authority staff.

The Ontario Commission also has workers in Ghana, Nigeria and India offering the same sort of technical assistance.

There have been no Canadians in Iran since 1966 and now, Mr. Belfry and his family are returning for a two-year stint leaving Canada on March 7.

This time he will be supervisor of operation and maintenance and the commissioning of four other generators.

At the time of Mr. Belfry's first sojourn to Iran, there was only one other hydraulic station which meant a limited supply of water operating over the peak period.

Mr. Belfry had very little trouble training authority employees despite the fact he speaks very little Pushtu.

"The people we trained were high school students and had already learned some English he said. They were extremely good students."

Mr. Belfry and his wife made a number of natural observations about the country during their stay.

It's a different culture, very old and quite different. Things appear as if they haven't changed for 2,000 years. There are camels and donkeys in the streets."

Mrs. Belfry explained that there was no television or radio in the English language except on occasion when England's BBC could be picked up.

For music they turned to tape recorders and records.

Of course, there were other things to do. The women in Iran make their own bread, and Mrs. Belfry fell in with that custom.

But the quietness of the country was one of the adjustments the Belfry's had to make.

"It's very quiet. We certainly learn to live together," she said. "And the summer is so hot, the children are indoors all summer." The Belfry's spent their days and nights in the mountainous desert, where temperatures range from freezing point to 135 degrees above zero.

The closest village to them is 15 miles away and the desert is so hot the trip to the village by car requires the need for a jug of water at all times.

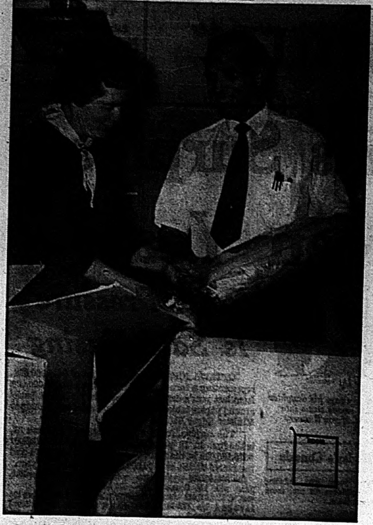
The heat was such a factor in their lives that when they returned to Canada and it rained, ironically, every day, they felt it was a "treat".

But despite the difference of living in Iran the Belfrys are looking forward to their pourney.

"We're quite interested to get back and see the things that have changed," Mr. Belfry said.

He will be working with a protection and control officer from Ontario Hydro offices in Toronto.

The Belfrys will leave Toronto and travel to London where they will stay for three days. From there they will fly to Athens for another three days. Then they will fly to Iran.



Experienced Packing Style

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Belfry discuss their methods of packing for their two-year stay in Iran. They have gone through this once before when they made a previous journey to the Persian country.

Piasecki Still Awaiting Answer on Contract Bid

PICTON — "Piasecki's role in Prince Edward Country remains the same as it was when the company initially located, but unforseen circumstances touching all of Canada — for example, financial restriction — make it imperative to progress more slowly," said resident representative Walter Symmons today.

Mr. Symmons confirmed that the Picton branch of the Philadelphia-based helicopter company has not yet received a government decision concerning the contract bid to build and manufacture light helicopters for use by the armed forces.

Development of the Pathfinder helicopter, however, is still very much a reality. Mr. Symmons noted that there may be modifications to its development and design in view of progress in aeronautical design since its inception.

Asked if Piasecki Aircraft would soon provide employment for county residents Mr. Symmons suggested that jobs could result through a decision to lease portions of the company's Picton holdings.

He noted that Piasecki has publicized the availability of parts of its holdings here as a potential location for other industries. By becoming a landlord to tenant industries, preferably related to the aircraft industry, Piasecki possibly could provide work indirectly for county residents.

Although several industries had expressed interest in Piasecki's Picton facilities to date no company has leased any portion of the holdings.

Sunbury Post Office Closed by Department

TWEED — Lack of business has resulted in the closing of the Sunbury post office, according to Kingston Postmaster, Stuart Hackett.

The village post coffice closed officially February 23, 1970.

Residents of the village will now receive their mail on Kingston Rural Route 5. Rural Route 1, which operated out of Sunbury post office and serviced the district will be changed to Inverary, RR 2.

Sunbury is one of many smaller post offices to close within the last 12 months. Offices at Sillsville, Adolphustown, and Wilton have been closed and their routes switched to larger nearby communities.

Jones Elected

The annual meeting of Central Hastings County L.O.L. was held in Madoc Orange Hall on Tuesday, Feb. 10.

The officers for 1970 were installed by P.C.M. Bro. Gordon Jones. They are as follows: county master, Bro. Keith Clancy; deputy master, Bro. Russell Sills; chaplain, Bro. Alex McCurdy; recording secretary, Bro. Kenneth Holland; marshal, Bro. Murney Bateman; lecturer, Bro. Doug Freeburn and deputy lecturer, Bro. Gavin Adams.

Gardening Course Proposed

In addition to its physical fitness and other programs offered, the Belleville YMCA is planning to conduct a course in gardening for teenagers to assist them in obtaining summer employment.

City parks director Lloyd Syer has been asked to cooperate in conducting the course planned for the pre-summer vacation period.

Yesterday parks board members approved of a recommendation authorizing the director to discuss the matter further with the "Y" and with board approval will proceed with implementation of the program.

YMCA officials were not available today to learn further details of its proposed "green thumb" program.

BGH Students Get Certificates

Two students from Belleville General Hospital were among a group of 31 radiological technicians from Eastern Ontario who received certificates at the 12th annual graduation exercises of the Ontario Society of Radiological Technicians held in Kingston on Saturday.

The Belleville technicians receiving certificates were Mrs. Nancy McIntosh and Mrs. Janet Beare.

Graduating certificates were presented by Dr. D. C. Wollin, associate radiologist at Kingston General Hospital, while pins were presented by Dr. B. T. Colwell, chief radiologist at Hotel Dieu Hospital. The technicians' pledge was administered by Miss Gail Robinson, RT. teaching instructor at Belleville General Hospital.

Uniforms Suggested

Should Belleville parks employees be provided with uniforms?

This was a question discussed at yesterday's parks board meeting with members being divided in their acceptance of the idea. It was agreed it would be discussed again at budget time.

Parks director Lloyd Syer said that uniforms for parks employees had been adopted in many municipalities and indicated discussions had been held at staff level as to the possibility of their being made available here.

But before any budget recommendation was made he asked the feeling of members. About 12 local employees would be involved.

Lower Trent Hires First Conservation Employee

BRIGHTON — The executive of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority took a major step — the hiring of its first full-time employee — at Thursday night's annual meeting.

Hired to fill the post of secretary-treasurer was William Lawson, a Murray Township resident who was the organization's part time secretary-treasurer at the time of his appointment. He will receive a salary of $5,200 a year.

His duties include education, publicity and the preparation of minutes for all authority meetings, including the advisory board and executive. In addition he will act as the authority's direct contact with area residents and is expected to improve the organization's continuity.

Murray Township representative Cy Macdonald was returned as the authority's chairman for another year and said: "After a year-and-we can now get around to sorting things out."

Art Wartman of Warkworth was re-elected vice-chairman of the authority and all five committee heads were returned to their posts as all positions went uncontested. The committee heads are: conservation - Russ Sills, fish and wildlife - Bill Carter, forestry and land use - "Flex" McMillan, information and education - Jack Bush and water control-Claude Trumble.

Dr. R. J. Julian, the secretary of the Brighton Lions Club, attended last night's annual meeting and told the authority that the club was prepared to relinquish the remainder of its 10-year lease on 77-acres of land belonging to the John Edward Proctor estate.

This move will enable the Proctor family to deed the land over to the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority. The land is situated just west of Highway 30 with approximately 20 acres in the town of Brighton and the remainder in Brighton Township.

In another move ade last night, the authority accepted the suggestion of water control and pollution committee member Bill Menzies that a conservation cleanup day be held one Saturday in June.

Brief on Recreation Wants Trent Developed

BRIGHTON (Staff) — Proposals outlining possible future use of recreational development of the Trent Water System were revealed in the form of a brief at Thursday night's annual meeting of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority in Brighton.

At present, the Canada-Ontario Rideau - Trent - Severn Study Committee is examining the brief which suggests the development of specific areas along the Trent - Severn system to accommodate the boating public, including erection of dockage facilities in camping grounds along the Trent River to promote the tourist trade.

Recommendations, contained in the brief, include the construction of boom or finger docks at the mouth of the Trent River, along with additional boating facilities and the establishment of an information centre, possibly at the Trenton Chamber of Commerce office which is located on the shore of the Trent River not far from its mouth.

The distribution of a detailed map of the Trent System and other important data was proposed by the conservation authority's advisory board.

If the study committee so desires, a more complete survey of the Trent system could be made with the co-operation of municipalities affected by the waterway, the brief stated.

Passer-by's Alertness Saves Home

TRENTON (Staff) — Fire Chief Cecil Ellis today attributed the department's ability to save a Leopold Street home Thursday evening to a passer-by.

At 7:40 p.m. the unidentified passerby noticed flames inside the home of Mrs. Mary Roberts at 38 Leopold Street and notified the Trenton Fire Department immediately.

The firemen arrived on the scene in time to save the house, confining loss to that of light smoke damage of parts of the interior.

No one was in the house when the blaze broke out and Mr. Ellis attributed a lighted cigarette left on the chesterfield as causing the blaze.

His memory lingers yet.
—Ever remembered by wife and children.

CARTER — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Frederick Carter, who passed away February 27, 1969.

It's just one year ago, dear Frederick
I last saw your loving face.
In this world there is no other who can ever take your place.
The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a vacant place,
This world can never fill.
I am sad within my memory,
Lonely in my heart today,
For the one I loved so dearly
Has forever been called away.
I think of him in silence,
No one may see me weep,
Your heart was the truest in the world,
Your love the best of all.
For no one could ever take your place,
You are still the dearest of all.
—Sadly missed by wife Nona and daughters Patricia Anne and Sandra Jean.

BRICKMAN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father George Douglas who passed away Feb. 27, 1968.

Just when his days seemed brightest,
Just when his hopes seemed best,
God called him from amongst us,
To his eternal rest.
Sadly missed, but God knows best.
—Always remembered by Dorothy and children.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Harold Earle Rogers wish to express heartfelt thanks to relatives and friends for the many beautiful floral tributes, contributions to the Heart Foundation, cards and messages of sympathy; to the staff of Belleville General Hospital, Dr. Loynes and Dr. Beach, Rowe Funeral Service, Rev. and Mrs. J. Stewart-Warner Employees Enter Conciliation Discussion

Shop employes at Stewart Warner Corporation in Belleville have voted to take strike action if conciliation meetings with the company fail to result in agreement on a new work contract.

Frank McKay, president of the local 1538 of the United Auto Workers, said plant employees this week voted 95 per cent in favor of strike action, if necessary.

Mr. MacKay said negotiations for a new contract had been going on for 65 days without any real progress. Application for a conciliation officer was made more than a week ago but no date has been set for a meeting.

The union's contract with Stewart Warner expired on Feb. 23.

The vote for possible strike action was taken Tuesday evening after the latest company offer had been submitted to the membership.

Beating the Auto Marker Deadline

Belleville and district motorists are lining up these days to obtain their 1970 auto plates before the Feb. 28 deadline. All week there have been lineups at the Front Street licence office where extra typists have been brought in to cope with the rush. Licence sales this week have ranged between 800 and 1,000 daily. Licence issuer George Olsen said the office would be open until 3 p.m. Saturday to serve last minute customers.

Budget Proposal

Board Plans Standard Awards

Budget permitting, Hastings county board of education will standardize its student award program in the schools this year.

At their last meeting trustees decided to allocate $200 to each secondary school in the county to be used at the discretion of the principal to recognize academic achievement.

A sum of $5 to $50, would be allocated for the same purpose to elementary schools, the amount depending on the size of the school and whether it is a junior or senior institution.

Before formation of the county board, superintendent D. C. Stirling told the trustees, the amount allocated by individual boards to their secondary schools varied from $100 to $700.

Individuals and teams that win COSSA championships will be recognized by giving each a small plaque. The value is $2.50 to $3.50 apiece.

The value of the athletic recognition could reach $200 a year, 'or $1,000 if we win everything," Mr. Stirling said.

Students From Every Class To See G-G

A representative group of Belleville elementary school children, 700 strong, will meet Governor-General Roland Michener and Mrs. Michener during their visit to the city.

One boy and one girl from each public and separate school class in the city will assemble in the auditorium of Centennial Secondary School at 11 a.m. March 13 to greet the vice-regal party.

Meeting the Governor-General at the entrance to the school will be the chairmen of the two boards, E. J. Buckley from the separate schools and James Clarke from the public system, together with trustees and officials of the two boards.

Following the national anthem, one of the chairmen will introduce the Governor General, who will address the pupils.

"Through the mayor, we have advised the Governor-General that we hope he will tell them something in his speech about our country that will be a learning stimulant, that they can take back to the classroom to discuss during the afternoon school session," said Hastings county director of education, Eric Runacres, this morning.

"Our board is anxious to make the event meaningful to the pupils, and we feel that by devoting the afternoon to discussion of the visit and of our country, we can do this best," he added.

The program at Centennial will be brief — about a half hour long, to enable the Governor-General to visit the Ontario School for the Deaf before noon. He has expressed an interest in visiting the institution as part of its celebration of its 100th year of operation.

The separate school board has given the Governor-General the option of declaring a holiday for its pupils at his discretion.

F. B. Allore, superintendent of the separate schools, said this morning he does not yet know whether the holiday will be granted, or if the Governor -General will make his declaration before his arrival for March 13, or declare the holiday during his visit to be effective March 16.

The public board has advised the Governor-General through the mayor that it prefers him not to grant a holiday, and Mr. Runacres said this morning he has received no communication from anyone asking the board to reconsider its decision. However, city council at its Monday meeting did pass a resolution asking the board to reconsider its decision.

The Arts in Canada

Ranken Bushby, who with fellow-Briton Sidney Harrison is adjudicating Belleville's second annual music festival is loud in his praise of service club sponsorship of the arts in Canada.

There was the Kiwanis festival in Toronto and now Belleville's which is a Rotary Club inspiration. Mr. Harrison, well-known for his piano recitals and lectures in Britain, said there was no escaping the fact that pop music would always be the most popular — but as both adjudicators noted, it was essential that every community has an active interest in the arts, including the best in music.

It was not a paying proposition, this concern for culture and the classics, said Mr. Bushby. The Milan Opera . . . or whatever, none paid its way, yet society must preserve its interest in the arts, or perish.

Mr. Bushby's comments are significant in the light of the recent announcement that the Canadian Opera Company is in financial difficulty. Well-known to Belleville audiences, this group has a high reputation and it is to be hoped that with the support of the public and grants from the Canada Council it will be able to continue its performances across the country.

The financial losses the company is suffering are a measure of the sacrifices being made to widen Canada's cultural base. But there must be increasing public awareness, as well as financial backing, if the arts are to remain a strong factor in Canadian life.

Messrs Bushby and Harrison, incidentally, are in the grand tradition of British adjudicators — witty, informative, instructive, full of enthusiasm for their work, for the music and for the young people whose efforts they watch over so benignly.

Once More Friends....

It's that irritating time again . . . you know Income Tax, and once again the Department of National Revenue is oozing with aid and comfort for the hapless taxpayer.

It has issued a 16-point guide to happy juggling with the figures — or as the department prefers to call it, "the do-it-yourself tax kit." Of course, to those who are a whiz with figures, filling out a tax form is a breeze, but to countless others — the majority we suspect — it's a pain.

We know of one retired gentleman, a pensioner, who gets his daughter to do it for him. She works for a company which has a lot of figuring to do so who better to oblige at such a tricky time of year.

For the rest of us it is either do it yourself, using the guide put out by Jean-Pierre Cote's people, or (obliging to the last red cent) enlisting the aid of the staff in your friendly neighborhood federal building.

The 16-point guide contains some coy suggestions. Point No. 8, listed as optional, advises to have chocolate handy — "to raise the spirit," for heaven's sake. No. 5 really gets us though — it suggests a piggybank "to remind you of unusual sources of income." But maybe they've got something there, for putting it in the bank is of little use when even the interest accruing is taxed.

Pakistan's Trade

Pakistan, according to a news release from its Washington embassy, has a foot in both doors of the east-west trade scene.

It sends a wide variety of goods to the Soviet Union while accepting imports in return. At the same time it has arranged a loan of $10,000,000 from United Kingdom banks for the purchase of fertilizers.

The source of the fertilizers? Why, the Soviet Union of course, although this is not mentioned directly in the embassy's Pakistan Affairs item on the loan. Fertilizers are mentioned, however, among the items being imported from Russia — in a report immediately above the one about the loan.

As well as fertilizers, Pakistan will receive from Russia iron billets, asbestos fibre, chemicals and dyestuffs, machinery and other equipment. In return Pakistan will provide Russia with a broad selection of goods, including jute, cotton, rice, wool, tobacco, goat skins, textiles, hosiery, footwear, spectacle frames, sports goods fruit juices, medical and surgical instruments.

It is an interesting arrangement — a big loan from British banks to enable an Asian country to make a purchase in the Soviet Union!

Nixon Moves to Counter Backlash

French Jet Sale Clouds Pompidou's Visit to U.S.

By RAY DICK

WASHINGTON (CP) — Despite strenuous White House efforts to make the visit of President Pompidou of France both successful and peaceful, there are mounting indications that the several-state, eight-day tour faces rough weather.

The first protest came on the French leader's arrival here Monday when some 3,500 persons demonstrated, although several miles from the airport, against French policy in the Middle East.

It was evident the demonstrators, mostly Jewish, were protesting against Pompidou personally. They carried signs such as "Long Live France, Down With Pompidou."

There also were forecasts that some members of Congress would boycott a joint meeting the French president will address today and further demonstrations are planned in New York, Chicago and San Francisco.

French and American officials had indicated concern about such demonstrations prior to the visit, the first by a French leader to the United States in a decade. Some American diplomats feel Pompidou will be offended if the protests get too noisy.

The main reason for the charged atmosphere and diplomatic concern, and undoubtedly a topic of discussion between Pompidou and President Nixon, was the sale by France of 108 jet fighters to Libya. The sale provoked pro-Israeli circles in the U.S. and put new pressure on Washington to escalate the Middle East arms race by providing Israel with additional Phantom and Skyhawk jets

The politicians, at least those who depend largely on a Jewish vote, also appear ready to exploit the issue.

Someone in the office of Mayor John Lindsay of New York has let it be known that the mayor will have nothing to do with the French president when he visits there. Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago says he will be on a "family picnic" when Pompidou comes to town.

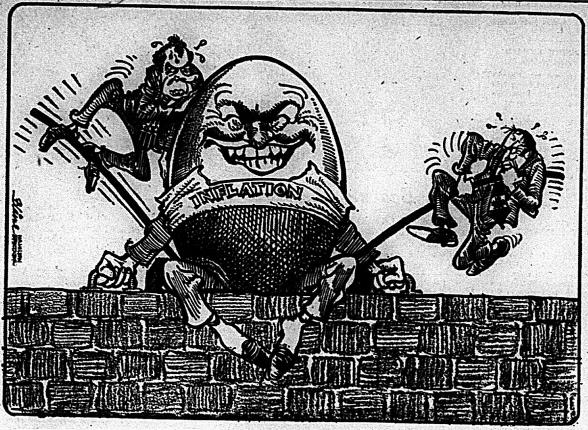
In an obvious effort to counter any future protests against and snubs of the French leader, Nixon has upgraded the welcome and the Washington itinerary of the visitor.

In a last-minute switch of plans, Nixon sent Vice-President Spiro Agnew to greet Pompidou on his arrival. Tuesday, the French leader was welcomed at the White House by a 21-gun salute and a friendly, flag-waving crowd.

After several hours of talks, Nixon held a white-tie dinner Tuesday, complete with singer Peggy Lee and a French menu from Saumon Lafayette to Camembert, served with French wines.

Nixon will also attend the formal dinner to be given by Pompidou at the French embassy, an honor Nixon has not normally accorded other visiting heads of state.

What the president is trying to do is convince Pompidou he is indeed the honored guest of this country. Whether he succeeds will not be known for several days.



Chicago Conspiracy Trial

Ottawa Journal

The seven defendants and their two lawyers in the now infamous Chicago riot - conspiracy trial set out to be made martyrs on the spot. Perhaps never before has a courtroom in a civilized country heard abuse and invective as that directed at Judge Julius Hoffman during almost five months of trial.

Judge Hoffman may not be a shining example of judicial even-handedness, though the man has been provoked beyond normal human endurance. Some respected lawyers have expressed their private reservations about his rulings during the course of the trial. That is another story; the appeal courts will eventually have their say.

But let over - zealous civil libertarians direct the real criticism where it belongs: at those who deliberately flaunted and mocked judicial process. If the likes of Jerry Rubin, the yippie leader, and the others who want to overthrow "straight" society are allowed to curse, shout and ridicule to bring the courts down to their level of chaos, then anarchy replaces the rule of law.

The galling part of it all is that in appealing their convictions the defendants seek the protection of the system they are trying to destroy.

If they want to be martyrs, that's the Chicago Seven's own business. But they don't deserve much sympathy; Judge Hoffman does, and some gratitude too.

Students Pay Taxes Too

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Galt city council turned down a request from engineering students at the University of Waterloo for a special grant. The student group wanted the cash aid to help finance a trip to Expo 70 in Japan.

We don't blame the students for trying. They want to go, the trip might be educational, and if someone would give them the money why shouldn't they take it?

The Galt aldermen were, on the other hand, right to say no. Galt, or any other Ontario city, has enough needs right at home to soak up all the property-tax burden its ratepayers can endure. Frills on post-secondary education are not a proper use for money collected in municipal taxes.

The Waterloo Chronicle speaks approvingly of the Galt council for refusing the request, but gives a strange reason. Students, says the Chronicle editorially, do not pay taxes, and therefore do not understand that grants must come out of taxes.

"Almost everyone," says the Chronicle, "(students are among the notable exceptions) pays many different taxes."

Any student would be quick to reply that he is no exception but that, like everyone else, he pays many taxes.

Even if he is so poor he can only afford one shirt, the student pays Ontario sales tax on that shirt when he buys it. If he smokes, more than half of what he puts on the counter for tobacco goes as tax. If he drives he pays the same gasoline tax as anyone else.

Any student who rents a room or shares an apartment is contributing like any other tenant to the taxes the landlord has to pay.

If, on his summer or part-time job, he earns more than $1,100 plus tuition fees, he pays income tax.

Taxes of one kind and another take about 34 per cent of the gross national product of Canada. A student who is trying to finance his academic year with a four - month job that pays him $100 a week probably pays $400 or more in taxes, overt or hidden.

It would be nice to think there was some way a Canadian could hide from taxes. There is no way, and if there were, becoming a student is not it.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Feb. 27, 1970 . . .

The last big battle of the Boer War was fought 70 years ago today—in 1900—at Paardeberg, South Africa. Canadian units led the predawn assault on Boer lines but were forced back with heavy casualties. The Boers surrendered the following day; they had been surrounded and exhausted since the fight began Feb. 18.

1933—The Reichstag was burned down in Berlin.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1945—Verde Island in the Philippines was cleared of Japanese; Churchill challenged critics of the Yalta agreement, demanding a confidence vote; RAF planes attacked Mainz and the benzol plant near Gelsenkirchen.

Better Be on Time

Regina Leader Post

Air Canada has lowered the boom on one group of travellers — the ones who arrive at the last minute. These make a common practice of arriving at the airport just in the nick of time, completely oblivious to disruption of schedules or other passengers' plans. Air Canada has announced that passengers with confirmed reservations will henceforth lose their space unless they arrive at the ticket area at least a good five minutes before take-off time. Even that is giving them more than a fair break.

Last - minute appearances by passengers wrought a particular hardship on standby passengers. Until the new regulation, the standby passengers, generally represented by senior citizens or students, could be displaced by passengers with reservations. The result was that the standbys were often asked to leave the plane to make room for the tardy ones. Flight delays, disappointments, and general all-around headaches for air line officials were the result.

Until a couple of years ago, passengers with tickets purchased earlier had to confirm several hours ahead of time that they would be taking the flights as indicated on their tickets. This was a nuisance to many who had no reasons to stray from their schedules. But the change created the problem of the late-comers, whose numbers have so increased that the new step was taken. Presumably other air lines are adopting the same rule.

Advertising Practice

Brockville Recorder and Times

It is against the law to advertise something as being on sale at a special lower price when indeed the price hasn't been lowered or is higher. Consumers can institute proceedings against merchants who falsely represent prices in such a manner. Now, it seems, verbal pricing of a similar nature falls within the law.

An Ottawa furniture store has been fined $400 for verbally misrepresenting the price of an article to customers. The charge against the furniture store arose from a visit of combines investigators to the store. A sales clerk misrepresented the selling price of a set. Posing as customers, the agents were told the set was for sale at well below the regular price. It turned out that the special sale price was above the usual selling price. The set had no price tag on it.

Standard advice has always been "buyer beware". Today it is also necessary for the seller to beware.

Britain's Debt to Lord Dowding

Hamilton Spectator

High in the sky, machine guns rattled in short bursts and contrails twisted and turned in fantastic patterns as though a madman was doodling with white chalk against the dazzling blue. It was the summer of 1940 and the Battle of Britain was in progress.

That battle was directed by Air Chief Marshal Dowding, head of the Royal Air Force Fighter Command. It was largely due to his powerful persuasion at a cabinet meeting, to which Winston Churchill had specially invited him, that Britain was able to fight the battle at all.

Now, at 87, Lord Dowding is dead. His death inevitably evokes memories of days of high drama.

In the early days of June, 1940, when France was collapsing, the French high command particularly its chief, the arch - defeatist, General Weygand — demanded that Britain commit all of its fighter squadrons to the defence of Paris. "Now is the decisive moment," Weygand said. "It is . . . wrong to keep any squadrons back in England."

For several days, this demand had been made by Weygand, who, conscious of his own ineptitude and anxious for scapegoats, had implied that the lack of all the RAF's fighters in France was responsible for the success of the German Panzers.

But at the cabinet meeting to which he had been called, Dowding resolutely opposed the committal of more RAF fighters to France. So Churchill was able to tell French Premier Reynaud, and Weygand, that the decisive moment would come when "Hitler hurls his Luftwaffe at Great Britain." If Britain could win the battle for the skies and keep the seas open, then, as Churchill put it, "we will win it all back for you."

The battle for the skies was won, but even so Dowding was bitterly criticized for allegedly inadequate protection for RAF bases from enemy bombers. Two years later, at his own request, he was put on the retired list. Afterwards, he quietly devoted his time to his hobbies. A vegetarian, a spiritualist and a latter day pacifist, Dowding occasionally reappeared in the news when events in connection with his interests occurred. Recently, Sir Laurence Olivier took his role in the film version of the Battle of Britain.

Dowding earned his place in history because of those few weeks in 1940. They were but a tiny fraction of a long life, but they were enough for an enduring fame.

Split Second Timing

Toronto Bank Robbers Take on Hue of Montreal 'Experts'

TORONTO (CP) — After Toronto's second Montreal-style bank robbery in two days, police wondered today if they have to deal with an influx of Quebec criminals—or whether it was the same gang in both instances.

They had these facts:

Cars used in Wednesday's $52,225 holdup of a Bank of Montreal branch and Thursday's $14,500 robbery of a Toronto Dominion Bank branch were recovered and both were stolen in the Montreal area.

—Both holdups were executed with split-second precision with the leader in the second robbery counting off the seconds. Such tactics long have been familiar in Montreal incidents.

—Submachine guns often used in Montreal holdups but rarely seen in Toronto, were used in the second robbery.

Both robber groups of three men wore balaclava hoods, although they were of different colors.

In Thursday's holdup, three men walked into the bank, ordered the staff and 20 customers to the floor, then grabbed all the money they could in about 5 seconds, with their leader shouting off the seconds.

"We've only got a couple of seconds," he barked. "Get it and get out."

"They were armed with machine guns and when they told me to lie down, I just fell to the floor," one of the tellers said later.

Bank manager Joe Murphy also was forced to lie on the floor in his office.

"They just came in and just took the place over," he said.

Witnesses said the men, all wearing identical black clothing, escaped in a late-model Buick.

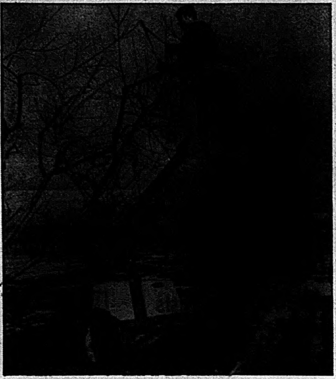
Police found the car on a construction company parking lot a quarter mile away.

Early Thursday, the bulk of $6,744,170 in non-negotiable cheques stolen in Wednesday's holdup was found in the getaway car parked in the underground garage of a downtown apartment.

Police differed on whether both jobs were by the same men.

"Everybody in today's holdup checked with what occurred yesterday," Deputy Police Chief Bernard Simmonds said. "We think it could be the same men."

"It was a different operation altogether," said Insp. Maurice Richardson, who said descriptions of the men in the two robberies did not match.



Winter Pruning

Months of arduous hand pruning and picking of fruit orchards will be overcome with the advent of the new lift. The machine permits the operator to place one wheel in reverse, the other wheel in forward, then execute a complete circle around the tree, lowering and raising the fork lift as desired. Provincial Roundup

Non-confidence Motions Defeated

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two provincial governments easily survived motions of non-confidence Thursday.

At Regina, Premier Ross Thatcher's Liberal forces voted down a motion put forward by Lloyd, 30 to 23.

The defeated New Democratic party motion denounced the government for failing to provide cash for farmers and jobs for the unemployed.

At St. John's, Premier Joseph Smallwood's Liberal government rejected a non-confidence motion by 19 to 9.

Of more moment in the Newfoundland house was a motion of censure against Premier Smallwood which was disallowed.

Speaker George Clarke said a dispute between the premier and a member involved only a difference of opinion and was not a breach of privilege.

John C. Crosbie (Ind L—St. John's West) had put forward a motion saying the premier should be censured for disclosing information on a radio program which he had refused to give the house.

In other legislatures:

Charlottetown — A proposal to bring Prince Edward Island into the federal-provincial medical care insurance plan was the major item outlined in the speech from the throne which opened the 1970 session.

Fredericton — Opposition Leader Richard Hatfield said a future Conservative government might establish a form of regional government in New Brunswick.

He said his Conservative party was considering establish- commission's view on price inment of "citizen participation councils in socio-economic regions" of the province to increase the voice of the average citizen in the decision - making process of government. This would give him a voice in social and economic affairs of his region.

Halifax—Premier G. I. Smith promised he will check with the public utilities board to determine whether it considered the federal prices and incomes commission's view on price increases when granting Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd. permission to increase telephone rates.

Quebec—Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa, in his first address since being elected party head, proposed a non-confidence motion against the Union Nationale government, saying it had failed to promote economic development and combat unemployment.

Edmonton—Social Credit support for a Progressive Conservative motion condemning the federal white paper on tax reform has been withdrawn, Opposition Conservative Leader Peter Lougheed said. But he said he intends to go ahead with his plans to introduce a formal motion.

Premier Harry Strom said the government has a consulting firm studying the implications of the white paper and on the basis of the firm's findings, the government will present a brief to the federal government on tax reform.

Mr. Lougheed indicated he will appear before the House of Commons finance committee to present his views.

Victoria — British Columbia's Social Credit administration found itself under attack from one of its own members. James Chabot (SC—Columbia River) said B.C. should plug loopholes that turn large land holdings in the province into "tax havens for absentee American owners."

He cited two Christmas tree farms in his riding—both between 25,000 and 30,000 acres—on which the U.S. owners pay between six- and 10-cents-an-acre tax.

Murray Wants to Keep Road

WOOLER — Following a review of views expressed by township residents at an open meeting recently Murray Township council has written a letter suggesting to the federal railway transport committee that the Barcovan Beach Road level crossing remain open and be protected.

The committee had proposed to close the Barcovan Beach Road at the joint Canadian National - Canadian Pacific Railways level crossing just south of Highway 2.

Advantages of the closure of Barcovan Beach Road were cited as the elimination of a level crossing and a saving of approximately $45,000. Included in the proposal was the reconstruction of a half mile section of the Power Line Road which has been closed for over 30 years. This would provide an alternate route of travel for township residents.

However the ratepayers expressed considerable opposition to the closure, prompting council's decision to recommend that the road be left open and a railway crossing light and gate warning system be erected at the level crossing.

Council's share of the $45,000 cost of protecting the level crossing was estimated at $20,000 by Reeve Harry Lafferty.

In the letter to the railway transport committee, council said it would arrange a meeting with the persons concerned if the committee desired.

Caribbean Students Support 'Brothers'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Police and demonstrators scuffled in the Royal Bank of Canada Building in Port of Spain, Trinidad, and youths marched with placards in Kingston, Jamaica, and Georgetown, Guyana, Thursday as students supported "black brothers and "sisters" on trial in Montreal.

Caribbean students are among those charged in connection with rioting at Sir George Williams University in Montreal last February.

At Port of Spain, several placard-carrying demonstrators were arrested after they tore down decorations and overturned potted plants in the Royal Bank Building.

There was no estimate of damage to the bank office. Police foiled an attempt by about 200 demonstrators to force their way into the bank manager's office.

The protesters, mainly students at the St. Augustine campus of the University of the West Indies, earlier marched outside the offices of the Canadian and British high commissions.

They carried slogans protesting "injustices meted out to our black brothers and sisters in Canada."

Demonstrations were peaceful in Kingston and Georgetown.

Waving placards reading, "Down with discrimination in Canada," members of the Progressive Youth Organization of Guyana picketed the Canadian high commission at Georgetown. They called for the release of the students in Montreal.

The university's guild of undergraduates has asked Prime Minister Trudeau to establish a commission of inquiry into the Sir George riots, requesting that Caribbean representatives be included on the commission.

Methodist Rally Held

The F. M. Y. Rally was held earlier this month, at Marmora Public School, with 55 persons attending from Vennachar - Cloyne Free Methodist churches, winning the F. M. Y. Banner back from Belleville F.M.Y. Group.

The Land O'Lakes Fire Fighters, Northbrook, who recently purchased a truck from Sheffield Township, used their new fire truck to answer a call to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Miller, Northbrook. Alex Buchanan and John Bolton manned the truck with equipment and put the fire out.

The following card parties have been held recently in the area, and the winners and places of parties are as follows: The weekly euchre was held in St. Mary's School, Read, and the following were the winners: men - Clarence McGuiness; Cyril Hunt; women - Rosemary Roach, Helen Coffey, consolation prizes went to Mrs. Earl Brennan and James Corrigan. Traveling lone hand won by Cyril Hunt. Door prize to Mrs. Clarence McGuiness. Lunch was provided by the women of 4th and 5th Concessions.

Another card party held in Read saw the following as winners: men - Harold Brennan; Clarence McGuiness; women - Mrs. Clarence McGuiness; Mrs. James O'Sullivan; consolation women - Mrs. William Durkin; men - consolation - Leonard Welsh; traveling lone hnad - Clarence McGuiness; Door prize went to William Buckley. Lunch was served by the women of the 6th concession.

Easter Seal Campaign Is Started

TRENTON — The 1970 Trenton Easter Seal campaign begins today and runs through March 29 with an objective of $3,450.

Trenton Rotary Club conducts the annual campaign locally in conjunction with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children which has a 1970 goal of $1,600,000.

Campaign chairman Neil Ramsay stressed that half of the funds raised here would be used to provide direct assistance for needy handicapped children in this locale.

The remainder of, the money goes to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children which supports the handicap[illegible] in this province through one of the [illegible] most comprehensive treatment and rehabilitation programs, Mr. Ramsay explained.

Services rendered by the Ontario Society include 21 district nursing offices staffed by 37 specially trained public health nurses, plus a series of special clinics across Ontario.

Trudeau Turns Down Demand for Interview

OTTAWA (CP) — Four Negroes, all charged in last year's destruction of the computer at Sir George Williams University, Montreal, unsuccessfully sought an interview with Prime Minister Trudeau Thursday.

Roosevelt Douglas of the Domnican Republic, the spokesman, said they wanted to urge Mr. Trudeau and Justice Minister John Turner to launch a federal investigation into the events that led up to the computer episode.

Commons guards told the delegation Mr. Trudeau had sent a letter declining to meet them. A government spokesman said later Mr. Trudeau told the group, in the letter, he doesn't accept ultimatums and he has nothing to say on a matter that is before the courts.

The delegation said that if there are jailings, Canadians in the Caribbean will be hara the Caribbean will be harassed the way Governor-General Michener was last year in Trinidad, when a demonstration interrupted his visit to the University of the West Indies.

Holiday in Rome Has A Lasting Appeal

ROME (CP) — A winter holiday in Rome can be less expensive and have more lasting appeal than many palm-tree resorts which attract Canadians when temperatures tumble.

This ancient city takes on its own character when freed of the summer tourist mobs. Smiles and salutations greet the visitor from natives who have time to feel relaxed in the no-pressure months. Reservations for hotel rooms, bus tours and the best tables are available instantly, a situation impossible in the peak months of July and August.

Even the airline flight from Canada is in contrast to summer-time Atlantic flips when every seat is occupied. In a recent flight only 40 passengers were aboard the 190-seat jet, and the cabin crew provided women passengers with three seats instead of one.

The stewardesses deftly removed the intervening armrests, handed out fluffy mohair blankets and the women passengers slept their way comfortably through the night.

With hotels on winter rates, any budget-conscious tourist can live like royalty in Rome. A hotel at the top of the famed Spanish Steps, a palace of gilded mirrors, enormous paintings and marble statuary, charges the equivalent of $8 a day single or $11 double.

The ancient bell in the neighboring church of St. Trinita dei Monti clangs out the hours as the hotel guests look from their balconies across to a Medici mansion wrapped in its history and the peace of its present function as a scholastic seminary. In the hotel's garden court the azaleas bloom, the fig tree is glossy green and trailing vines cling to the old walls.

For the tourist who hates galleries and museums, Rome is a shopper's paradise. Each street radiating from the foot of the Spanish Steps has a neat sequence of specialty shops featuring exquisite jewelry, hand leather work, gloves and shoes, and antique shops filled with the treasures of the Renaissance.

In one antique shop a hippie-type young man—a pack-on-the-back European wanderer—paid more than $100 for a postage-stamp-sized Etruscan medallion in clay, faintly traced with a woman's head. It took half an hour for the official papers to be signed and delivered—a legal necessity here in any purchases of ancient artefacts.

Life in Rome's streets is at once a fashion show, a flower show and a circus reflecting the excitement of a city whose traffic clogs up four times a day in the unfamiliar pattern of the long lunch-and-siesta break. Every place of business except the caterers—banks, shops and offices—locks the steel grill across the front door while the staff goes home for the main meal of the day and an early-afternoon nap.

Down the narrow sidewalks of the Via Sistina, along the Via Condotti and the other fashionable neighborhoods, young men with Byronic haircuts and ankle-length maxi-coats stride along. The girls wear maxis too, usually in the "jungle snarler" variety such as leopard. Mink is a tourist fur.

Female heads are invariable bare and perfectly coiffured in a city where beauty salons are more numerous than bars and the full treatment is half the price of that in Canada.

Naturally the earnest visitor, guidebook in hand, will want to trudge through the Forum and the Colosseum, brood over the flawless Berninis at the Borghese Museum or listen to the old professor of music thump out Gounod at the Pantheon.

But it's far more pleasant to sit in the sun over a cappaccino—steam-pressured coffee mixed with thick, hot milk—and watch the eternal carnival of Rome in winter.

U.C.W. Meeting

ELDORADO UCW

The February meeting of the Eldorado UCW was held at the Eldorado United Church on Thursday evening. The leader, Mrs. Cyril Shaw opened the meeting with a short prayer. Correspondence included letters from Mrs. Clayton Blackburn and Mrs. Beryl Carman.

It was decided that the fellowship group of the community would provide the program for the World Day of Prayer which will be held March 6 at the Eldorado United Church.

Mrs. Leonard Blackburn was in charge of the worship service which had "hope" as the theme. Mrs. Stanley Sandford, Mrs. Floyd Blackburn, Mrs. Harley Blackburn and Mrs. Hedley Shaw reported on the annual presbyterial meeting which they attended in Napanee recently.

In charge of the program titled, "Let's Stop Picking on Martha" was Mrs. Harley Blackburn. She concluded by saying, "It is the mature Marys of the church who give us enriching insight into the deep mysteries of God and the inspiring vision we need of Christ, but the Marthas of the church make it a going, growing organism; they are the workers."

The meeting was then adjourned.

A Pause with Commentator

Taking a break during rehearsal for the Spring Swing fashion show are four of the tiniest models: Sheila Morton, Johanna Bateman, Ericka Burrowes and Margo McIntosh, with Janie McCutcheon the commentator. Fashions are supplied by McIntosh Stores. Proceeds from the show which is sponsored by the C.G.I.T. group of College Hill Church will go to further the group's activities.

Meatless Restaurants Cater to Health-food Faddists

LONDON (CP) — Traditional roast beef and steak and kidney pie are taking a battering in British restaurants from an invasion of health-food faddists.

Meatless restaurants have sprung up in London and several provincial centres where trend-setters and weight-watchers can enliven their jaundiced taste buds.

The rebellion against mass-produced, pre-packaged, deep-frozen and taste-free meals has spurred a move back to nature.

Farm-fresh salads, nut cutlets and yogurt are also becoming the staple diet of an increasing number of health-conscious Britons.

The British Vegetarian Society reports it can hardly keep up with the demand for recipe information and lecturers for women's cooking classes.

"We had a tremendous turnout in Nottingham when we showed housewives how to get the most out of the bean family—lentils, butter beans, haricot beans and peas—which are nutritious but often neglected," says enthusiastic Gerry Ashcroft, who runs the society's catering division.

"People today are very receptive to learning the use of more-moderate vegetarian foods."

A pioneer in the crusade was Cranks restaurant, which has blossomed into a £160,000-a-year health centre with its own retail store and bakery round the corner from swinging Carnaby Street.

Owner David Canter says most of his customers aren't cranks, but he claims a steady number of converts who have forsaken meat and fish for nutritious farm products to which they attribute improved health and longer life.

Regular patrons of Cranks's budget lunchtime meals include fashion models, disc jockeys and show business personalities as well as waistline worriers.

Prime Minister Wilson's wife Mary, Princess Irene of Greece and violinist Yehudi Menuhin have also been seen at Cranks's scrubbed pine tables, being soothed by taped chamber music.

Fleet Street journalists have discovered newly-opened Oodles a few yards from the heart of Britain's newspaper industry.

Half a mile away in the shadow of St. Paul's imposing dome, City businessmen can sample the delights of Slenders, which boasts a cordon bleu kitchen staff.

Conventional restaurant chains have noted the boom and opened their own rival establishments such as Salads Galore, the Slim Inns and Raw Deal.

The latest vogue spot is Manna, a heavenly haven in Chalk Farm on the fringe of Hampstead where a major attraction is live recitals of 17th century classical music played on a spinet, flute and guitar.

Knitwear Fastest Growing Sector Of the French Fashion Industry

PARIS (Reuters) — Knitwear accounts for more than half the women's fashions sold in France today, statistics presented at the fifth annual knitwear salon indicate.

Two hundred and fifty companies—producing 400 different trademarks—were represented at the salon. They reported unprecedented sales, establishing knitwear as the fastest-growing sector of the French fashion industry.

Styling, featured in both fully fashioned garments and loomed knits that are cut and sewn like fabric, followed general trends established in the recent haute couture collections, with skirts ranging through the four prevailing lengths from mini to kneecap, midi and maxi.

Professional buying for the junior age group was strongest in the new longer lengths, compared with boutiques and stores catering for the "over-thirties" who tended to order safe and sure lengths hovering around the kneecap.

Clothes for both summer and winter emphasized mated ensembles with co-ordinated separates combining four and five pieces with skirts, trousers, sweaters, sleeveless tunics or cardigan coats, paired to matching mufflers and caps, tights or socks, and even an occasional swim suit.

The long skinny cardigan ranged anywhere from mid-thigh to mid-calf length, over trousers or one-piece jump suits, in matching jacquards, stripes, or two-toned cross-woven patterns. It was often sleeveless, worn with a long-sleeved sweater gathered into a tight ribbed cuff matching the high roll turtle-neck collar.

Horizontal stripes turned up everywhere—Roman stripes in multi-colors combining such contrasts as hot orange and raspberry red or two shades of fuschia, stripes in graded widths, scaled narrow through the midriff, with wide bands across the top and skirt, and stripes of silver metallic threads.

Jeanne Lanvin, showing knitwear for the first time, featured many Aztec-type patterns, as well as giant abstractions on silk jersey tricot. A long tunic was scrolled in purple and red over solid toned pants.

Louis Feraud, another couturier on the knitwear bandwagon, often combined two different patterns in floppy-legged jump suits. One model had the top worked in broad horizontal stripes, contrasting legs and sleeves in a wild surrealistic pattern in all the bright primary colors.

The pattern for summer was generally clear and strong, contrasting the winter spectrum of muted purples, violet, old rose and terra cotta, all the browns and natural pale beige shades.

Drug Creates Sex Drive; Worries Wife

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I always thought a newspaper was supposed to be a friend. Well, our paper printed something yesterday that might break up our marriage.

ANN LANDERS

Norville and I celebrated our golden wedding anniversary last year. He is 73 and I am 71. We have four lovely children and 12 grandchildren. Norville and I have had separate bedrooms for about eight years. He used to knock on my door every few weeks but he hasn't knocked for about three years which is just fine with me.

Yesterday, on the front page of our newspaper was an article about a new drug called L-dopa which was given to a patient in Washington, D.C. for Parkinson's disease. The patient, a man in his 60's, had not been able to have sex for about six years. After several doses of L-dopa he started to chase the nurses all over the hospital. The doctors said this new drug might be the answer for older people who have lost their sex drive.

Norville wants to go to Washington, D.C. and get the medicine. He does not have Parkinson's disease. These last three years have been wonderful. I don't want anything changed. I need your advice. — N.N.P.

DEAR N.N.P.: You don't need to be concerned about any changes, and neither does Norville. My medical consultants tell me this aphrodesiac reaction produced by L-dopa is not viewed as desirable. It is considered a dangerous side effect. Furthermore, the medicine does more than create a sex drive. It can lead to anti-social behavior. It can also produce nauseau, vomitting and hypertension. L-dopa is still under clinical evaluation and does not have Food and Drug Administration approval. Norville is not likely to get any.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read the letter from the mother who was mad at the school because they told her they didn't want her diabetic child. The youngster had to have special privileges and it discombobuated everybody. The mother felt the teacher was mean because she wasn't willing to put herself out a little for an "unfortunate youngster." You sympathized with the child. I'm on the teacher's side.

Do you know what it's like to teach school today? Well, I do and it's just about the hardest work there is. I have a diabetic student and he has made himself the centre of attention. The boy is constantly running to the toilet. He is forever chewing gum, eating candy and falling asleep.

I don't believe that just because a kid has an illness he should get special privileges. I am doing my darndest to get this child out of the public school system. He is a nuisance and what's more he is wasting the taxpayer's money. — OTHER SIDE

DEAR Q.S.: And what about the kids who are nuisances, but don't have diabetes? Are you trying to get them out of the public school system, too? You sound like the kind of teacher we could do without. If you haven't considered a change in careers, I strongly recommend it.

HAPPY PARTING

STOCKHOLM (AP) — An alien item strayed somehow into the column headed "Birth, Marriages and Deaths" in the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter last Sunday. The item bore the subheading, "Divorced," and the happy couple it named spent the day accepting "congratulataions" from friends and relatives.

Mother: "The children always fuss so when we leave them with a babysitter. It takes all the fun out of going to a party. We'd almost rather stay home than go through the turmoil."

Mother: "I asked you to come a couple of hours early so the children would be used to you by the time we're ready to leave. Perhaps you would like to play a game with them while I get dressed."

Both children and parents will benefit by being apart for an evening once in a while. Some children find it easier to accept a mother-substitute if the break is gradual and mother does not go out the door as the baby-sitter comes in.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

ELDORADO AND BANNOCKBURN WI

The president, Mrs. Stanley Franks opened the February meeting of the Eldorado and Bannockburn WI and welcomed everyone. The Women's Institute received an invitation from the Madoc WI to attend their 60th anniversary in the parish hall on March 30 Mrs. Kenneth Bateman thanked the WI for all cards and letters Mr. Bateman received while he was a patient in the hospital.

The district annual meeting which will be held in May at Eldorado United Church was discussed.

In charge of the program was Mrs. Gerald Blackburn Mrs. Floyd Blackburn conducted a sing song followed by the motto, "Don't worry if you don't know all the answers, you probably won't be asked all the questions" which was given by Mrs. Ken Bateman. Mrs. Gerald Blackburn read a poem, "Don't" and then Mrs. Blackburn introduced the guest speaker

, Mrs. Dorothy Empey spoke on the special education classes which are held in Centre Hastings Secondary School and throughout Hastings County. She said that there is not enough special education being carried out in the county but there will hopefully be more schools in the next few years for the exceptional children.

Mrs. Harley Blackburn thanked Mrs. Empey and the meeting closed. The hostess, Mrs. Allan 'Franks and her assistants served a lunch.

Successful Living

One Who Wishes to Write Never Reads

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have been creating stories since I can remember. But I never read, I hate it. I'm constantly creating a character, a song, a city, a story, a dance.

For 10 years I have been sending stories to a writers' agent, but to this date she had sold absolutely nothing. She says the scripts are too forced and melodramatic; not real.

Yet I have shut myself off from the world. I'm a recluse and a hermit. Now I ask you, what kind of nut writes about reality when she lives in a dream? I'd do anything to be heard.

I'll crack up if nothing happens, and I probably will if it does. — Frustrated Writer

Dear Frustrated: Better get back into the world and do a little living. Then you'll get something worthwhile to write about. Forget the agent and be content to sell a poem here, a story there until you have earned a bit of a name in the writing world.

Dear Doris: Your advice has just about made me a new person. I have lost 12 pounds. I was 137; I'm five-foot-four and 17. It would help even more if I could lose 10 pounds more. The trouble is I get down to 122 pounds during the week but put three pounds more on during the weekend. I do feel my best when I weigh 110-115 pounds.

People seek me out now and I really feel in love with the world when I'm with them, most of the time! Looks are part of a personality, too. — Going, Going, Gone?

Dear Gone: Good looks give you confidence, and that's for sure.

Those last few pounds don't desert the ship so easily. When those week-end blues seem to call for a forbidden nibble, what have you got to intrigue you instead? get an antidote, be it a supply of apples or new music to play or a tasty long drink of water.

Don't reduce so far that you get a skinny look. You are growing, you know, and need good nourishment.

Dear Doris: I am enclosing a stamped envelope and 10 cents for a copy of Mother Shipton's Prophecies.

It sounds like an ideal addition to my Bathroom Reading book, which is composed of odd and unusual cures, remedies, customs, styles in bathrooms, pertinent cartoons and the like. — Collector

Sweet 'n' Sour Spareribs Chinese Style

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: About 7 or 8 years ago you gave the Chinese method of making Sweet and Sour Spareribs with a batter on. They were the best yet. I think your younger audience who go for Chinese food would like it repeated. I know I would too. — Lorna F.

ANSWER: I am particularly pleased to repeat this recipe for Sweet and Sour Spareribs because it is the authentic method and popular with our good cooks.

SWEET AND SOUR SPARERIBS (Chinese method)

Cut 2 lbs. spareribs into 2" squares, having meat on both sides of rib. Roughly this means each rib is chopped in half crosswise with meat on both sides and every other rib stripped bare and discarded. Dip each piece in batter: 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 2 tsps. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt, 1 egg, 2-3 cup water. Mix all ingredients until smooth. Brown batter-covered ribs on all sides in hot (370 deg. Fahr.) peanut or other cooking oil — about 4 to 7 min. Transfer to baking dish and pour over sweet-sour sauce: 1 cup sweet pickle vinegar (or ¾ cup vinegar and ¼ cup brown sugar), ¼ cup brown sugar, 1 cup tomato catsup, ½ cup cold water, 2 tbsps. corn starch, ½ to ¾ cup chopped sweet pickles, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ to ½ tsp. pepper. Pour this over fried ribs and bake at 300 deg. Fahr., covered, for 1 hr.

QUESTION: Could I use your low - slow method of roasting beef well done? We do not like it rare but I like the idea of the low temperature. — Elaine G.

ANSWER: Certainly you can. I roasted a 5-lb. standing rib, red brand, on Sunday to test time and temperature for you and incidentally feed my guests.

5-LB STANDING RIB ROAST OF BEEF
(well done; low-slow method)

If desired rub lean and fat surfaces of beef with a mixture of ½ tsp. each dry mustard, salt, curry powder and allspice. Place roast, rib side down, on trivet in open roasting pan and insert meat thermometer deeply at centre of fleshy part of meat. Roast at 250 deg. Fahr. 4 hrs. This results in internal temperature of 170 deg. Fahr. which means beef is well done and not pink.

The consumer price index rose to 128.2 in January from 127.9 in December. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said main reasons for the increase were higher home-ownership costs, train fares and food prices. (CP Newsmap)

Canada's Net Debt Is Cut $32 A Head

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's net debt is being reduced this fiscal year, after 12 successive annual increases, to an average of $793 for each Canadian from a rate of $825 a head last year.

Figures released today in the government's pre-budget white paper estimate net debt will amount to $16,881,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year March 31, down by $455,000,000 from a peak of $17,336,000,000 a year earlier.

The net debt is calculated by subtracting all the money owed to the government from the gross public debt, which is the total of money owed by the government on bonds and other securities plus its liabilities on insurance and pension funds.

The gross debt advanced less steeply this year than in the recent past, by an estimated $2,099,000,000 to an expected $38,018,000,000 as of March 31. Last year, the gross debt went up by almost $3,000,000,000.

Within the gross public debt, money owed on government securities increases by an estimated $312,000,000 in the year t $22,613,000,000. Most of the increase results from growth o $374,000,000 in holdings of Canada savings bonds.

The cost of paying interes and administering the publi debt rose by an estimate $224,000,000 to $1,704,000,00 the fiscal year, or 14 cents of every budgetary dollar spen

Pension Fund Rises

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Pension Plan will have a fund of $2,929,000,000 at the end of this fiscal year, March 31, an increase of $821,000,000 for the year, the pre-budget background papers report.

All but $104,800,000 of the fund, kept as an operating balance, is invested in interest-paying securities mainly issued by the provinces.

The pension plan had total receipts during the current fiscal year of $889,000,000 from contributions, interest on investments and other sources. Its payments of benefits this year total $67,800,000, increased from $30,000,000 last year.

The plan was enacted in April, 1965, and operates in all parts of Canada except Quebec, where a comparable provincial plan is in operation.

The fund was expected to reach $4,900,000,000 by the end of 1975, but indications now are that it will grow much larger.

The papers also report that the old age security fund will have a balance of $724,900,000 by March 31. This fund is made up of special sales, personal income and corporation profits taxes, and is used to pay flat-rate pensions of $79.58 a month to everyone at age 65.

Old age security fund revenues this fiscal year are expected to be $1,823,000,000, while current pension and income supplements will draw plements will draw $1,719,000,000, adding $104,000,000 to the fund's credit balance.

Florida River Covered Bank-to-bank with Oil

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A barge-freighter collision sent a bank-to-bank oil slick rolling down the St. John's River today toward the Atlantic Ocean and Jacksonville area beaches.

The black mass, spilled into the river Thursday night when a freighter plowed into an oil-filled barge, coated both shores of the St. Johns for about 10 miles.

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said the sludge moved about two miles an hour on an outgoing tide toward the mouth of the river and the ocean beaches.

Coast guard officials said the freighter Merc Buccaneer, inbound from the Bahamas, slammed into the barge Estpet seven miles east of Jacksonville, ripping a three-foot gash below the water line. No injuries were reported.

J. W. Connolly, president of Eastern Seaboard Petroleum Co., said his workmen estimated the total spillage at 7,000 gallons. The ruptured tank held 30,000 gallons, he said.

All traffic on the busy river—entrance to the Port of Jacksonville—was halted, but it was expected to be opened today.

"It's going to be messy, but it shouldn't present a hazad to shipping," the spokesman said.

Officials said oil gushed freely from the barge for about an hour after the crash.

A second barge was brought alongside and fuel was pumped out to lighten the stricken craft's load.

Canadian Ports Must Be Improved

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian ports will continue to lose traffic to their United States counterparts if they fail to become more efficient in their management, a meeting of port officials was told Thursday.

John L. Eyre, president of a shipping firm and of the Canadian Transportation Research Forum, urged highly scientific methods and more use of competent research and planning in Canadian ports.

He told a meeting sponsored by the Canadian Port Committee that among ports most vulnerable to U.S. traffic solicitors are Toronto and Montreal. As well, Canadian ports faced competition from overland transport.

In reference to possible feder-government creation of local port commissions, he said:

"One hopes that federal Transport Minister Donald Jamieson realizes what an awesome Pandora's box he might open by spawning these new—and inevitably vocal—local port commission bodies."

It Might Be Hard to Prove Pollution National Concern

OTTAWA (CP) — If it came to a constitutional test in court, the federal government would be hard pressed to prove that there was urgent national concern in unilateral federal action against water pollution, a Commons committee was told Thursday.

A polluter charged with breaking the proposed Canada Water Act probably would defend himself in court by claiming that the waters involved were not really matters of national concern.

These opinions were put before the Commons resources committee by D. S. Thorson, associate deputy justice minister, who acknowledged that court challenges would present "rather formidable problems."

To be effective, he said, anti-pollution action "must really be co-operative" by federal and provincial governments.

"If provinces were to be completely hostile to attempts at federal action . . . there would be serious difficulties."

Under questioning, Mr. Thorson said that to control individual pollutants, such as phosphate detergents, it is easier to amend the Criminal Code than to ban them in the proposed act. But enforcement by the provinces might vary.

Care would have to be taken if it was banned under the water act because municipalities might end up as the culprits since most of the phosphate detergents got into the waters from household wastes.

The water act would be federally enforced.

Safety Device Warns If Brakes Are Faulty

OTTAWA (CP) — A brake safety device, tried out on eight school buses, warned one bus driver four times in a month that his brakes were about to fail, the device's inventor said Thursday.

Jean Godin, 53, a former mechanic who now heads Hydraulic Safety Devices Ltd. of Maisonnette, N.B., said his device showed the driver the brake fluid in the master cylinder was below safety level.

When the cylinder is less than half full a red light flashes on the vehicle's dashboard, he said. This gives the driver about 90 seconds to stop before the brakes fail.

Mr. Godin told the Commons transport committee his Maisonnette plant, 35 miles south of Bathurst, has been in operation since January this year.

He had approached engineers at three major car companies, Chrysler, Ford and General Motors, and was told the device would have to be marketed commercially for several years before it would be used as standard equipment in cars.

Mr. Godin said he developed the device after noticing many drivers involved in accidents were unaware their brakes had failed.

Broadcasters To Meet Early

OTTAWA (CP) — The 365-member Canadian Association of Broadcasters has advanced the date for its annual convention to give urgent consideration to Canadian Radio-Television Commission proposals for increasing Canadian content on TV and radio.

The convention, originally scheduled for April 19 to 22 in Halifax, will be held in Ottawa April 10 to 12, Jim Allard, C.A.B. executive vice-president, said Thursday in an interview.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Burnes

"Just pretend I'm that cute redhead in accounting taking up an office collection."

Wages Outpace Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — The finance department estimates that wages and salaries rose 11.5 per cent last year while productivity rose by only half of one per cent in commercial industries apart from agriculture.

Statistical tables in Finance Minister Edgar Benson's pre-budget white paper also say that wages and salaries per unit of output rose 6.4 per cent, while corporation profits per unit of output rose 3.6 per cent.

The white paper contrasts these increases with the rise in consumer prices of 4.5 per cent for the year. It notes that wage and salary costs outran price increase, while corporation profits lagged.

It also says the labor force fell sharply in the second half of the year. This was mainly due to a cyclical swing in the number of people participating in the labor force either as employed or unemployed workers.

It is characteristic of the economy that when times are booming, housewives and others take jobs that normally would not do so. At the first sign of reduced economic activity, some of these leave the labor force.

Post Office Has Surplus

OTTAWA (CP) — An operating surplus of $3,000,000 is forecast for the post office in the fiscal year ending March 31 compared with a deficit a year ago of $32,000,000, say the pre-budget background papers tabled today in the Commons.

Net receipts of $353,000,000 are forecast for the current year compared with $310,000,000 last year. Net operating costs are forecast at $350,000,000 against $342,000,000.

A $41,100,000 increase in revenues from postage is the big difference, reflecting rate increases. Postage revenues for 1969-70 are projected at $384,000,000.

It's Billion-dollar Turn-around

In addition to these budgetary accounts, the government estimates other receipts to total $2,233,000,000 from such things as the Canada Pension Plan and old age security taxes, increased from $1,996,000,000 last year.

Extra-budgetary outlays are estimated at $2,812,000,000, including $1,230,000,000 in loans, investments and advances principally to Crown corporations. This is down significantly from last year's $3,357,000,00.

Comments on the current and prospective economic situation are reserved. They deal mainly with inflation, described as the worst since 1951 during the Korean War.

trying, through the prices and incomes commission, to supplement its program of tight money, high taxes, and government spending cuts with restraints on prices and costs, including salaries and wages.

"This strategy takes time to work," the white paper says. But if successful, it should bring the country back to more stable prices with less damage than by credit policies alone.

Some progress was made during 1969 in restraining the growth of demands on the economy. By the end of this year, "if price increases can be restrained while the remaining demand pressures die out," more balanced growth can proceed.

The survey of 1970 prospects does not estimate the growth of gross national product for this year, in either real or current price terms. In 1969, it grew 4.8 per cent in real output, and 4.2 per cent in increased prices. In the final three months of 1969 it was running at an annual rate of $80,252,000,000.

Mr. Benson will forecast the new year's GNP, and his anticipated revenues and expenditures, when he delivers his budget speech March 12. Expectations now are that he will make few tax changes and that he will budget for another large surplus, continuing the anti-inflation drive.

The government now has large cash balances, expected to be $941,000,000 on March 31, up $339,000,000 from a year earlier. This will again reduce the likelihood that the government will have to make any large additional bond borrowings in the new fiscal year, though it has $1,730,000,000 in maturing bonds to refinance.

The economic forecast is for continuing slow growth of the labor force and of employment, with some increase in unemployment over the 1969 average which was 4.7 per cent of the labor force. Unemployment was 6.1 per cent of the labor force in January, but 4.5 per cent in seasonally-adjusted terms.

Consumer demand, supported by high incomes, is expected to continue strong in most areas, although rising more slowly for sales of durable goods such as automobiles. Demand for services may be dampened by high prices. Last year consumer prices rose by 4.5 per cent and disposable personal incomes by 4.2 per cent after taxes and discounting inflation.

Construction of new housing may ease. After 210,415 new housing units were started in 1969, the figure for 1970 is expected to be closer to 200,000.

On exports, the white paper says "we may be fairly optimistic . . . apart from wheat, automobiles and parts."

"The slowing down of growth in imports is expected to be greater than that of exports."

Consequently there should be a better commodity trade balance.

Internationally, the white paper says, the malaise of inflation is widespread, with consumer prices in the United States rising six per cent last year, compared with Canada's increase of 4.5.

The U.S. is fighting inflation with restrictive fiscal and monetary policies, but "the results in terms of moderating increases in prices and costs have yet to become evident."

Demonstrator Is Wounded

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Under a shower of rocks and bottles, 300 policemen lobbed tear gas containers to drive 500 demonstrators off the streets of a collegiate suburb of this university city Thursday night.

One demonstrator was shot by a campus policeman and another struck by a police squad car, a sheriff's spokesman said. Four policemen and a third demonstrator were injured. A police spokesman said there were "25 to 50 arrests."

A CALL FOR ACTION TO CURB PRICE INCREASES

All business firms and other commercial establishments in Canada are called upon to reduce the number and size of price increases they would normally make in 1970 by ensuring that such increases are clearly less than the amount needed to cover increases in costs.

This basic principle and the way in which it should be interpreted in particular areas of business were developed and adopted by the National Conference on Price Stability on February 9 and 10, and were endorsed by the Heads of Government at the Federal-Provincial Conference on February 16 and 17.

The Closing Statement of the National Conference on Price Stability and the relevant portion of the Statement of Conclusions of the Federal-Provincial Conference of First Ministers may be obtained by writing to:

He is a member of the newly organized King George band under the direction of teacher Barry Bevvan, who brought his group of beginning players to performance level after only four months of instruction.

Tweed School Debate Enters Next Round At Monday Meeting

Latest round in the battle between Tweed - Hungerford ratepayers and the Hastings board of education in the closure of Tweed - Hungerford High School was fired Wednesday night with the publication of a half - page advertisement in The Intelligencer.

Sponsored by the ratepayers, the advertisement sought support from county residents for retention of the school as a secondary institution. It is slated to be sold in June to the Hastings - Prince Edward Separate School Board for conversion into a senior elementary school accommodating grades 7, 8, 9, and 10.

The board, for its part, has invited the members of the Tweed - Hungerford Ratepayers Association to meet with trustees and members of the administration in private session March 2 "for the purpose of giving further consideration to the proposed closing" of the school.

Following the private session the board will meet in open session to consider a report emanating from the 7 to 7.30 discussions.

"The board has spent a great deal of time studying the accommodation, costs and the educational program availability, with a view to providing the finest possible educational opportunities for all students," board chairman James Clarke said this morning.

Authors of the ratepayers advertisement, businessman Donald Hodgins and United Church minister Rev. Ian Munro of Tweed were in Toronto and unavailable for comment.

But ratepayers' association president Laird Morton said Thursday morning "there is plenty of economic and educational justification for retention of the high school."

"We don't agree that wider educational opportunities exist for our students at Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc," he said.

Following closure of the school in June, Tweed-Hungerford's 334 students would be sent 15 miles to CHSS in Madoc. All students in the Tweed district taking technical options in high school are now bused to Madoc because of lack of technical facilities in the Tweed - Hungerford school.

Mr. Morton added that his group "doesn't agree it is cheaper to educate students in Madoc than in Tweed".

He indicated that figures provided by the board, proving per pupils costs in Madoc lower than in Tweed don't tell the entire story.

"You are dealing with calculated figures and it all depends on what expenditures you include or exclude in making the calculations," he said.

Since outstanding debentures on the Tweed school total only about $20,000, he believes deentures and costs of operation of the school plants should be included in calculating per pupil cost differences between Madoc and Tweed.

The 1968 audited statements used in by both the ratepayers and the board in providing comparative costs are misleading, Mr. Morton said, because costs were unusually high in Tweed that year.

"Two more teachers were
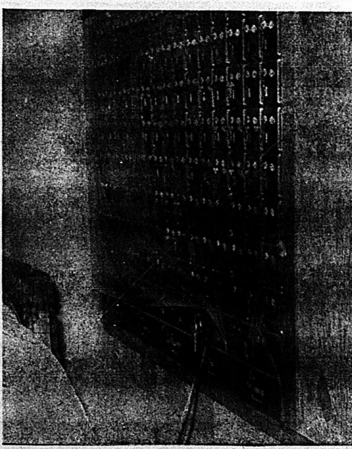
"With the population growth than were needed because some students chose to withdraw from the school and take technical options in Madoc," said Mr. Morton in accounting for the costs.

"People here are satisfied with the type, quality and cost of education they are getting," he said. "Some people I have talked to are prepared to pay a slight bonus, $5 to $10 a year, to retain our school and avoid their children having to take a 30-mile bus trip each day, with subsequent loss of extra curricular activities and sports.

"With the population in this area, the Tweed - Hungerford school gives a fine base on which to build in the future when a larger school will be needed to handle increased enrolments."

At the last meeting between the board and the ratepayers' association at Centennial Secondary School in Belleville, Mr. Hodgins said that costs of education were higher in Tweed because of the smaller size of its school. He said the concept of a composite school, like each of the other seven secondary schools in the county, was "acceptable" to the people of Tweed. He asked the board to determine if it were feasible and economically sound to enlarge the Tweed school to a composite school of about 800 students.



Keen Advice of Two Adjudicators Has Filtered Through to Contestants

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Belleville's biggest musical event of the year sounds its final notes today.

The 1970 Rotary Music Festival stages its final adjudication session on Friday afternoon.

The show, featuring a broad cross section of talent participating in the festival, begins at 8 p.m.

The last festival session was scheduled for St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church early this afternoon where adjudicator Ranken Bushby was to judge an entry list of 18 young piano soloists.

Piano classes were the majority of entries at Belleville Collegiate this morning, where British concert pianist Sidney Harrison was adjudicating.

The detailed advice given by both men has not gone unheard during the festival which had an estimated 3,000 total participants.

Mr. Harrison noted this today as he watched teenage pianists compete at the collegiate.

Noting the style of presentations, he told the young musicians: "Some of the things I've been saying about piano-playing have circulated around."

However, he emphasized the importance to piano - playing of grace and behavior toward the instrument.

"If you want a beautiful sound you have to have beautiful behavior," he said.

He told the class — which only had one male participant — that grace and beauty were not exclusive to women.

Most of the world's great concert artists, conductors and composers were men, Mr. Harrison pointed out.

He again was struck by the absence of arm-movement in most of the players' styles, resulting in restricted rhythm.

Piano, sight reading — Ann Ketcheson, 85; Linda Johnston, 84; Evelyn Caswell, 82.

French horn — Karen Kimmerly, 72.

Trombone — George Sheffield, 83.

Bass Tuba — Peter Fargey, 83; Mark Piwowarski, 78.

Cornet — Paul Scott, 78.

Saxophone — Carolyn Lewis, 84.

Cornet, open — Robert Cronk, 90; Robert Smith, 87.

French horn, open — Kerry Stratton, 84; Linda Pulver, 78.

Baritone horn — Keith Payton, 83.

Bass Tuba — Peter Rollinson-Lorimer, 78; Ross Kemp, 75.

Accordion Octet — Ettore's intermediate orchestra, 90.

Accordion octet, open — Ettore's senior orchestra, 90.

Duets, Solos and Instrumentals Take Up Thursday's Session

At St. Andrew's Church, Thursday, the morning began with a girls' duet — 14 years and under — sung by six contestants. Marks were: Fran and Holly White (84); Brenda and Sharon Dyer (83); Elaine Williams and June Watson (82); Nina and Nora Flieger (81); Marilyn and Marlene Mackey (81) and Suzanne Dordan and Kathy Dixon (79). Class 73, girls' duet — 17 years and under: Carolyn and Beverly Lewis (84); Jackie Unger and Marilee Jones (81); and Marie Brain and Dianne Duffy (81) Class 75 was a boys' duet — unchanged voices: Ted Wilton and Ross McLeod (78) and Harold Graham and David Stott (75).

Singing I Love All Graceful Things was Class 152—girls' solo — 14 years and under: Marie Brain (84); Joanne Belanger (83); Brenda Dyer (82); Susan Riedel (82); Susan Walsh (81); Cathy Peters (81); Beverly Blacquire (79); Joanne Scott (77). Adjudicator Ranken Bushby commented that all the competitors in this class needed to "learn how to breathe", since when you sing you "must breathe deeply."

Only two girls competed in Class 155, Girls' solo — 8 years and under: Susan Maidment (83); Kelly Jones (81). "One sang just a little better than the other," commented the adjudicator.

There is a Ladye, Class 138 — tenor, was sung by John McLean who received a rating of 82. He had a "nice, true tenor voice" but needs "muscle support for his voice" said Mr. Bushby.

Class 139 — baritone, was sung by Colin Robbins and done exceptionally well. "The song was very well sung, words were clear, and the dynamics well done," but, said Mr. Bushby, he needed a little more thought put into his interpretation.

The afternoon session at St. Andrew's consisted of a number of performances on instruments. Playing in Class 231 — 14 years and under, were four competitors with marks as follows: Glenn Parsons (84), Nicholas Adams (83), Bill Bronson (82), Dale Jones (81).

Geoffrey Pearce gained a mark of 83 as he played Waltz Grazioso, Class 232 — clarinet solo, 11 years and under.

Class 237 was a saxophone solo — 15 years and under and marks were Ivy Smith (82) and Bruce Thompson (79).

Class 27 — piano solo — 11 years and under had four competitors: Jane Bastedo (87); Paul Campbell (83); Mark Potts (82); Wendy Bileski (75).

Class 41 — piano trio — 10 years and under: Maureen Ward, Gail Thicke and Wendy Riddle (83); Peter Irvine, Garry Frauts and Gordon Shewfelt (82); Clarice Van-Anne Macdonald (81) and Catherine Wiegand, Mark Liggins and Patrick Dowling (78).

Following the supper break, Class 51 performed beginning a period of choir singing: North Hastings High School Choir, Bancroft received a rating of 165 (a) 85 and (b) 80; Class 52 — female voice choirs: North Hastings High School girls' choir, Bancroft 171, (a) 86 and (b) 85; St. Andrew's Church 169 (a) 85 and (b) 84. Class 53 — two part choirs — College St. School Choir, Trenton 168, (a) 84 and (b) 84: Class 81 Collegiate or High School Choirs — North Hastings High School Choir, Bancroft, 172, (a) 86 and (b) 86; Class 82, Collegiate or High School Choirs, North Hastings High School Girls' Choir, Bancroft, 169, (a) 84 and (b) 85; Class 135 — soprano: Anne Colèbourne 86; Class 136 — mezzo: Rosslyn Robertson 87; Kathy Smithrim 87.

Queen's Faculty Member Cleared

KINGSTON (CP) — A Queen's University committee Thursday found Dr. Henry Becker "utterly innocent" of any attempt to suppress the political views of student Charles Edwards, but added the professor's words could have been misunderstood as having political overtones.

The committee, in reference to a visit by an RCMP officer to the university last October, also said there was "a danger that Mr. Edwards was being subjected to surveillance respecting his lawful political beliefs or activities."

"The minister of the Crown responsible for the RCMP should immediately be called upon to account in Parliament for the behaviour of the RCMP in this matter," the committee said in its report on a hearing of Mr. Edward's charge.

Sophiasburg To Assess Fire Needs

PICTON (Staff) — A representative of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department is now surveying Sophiasburg township to assess its financial ability to operate a fire department.

Township Reeve George Foster said today that C. H. Pope of Belleville has begun a study of the district and expects to have a report ready for council within a month.

In his survey Mr. Pope will investigate the township's water supply, population figures and availability of manpower.

Mr. Foster added that this was the only comment he could make regarding Sophiasburg's plans for fire protection.

Ottawa Gives Approval For 81-unit Residence

A federal loan of $753,555 to the Ontario Housing Corporation for a senior citizens' housing project in west Belleville, has been approved in Ottawa by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The loan for 50 years at 7¾ per cent interest covers 90 per cent of the cost of constructing a two - storey 81 - unit apartment in the Palmer Gardens subdivision on West Bridge Street, immediately across from the Belleville fairgrounds. The complex will have accommodation for a resident caretaker.

Gownbrae Ltd., a Toronto firm which plans construction of more than 900 housing units in single family residences, town houses and high-rise apartments, has been awarded the contract for the senior citizens apartment structure.

Student Riot Worse Than Quake

MANILA (Reuters) — This capital city of the Philippines was still shaken today from the combined effects of an earthquake that rocked the city overnight and a fierce battle between police and anti-American students in the streets.

The quake struck just before midnight Thursday night, shaking buildings over a wide area of the city and nearby provinces.

So far, however, there were no reports of serious damage or casualties from the quake.

Police used tear gas and fired shots in the air to disperse the demonstrators who had gathered in the city plaza.

Women's Liberal Group Holds Auction

Liberal coffers were given a boost and female auction hounds a chance to keep in trim when the Women's Liberal Association held an auction sale at the Kiwanis Centre in place of their February meeting.

Members, with guests, responded with little urging to the spiel of auctioneers Betty Hobbs and Barb Drumm, with the result that all donated items from brass to pottery to chili sauce were cleared before the evening was over.

First Win in Month

Desjardins Finally Gets Support

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Goaltender Gerry Desjardins has become accustomed to hard work but with a new squad of team-mates in front of him, the industry begins to take on new meaning.

The 25-year-old goalie had to kick out 34 shots Thursday night, but the scoring power of Bobby Hull and Pit Martin gave Chicago Black Hawks a 3-2 win over Philadelphia Flyers.

It was the first victory in a month for Desjardins, who last Friday moved from the last-place Los Angeles Kings in the West Division to the Hawks in a six-player trade.

The win kept Chicago in fourth spot in the East Division, one point in front of Detroit Red Wings who kept pace by trouncing Oakland Seals 7-1.

Denis Dejordy, who changed places with Desjardins in the Chicago-Los Angeles deal, was not so fortunate Thursday as he absorbed his second loss in as many starts with the Kings. Pittsburgh goalie Al Smith registered his first season shutout as the Penguins edged the Kings 1-0.

In one other game, Boston Bruins moved back to within two points of leading New York in the east by beating the Rangers 5-3 at Boston.

Desjardins played in 42 of the Kings 55 games to trade time, running up a goals-against average of 3.84 as the hapless Los Angeles squad scrambled to only nine wins. Their last victory was 5-4 over New York Jan. 28.

Making his first start for the goals by Bob Clark and Andre Lacroix of the Flyers, but Hull's 30th and 31st season goals and one by Martin were all Chicago needed.

"You have to play on this club to really appreciate these guys," Desjardins said of his new team-mates after the game.

"I can't express my happiness. I'm bubbling over with joy. I only hope I can play to their expectations and we get into the playoffs."

He said the 36 shots he faced were little compared to what he was used to with the Kings.

"I'm used to 45 to 50 shots a game with Los Angeles. My average per game was 39."

A crowd of 14,606 at Philadelphia also saw a new face appear in the Flyers nets. Dunc Wilson, replacing the injured Doug Favell as backup man to Bernie Parent, took his first loss after making only 23 saves.

DeJordy stopped 29 Penguins shots in the game before 4,826 fans at Pittsburgh while Smith had to make 35 saves to earn the shutout.

Ken Schinkel's 18th season goal early in the third period spoiled DeJordy's night and gave Pittsburgh the needed points to break out of a tie with Philadelphia and into second place in the west.

Johnny McKenzie set up two goals by Fred Stanfield and one by Phil Esposito to spark the Bruins before a home crowd of 14,835.

Garnet Bailey and Eddie Westfall also scored as the Bruins pelted New York goalie Ed Giacomin with 41 shots.

The Bruins took an early 3-0 lead in the first period and were leading 4-1 on Bailey's goal early in the second period when the Rangers came back to within one goal on goals by Arnie Brown and Dave Balon.

The second McKenzie-to-Stanfield scoring play at the 6:54 mark of the final period put the game out of the Rangers reach.

New York captain Bob Nevin scored the other goal on Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers in the first period.

Dave Balon of New York Rangers Thursday replaced Phil Goyette of the idle St. Louis Blues as fifth man among the National Hockey League scoring leaders with a goal and assist in a 5-3 loss to Boston Bruins.

Centre Phil Esposito of the Bruins also earned a goal and assist to move to within 13 points of team-mate Bobby Orr who leads the league with 93.

Orr failed to score Thursday but winger Johnny McKenzie set up three goals and moved into 10th place among the scorers.

MIAMI (AP) — Doug Ford, a 22-year veteran of the U.S. pro golf tour, was hit with a first-round total of 116 in the $150,000 Doral Open golf tournament Thursday.

Ford put the figure 40 in the space for his ninth-hole score. The 40 was his total for the front nine, but he didn't notice the error and signed the card.

In the tourney's Pro-Am event Wednesday, U.S. PGA champion Ray Floyd made a similar error. He was tagged with a 110 round when he put down 36 for the ninth hole instead of in the space for his nine-hole total.

Minor sports is becoming a financially-complex animal.

That was never more evident than at last night's annual Belleville Minor Sports Association meeting, when discussions hinged on best future ways to fund the recreational needs of 3,000 city youngsters.

Coulson noted that the Association, which currently co-ordinates the activities of some 3,000 Belleville youngsters participating in eight sports, covered 45 per cent of its 1969 expenditures with city of Belleville grants ($6,300) and a share of the United Community Services campaign fund ($8,400).

"This places us in an extreme position of dependence," said Coulson, before turning over the chair to incoming president Bill O'Sullivan. "A disastrous UCS campaign would also be a disaster to us, as would reduced budget allowances in regards to the grant we presently receive from the city."

"I am not recommending that subsidies are not necessary in minor sports. But I do feel that now is the time to reduce our dependence on outside assistance."

That opened up a sizeable kettle of fish.

Coulson suggested several means that the Association might consider to get the bread out.

Selling membership cards in the Association would offer the 3,000 participants more than just the right to "active recreation." They could use their card for everything from cut-rate hamburgers to special admission rates to city sporting events pending arrangement of details with the parties involved.

A standing committee to investigate means of raising funds for such minor sports-backed projects as a second city arena was another Coulson suggestion. Minor sport sponsor Harry Morrison was unofficially drafted into heading up such a committee.

Mr. Morrison was promptly given food for 1970 thought from the Branch 99 Legion floor. Lou Smrke suggested an annual minor sports "do" — a large-scale picnic or dance — would stone a couple of birds. It could be a big Association revenue-producer, and provide a chance for the city's minor sport volunteers to "talk up" their respective ideas and projects.

City Recreation Director Lorne Williams came up with a thought that brought back blister-twinges.

He proposed making September's round-the-bay walkathon to raise funds for the Quinte Action Centre an annual affair, with the Minor Sports Association earmarking proceeds for the projects of its choice.

Earlier in the proceedings, Association walkathon committee chairman Hugh Sutherland had presented Quinte Action Centre's Dick Hurst with $31,000, net proceeds collected to date from the Big Bunion.

Sutherland joined O'Sullivan on the new executive as first vice-president. Apollo Barbell Club member Gary Walt will carry his share of the BMSA load as second vice-president in 1970.

Incoming secretary will be Myles Tillotson, and Cliff Belch will try his hand at treasurer's duties.

Ken Carr-Braint offered the solitary non-financial suggestion of the evening.

The Apollo Club coach had notions of a sports day on which the public could be introduced, via demonstrations, to such activities as weightlifting, or track and field that often take a back seat to the team sports.

That, too, will be investigated by the incoming executive.

For those who feared the loss of outgoing president Coulson's untiring talents, a constitutional amendment provided some solace.

Henceforth, immediate BMSA past-presidents will be considered officers of the Association and, as such, will sit on the decision-making executive council in an advisory capacity.

COSSA Bounce On

Bay of Quinte basketball teams plan to put some "bounce" in the Centennial Secondary School gym, when they hold their championship tournament Saturday. Finalists in the one-day tourney will be eligible for COASA, which will be held the following week at Centennial.

Final games in the Bay of Quinte tournament will be Saturday evening, with the midgets playing at 6.00, the juniors at 7.30 and the senior contest at 9 p.m.

There will be no admission charge and the school cafeteria will be open to provide refreshments.

Godson Proves Senior Hockey Tightening Up

The nifty - skating centre led Belleville Mo-Hawk point-getters for his second straight season this year, and, despite lowering his output, found himself ranking higher among league scorers.

Godson's 17 goals and 25 assists (he had 15 goals, 34 helpers last season), placed him 15th among this year's senior point-getters.

GEORGE GODSON

But last season, Godson and the other three Mo-Hawks in this year's league top 30 (Lorne O'Donnell: 20-19-39; Al Ferguson: 22-14-36; Davey Jones: 16-18-34) would have been left in a cloud of dust.

Barrie's Corby Adams won the 1968-69 senior scoring title with 79 points, and was one of 11 players who collected 60 or more in the 40-game schedule.

But this year's runaway leader, Oakville's "Obie" O'Brien (40 goals, 37 assists), is the only player in the league to collect more than 60 scoring points.

Errol McKibbon took top goaltending honors last season with a 3.35 goals-against average.

This year's best backstop, Orillia's Gerry McNamara, boasts a comparatively microscopic 2.44 record, and is one of five league goalies under McKibbon's 1968-69 winning figures.

Steve Rexe's 3.89 record this year would have made him a real contender last winter.

Final league statistics released today also reveal Belleville Mo-Hawks collected 340 scoring points this season, down 17 from the 1968-69 club output.

Here, too, there is an important difference.

This year's Mo-Hawks clinched a playoff spot with the season three - quarters over. Last year's club couldn't make the playoff grade.

With one game gone in their best-of-seven quarter - final series against Kingston Aces, the Mo-Hawks have yet to make the grade in spades this year, either.

The Mo - Hawks will try to avenge Tuesday night's 7-5 loss in the second game of the set, to be played in Belleville's Memorial Arena at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Sunday night, the teams return to Kingston for an 8 o'clock game. The Mo-Hawk Booster Club is running a bus to Sunday's game. Interested persons should contact 962-2605, 962-6078, or 968-9924.

Blondie Breeds 10-pin Pessimism

Entrants in the fourth annual Corby's 10 - pin Handicap Tournament can start getting pessimistic about their chances at a share of the $2,300 in guaranteed prize money.

Blondie Robinson is coming to town.

Belleville Brunswick Bowl manager Ron Swatuk announced today that Toronto's Graydon "Blondie" Robinson, 1969 world amateur 10 - pin champion, will be competing in team, doubles and singles competition Sunday afternoon, the windup day of the three weekend Corby's event.

Sporting a current average of 202, Robinson is certainly an odds-on favorite to beat most of the 400 competing bowlers to the prize money.

"I've bowled with and against Blondie in Toronto," says proprietor Swatuk, "and he's a great guy to bowl with. He's with you even when he's against you."

Approaching 40, Robinson bested 10 - pinners from 35 other countries in Tokyo last year to bring Canada her first world bowling title in the five - year history of the competition. He will defend his kegling crown in Copenhagen this year.

Accompanying Robinson to Sunday's Corby competition will be fellow Toronto 200 - shooters Bob Moore, Harvey Green, Gord Graham, and Ray Mitchell, a team that may soon be launching an exhibition tour. Each of the fivesome has recorded a high single of at least 279.

The Robinson team will be one of 50 men's teams gunning for the $500-$250-$125 prize allocation for top three entries. Robinson, who gets rolling around 2.15 Sunday, will also be aiming for top doubles guarantee of $200 and singles $100 purse.

About 30 women's teams are vying for a healthy share of the prize list.

This year's Corby's meet has attracted entries from as far west as London, Ont., and as far east as Montreal.

Last year's Corby's prize fund exceeded $3,600.

As Ron Swatuk points out, Robinson's 202 game is considerably better than league bowlers are used to seeing.

"The highest average in our house is 185, and the next best would be 175," says Swatuk. "Blondie seldom shoots that low."

None Better

World amateur 10-pin bowling champion Goldie Robinson of Toronto will put his skills on display Sunday in Belleville when he competes in the fourth annual Corby's Handicap event at the Brunswick Bowl.

Juniors Do Talking

"I plan on letting them do the talking," says Floyd Crawford. "It's all up to them tonight."

"Them" is the Belleville Ellis Printers, who will face Oshawa tonight in the second game of the Eastern Ontario Junior B semi-finals. Game time for the contest at the Belleville Arena, tonight, has been moved up to 9 p.m. from 9.15.

Any talking done by the Ellis players in Tuesday night's playoff opener was done in tiny whispers, as the Crushmen lived up to their name by handing Belleville a 14-5 drubbing.

However, such long-standing, over-used alibis as "they are not as bad as the score indicated," or "anybody can have an off-game" could very well prove true in the case of Tuesday's contest.

Wins by the Printers in Belleville (6-3) and Oshawa (4-2) in the final league meetings of the two teams were no flukes, as the juniors proved they can play solid two-way hockey with the league's best, if-and-when they decide to.

Particularly surprising in the playoff opener was the play of Greg Burkitt, Danny Lupenette and Ron Jury, all of whom turned in sub-par performances. With players like this, however, who have been possibly the three steadiest performers on the team, Tuesday's effort can justifiably be chalked up to one bad game.

Senior Winners Both Runaways

GALT (CP) — Netminder Gerry McNamara of Orillia Terriers and Oakville Oaks centre Jim Obie O'Brien both are runaway trophy winners on completion of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series regular season scoring statistics.

McNamara, despite missing nearly six weeks when called in reserve by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, played enough games with Terriers to qualify for the Turofsky Trophy.

In 25 games, one more than the minimum, McNamara collected three shutouts and posted a 2.44 goals-against average. Ken Payne of Barrie Flyers followed with a 3.34 average in 30 starts.

O'Brien, with a league-leading 40 goals and 37 assists, finished 17 points ahead of Galt Hornets' Ron Smith to win the Ecclestone Trophy.

Defenceman Rick McClocklin of Barrie logged the most time in the penalty box, 206 minutes.

The leaders Legend: Oa—Oakville, G—Galt, B—Barrie, Or—Orillia, OS—Owen Sound:

Barriage Girls Ready For Repeat of '69 Titles

"Clear the track! Here comes — Sandra?" While women's hockey may not be ready to replace Eddie Shack as top entertainment on the hockey scene, the weaker sex has invaded the ice surfaces and plans on staying.

"The girls are really enthusiastic over the game", says Jerri Rushlow, who competes for Belleville Barriages, and whose husband Don, is the coach, "I think girls' hockey is definitely here to stay."

Belleville's team, sponsored by Mel Barriage Construction, competes in a league with teams from Kingston, Picton, Napanee and Norwood. The Barriage squad is currently holding down third spot in the league standings behind Norwood and Kingston.

The team, which captured C division championships in both 1969 provincial and dominion invitational tournaments is hoping for a repeat performance this season. The provincial championships, which will be held in Picton March 14-15 will feature teams from Toronto, Picton, Norwood, Kingston and Peterborough, as well as the Belleville entry. The same teams will likely be competing in the dominion championships, along with a Quebec entry.

Players shun any special concessions to eliminate rough play, competing under the same rules that govern minor hockey, and are surprisingly adept at such hockey skills as stickhandling and checking.

Barriages have operated a team for the past three years, and most members of the current club have been together for at least two seasons. Leading the scorers for the season is centre Marjorie Reid who has collected 16 points in 15 games. Other top markswomen for Belleville are Sandra Claus (8 goals, 3 assists), Nancy McCallum (6-4), Sue Morton (4-5) and Judy Rappel (3-3).

Like most hockey players they find the pre-game tension the toughest part of the game. As one player puts it, "It's waiting for the game to begin that's the hardest. Once play begins you're all right."

'Who's Gonna Lead?'

Charlene Quinn stops Belleville Barriage forward Jo-Anne Dafoe in inter-squad action of the Quinte women's hockey league. Barriages hope to successfully defend their C division provincial and dominion invitational titles in March.

Greene Sunday

Batawa's "Greene" ski team will be facing a tough challenge Sunday when they compete in the semi-finals of the Nancy Greene league Ontario championship.

Competition will be held at Collingwood's Osler Bluff Ski Club, beginning at 12.30 p.m. Teams from Batawa, Woodstock, the Creighton Astros and Osler Bluff will be battling for top spot.

Winners of the competition meet the first place team in the other semi-finals for the Ontario championship.

Three-way Senior Fight

Saskatchewan Skip Beaten at Own Game

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Jimmy Hill believes anything can happen in curling and Thursday night it happened to him.

The analytical Delisle, Sask. skip was beaten 10-5 by Stan Brooker of Noranda, Que. at his own game—the draw—and now it's a three-way fight for the Canadian seniors' curling championship.

"They say when you miss a guard, you're a champion and when you rub it, you're a chump," said Hill, who raised a Northern Ontario rock into the house for three in the sixth end as he suffered his first loss in eight games.

"I missed a three-ender on the very first end when I drew too far and came up narrow. They counted one and got better. We didn't count very many and got worse."

Hill shared the lead after nine rounds with Slim Otterson of Calgary and Don MacRae of Nanaimo, B.C., who got lucky and lethal to stay in the running. All were 7-1 in the standings.

Brooker had heard the Saskatchewan players were good hitters and he tried to make them play a draw game. But they beat him to it.

"They went to the draw right off and we put the pressure on them," he said.

"We curled the way we had to to get this far."

The key game in today's 10th round, which was scheduled to start at 10 a.m. PST, had Otterson meeting Howie Wood Jr. of Winnipeg, who got back into contention with a 6-2 record following a 10-5 romp over Lawrence Carter of Amherst, N.S. He had lost in the previous round 10-7 to Hill.

MacRae's rounds were a mixture of chance and controlled shooting.

He survived a 3-2 war of nerves with Wen McDonald of Charlottetown, P.E.I., winning with a shot he hadn't even hoped for after they had blanked five ends.

Prince Edward Island was lying three in a well-protected triangle around the eight-foot circle when MacRae threw to the open left side.

The rock took a wierd swing right, caught McDonald's shot rock and spun towards the button. A measurement showed B.C. had a bigger bite of the four-foot circle by about a quarter of an inch.

"It was lucky, there was no doubt about that," said the 54-year-old Nanaimo insurance agent.

There was little luck involved in his 8-6 win over Joe Herrick of St. John's, Nfld.

MacRae was three down through eight ends and needed two perfect draw shots in succession in the ninth to come from behind with a four-ender.

Defending champion Alf Phillips, Sr., of Toronto could manage only a split, squeezing past Carter 9-8 before bowing 8-4 to Otterson. His record was 4-4, the same as MacDonald's.

Otterson needed three in the seventh end to pull ahead of last place John Kilburn of Fredericton, N.B., and win it 9-6. Hill sharpened up for his test with Wood by defeating Kilburn 8-5.

Herrick, with two wins in nine starts, fell 11-3 to Northern Ontario and 9-8 to P.E.I.

Quebec, skipped by John Hibbard of Sherbrooke, and Nova Scotia each had 1-7 records. Carter won his only game by beating Kilburn 7-5 Thursday.

Hibbard suffered three losses, bowing to Manitoba and P.E.I. by identical 11-5 scores and 9-8 to Northern Ontario in an extra end.

Tournament officials have already made plans in the event of a two-or three-way tie for first place after today's rounds.

If two rinks finish regular competition with the same win-loss record they will play off tonight. If it is split three ways, the additional match will go Saturday.

Kingston's Kay O'Neill Spoiler, Forces Three-rink Title Playoff

CALGARY (CP) — The skips' faces reflected the impact of a fantastic final round Thursday night that forced the first three-rink playoff for the Canadian women's curling championship.

Glenda Buhr of Winnipeg frowned, Donna Clark of Burnaby, B.C., smiled and Dorenda Schoenhals of Saskatoon dried her tears. Then they turned their thoughts to today's playoff, set for 11:30 a.m. EST with a Manitoba-Saskatchewan clash. B.C. drew the bye into the second stage at 3:30 p.m.

"I've created a mess," Kay O'Neill of Kingston said after her Ontario rink toppled Manitoba 7-6 in an extra end to create the deadlock among Manitoba, B.C. and Saskatchewan. The three finished the regular nine rounds in the 10-rink, round-robin competition with seven victories and two defeats.

"I've got nothing to say," Mrs. Buhr said—her opportunity to wrap up things blown with a clean miss on an open, last-rock takeout attempt. Ontario stole single points on the last three ends for the upset.

Manitoba was given the chance to win minutes earlier, when Marie Toole of Charlottetown took a 9-7 extra-end victory for Prince Edward Island and left the Saskatchewan girls crying.

B.C. finished its game early, dumping Audrey Thorburne's Nova Scotia rink from liverpool 12-3 in six ends.

The Saskatoon rink, the youngest ever to compete in the championship, won its first seven games, then lost 9-6 to Manitoba in the eighth round.

Kingsville Wins Spiel

WELLAND (CP) — Betty Pindera's Kingsville rink took two games Thursday over Bea Cole's London rink to win the southern Ontario Women's curling championship.

The London rink entered the final day undefeated in the double knockout tournament and needed only one win for the title.

But the Pindera rink, with one previous loss, trounced the London entry 10-3 in morning action and then added a 7-4 win in afternoon play.

The Pindera rink with Ruth Pike as lead, Elvina Arnold, second, and Helen Sanford as vice, finished the tournament with a 7-1 record.

The Cole rink finished 4-2. It was the second consecutive year that a team went into the final day undefeated only to lose two straight games.

Schranz Tied For Ninth Spot

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Karl Schranz, the wily Austrian, today sought to sew up his second straight world skiing title in Canada's four-day World Cup ski meet.

Schranz, 31, needed to place first or second in the giant slalom but after the first half Thursday was tied in ninth place, 1.29 seconds behind leader Werner Bleiner, 24, another Austrian.

He could also take the title by placing fourth or better in the slalom Saturday. And there are two more meets on the circuit, at Heavenly Valley, Calif., and Voss Bergen, Norway.

Schranz, who clinched the 1969 cup in Canada, lost a little timing Thursday and tied at one minute, 32.06 seconds with Dumeng Giovolani of Switzerland. Bleiner's time was 1:30.37.

NO POLLUTION HERE

Sparkling clear drinking water and clean country air, just minutes away from town. This new brick three bedroom can be ready by April 1st. Why not see this bargain at $23,300.

WHAT MAKES THIS HOUSE SO INVITING

First of all it's a two storey with four bedrooms, 1½ baths, spacious dining room and full basement. Elementary and secondary schools are just steps away. Plenty of room in the backyard to do your own thing. CMHC mortgage at 8¼%.

LISTEN TO THIS TWO STOREY

They say life begins at 40, and I haven't quite reached this age. My owner put in a new furnace just four years ago, and with a little paint and face-lifting I'm looking forward to a long life. I need a family that can enjoy my four bedrooms, separate dining room and garage. I live in the central West Hill, within walking distance of schools and downtown and would enjoy meeting an interested buyer.

He Stole The Monster's Boots

Once in fairy tales there was a tiny boy called Hop O' My Thumb who saved his big brothers by stealing a monster's boots so he couldn't chase them. His name has come to mean a tiny person who helps out someone who is bigger.

You have a tiny friend who can help you to more money and empty closets . . . it's a low-cost Intelligencer Want Ad and you get it just by dialing 962-9171.

"The Hardest Working Classified Want Ads are the ones that are Written the Best!"

Follow These Helpful Suggestions For Writing A Good Want Ad.

1—IT'S ALWAYS BEST to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale, start your advertisement with the location.

2—Be CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete or definite information. Always include "price".

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always insert your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, give a preferred time to have prospects contact you.

4—THE GREATEST READER ATTENTION can be secured for your advertisement by using consecutive insertions.

You can stop your ad in the event of results, and then you pay only for the days it is published.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know (about your offer). The answer you give will make a good Classified Ad.

6—CLASSIFIED readers are already interested in buying your used or new merchandise. These people have the money and are already in the market to buy. So give them every advantage you can with good ad copy.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL to bring satisfaction do so, not through any lack of readership, but because they are often carelessly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market rose moderately in light mid-morning trading today, extending a rally that began late Thursday.

On index today, industrials were up .62 to 183.24, golds 1.09 to 148.90, base metals .50 to 113.67 and western oils .25 to 203.53.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 489,000 shares compared with 642,000 at the same time Thursday.

Gains outnumbered losses 128 to 95 with 181 issues unchanged.

Seaway dropped $1.50 to $4.30 on 9,590 shares after a brief trading halt to match orders.

Seaway said Thursday it has no firm agreement to acquire Pierbusseti Inc., a New York travel agency. The company said it has been carrying on negotiations with the principals of Pierbusseti but has arrived at no agreement in principle.

Denison was up ⅝ to 43⅝ and Roman ½ to 14½. Roman gained 3 Thursday and Denison 2¾. Roman said it was negotiating sale of its 25-per-cent interest in Denison but no details were released.

Burns Foods was up ½ to 27½ after reporting annual earnings of $2.41 a share compared with $1.68 in the similar 1968 period.

Thursday, the market recovered most of its earlier losses and closed mixed in light trading.

The market opened mixed, then dropped sharply before its strong recovery in the final hour of trading. Toronto's action seemed to follow a similar movement in New York.

Prices at Toronto jumped sharply in late trading Wednesday following reports that the Lincoln National Bank of Philadelphia reduced its prime rate to eight per cent from 8½.

But major New York and Canadian banks said Wednesday that the move had no significance and that they would not follow with similar reductions.

Thursday's late upswing appeared to be touched off by reports that the United States Federal Reserve Board may be considering relaxing its tight monetary restrictions.

On index, industrials closed off .05 to 182.62 after being down .94 in the first three hours of trading. Western oils lost .56 to 203.28 and base metals .04 to 113.17. Golds gained 1.22 to 147.81.

Volume was 1,775,000 shares compared with 1,913,900 Wednesday.

Losses outnumbered gains 234 to 209 with 271 issues unchanged.

Roman Corp. rose 3 to 14 and Denison 2¾ to 42¾, both after trading halts. Roman said it was negotiating sale of its 25-per-cent interest in Denison but no details were released.

McIntyre jumped 8½ to 162 and Falconbridge, in which McIntyre has a 37-per-cent interest, 1 to 178½. McIntyre recently reported annual earnings of $3.06 a share compared with $2.82 in 1968.

Dustbane gained ¾ to 11½ on 28,100 shares, including a block of 28,000 shares at 11½.

Bank of Montreal slipped ¼ to 16⅞ although three-month earnings were 40 cents a share compared with 32 cents in the similar period last year.

MacMillan Bloedel picked up ⅛ to 32⅛, although fourth-quarter earnings were 42 cents a share compared with 67 cents in the corresponding period last year.

Munro Watching Practices Defeating Aim of Medicare

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro has not wielded the big stick under the federal Medical Care Act although some provincial practices have caused concern here, informants said Thursday.

Federal authorities have taken up complaints with four of the seven participating provinces—Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

The federal act gave Mr. Munro the power to recommend that the cabinet cut off payments to provinces which no longer met basic conditions attached to collecting half their per capita medical care insurance costs from the federal treasury.

In a brief this week to the Senate poverty committee, the federal department said that for families on the margin of poverty, certain emerging developments may be possible hindrances to achieving the objectives of the federal legislation.

One example was extra billing, a hot issue in Ontario where an undetermined number of doctors have exercised their right to bill patients for that part of the medical fee not covered by the provincial medical care plan. Most participating provinces pay 90 per cent or less of the bill.

The potential is there in some provinces that extra billing "could become a practice of significant dimensions," the department said.

Anoter example given was deterrent charges, particularly in Saskatchewan where the patient pays the first $1.50 of a visit to the doctor or $2 of a house call.

High premiums in Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia were cited by the department as another example. The amounts came to a significant percentage of disposable income for families above the cut-off lines for premium subsidy.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Controlled Ills Not Really Cured

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I don't understand the word "cure." Is diabetes curable? —Mrs. C.

Comment: Sometimes we are guilty of using the word too loosely. For example, a doctor may say, "We can cure your diabetes" — meaning we can control it with proper diet and insulin dosage, or with other oral medicines.

Truly, the doctor doesn't suggest that he will give the patient a new pancreas to control sugar metabolism. All he is saying is that a diabetic may live normally for many years if he follows the prescribed treatment.

Is tuberculosis curable? Not really so. It's possible for the disease to break out again. Nevertheless, with proper care (as in the diabetic) the tuberculosis patient may live normally and long.

And so with the pernicious anemia patient who takes his liver or B 12. And the rheumatic fever patient who takes antibiotics to prevent complications.

Whatever the disease, we keep on the alert after apparent cure. This applies to the cancer patient; to the coronary patient; to the patient with kidney or bladder infection; to the one who has had liver involvement.

Ask any competent physician about his definition of the word "cure" and he will make similar reservations. I suppose we should be especially careful in the use of this word. For it is only a quack who will make all kinds of promises to a patient. "I am sure I can cure you" is a stock phrase used by the quack to bring false hope to many an anxious patient.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 65 and have hardening of the arteries. Will you please comment on the effects of tea and coffee on this condition? I limit myself to two cups of coffee and one cup of tea a day. — Mrs. K.

Comment: Unless your doctor found that his interferes with your sleep, I see no reason why you can't enjoy your moderate intake.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've been checked in a hospital and have been told that the lumps in my thyroid are not cancerous. I hate to say it, but I don't believe my doctor is telling the truth because he doesn't want to frighten me. Can there be other reasons for the lumps? — Mrs. L.

Comment: Better believe him. If he thought otherwise, he'd surely tell you that you needed an operation or other treatment right away. The fact that he has told you there's no need to rush into operation to remove the lumps indicates they are benign (not cancerous).

It's likely you have what we call thyroid adenoma. Ask him. If so, you have no reason for being anxious. Surgical removal of thyroid adenoma is not considered a serious operation.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: So much has been said about cigarettes killing people. On the package are these words, "Caution: Cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health."

Why don't they put "caution" on booze bottles? I can smoke a couple of cigarettes and drive my car in safety. But if I took a couple of snorts of alcohol, I would be a hazard to myself and to others, too. — Mrs. H.

Comment: Equally important, I agree. However, I don't place much faith in warnings like printed "Caution" I wonder how many smokers read it before they open the pack. Would they read it before opening the bottle?

Man Not A Modest Species

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It is ironic — and may turn out to be tragically so — that one of the qualities we value so highly in the individual, the trait of modesty, is the very quality we arrogantly disregard as a species.

We recognize that modesty in a person is not only attractive but also socially desirable — it restrains him from bruising or tearing the social fabric, or producing tensions that would bring conflict.

Yet, as a species, the modern race of man is shockingly, blatantly, brashly, heedlessly immodest. Immodest about our place in the universe, about our abilities and achievements, about our relationship to our environment, immodest about our power to do whatever we feel like doing, regardless of the consequences in the present or the future.

And this racial immodesty may well kill us. Long ago, the ancient Greeks warned that the greatest danger to man lay in his own "hubris," his pride. Overweening pride, they predicted, always led to "hamartia," to sin, and this sin was surely followed by "nemesis."

But the pride of ancient man was as nothing compared to the pride of modern, scientific, technological man. We imagine we can do all things, given the money and the might and the will. Nothing is forbidden us, so long as it is in the realm of "possibility."

All wisdom of the past, however — in every civilization, every religion — agrees that some things are forbidden to man. We cannot, with impunity, lay waste to the earth. In pursuing knowledge, we can not use such knowledge for ends that outstrip, or violate, our moral capacity.

A true workman's pride must be tempered by modesty, or he tries more than should be done, destroying his work — and sometimes himself — in the process. As the workman of this world, as the only creature that can transform its environment and shape its own evolutionary development, man must learn to be as modest about his limitations as he is proud of his achievements.

And this we have not learned. Indeed, we are more arrogant than any other previous generation of mankind. We have polluted this planet beyond belief, and almost beyond redemption. We have ignored social values and human needs and personal hungers for the sake of growth and power and pre-eminence as ends in themselves — when they should be the humble servants of mankind's fraternity and liberty and equality.

What we most dislike in the individual — the immodest trampling of natural laws and human feelings — we have most brazenly exhibited in our career as a species. We have become the foremost predators, plunderers and polluters of the earth, and we shall dearly pay for it.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For February 28

Your birthday today: Your year ahead consists largely of simply holding your pace and expanding your rate of earnings. Find or improve your successful marketing pattern or any workable system which pays well and steadily enough. Social contacts and close relationships improve despite all the concentration on business and career.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Everybody near you is apt to demand a broader range of personal independence. Letting them go readily may be the only way to keep them within reach in the long run.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your normally conservative form of expression should reverse today so that you wear brighter colors, speak up more emphatically. Competitive urges are finally dominant, with success over a rival promised.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your hair stylist may have the most cheerful solution to a passing point of concern. Commuting or travel will require added checking for satisfactory service. Allow more time.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You hear all sorts of fantastic ideas, and some of them work, unbidden, perhaps in the midst of some serious bit of work.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Under a conventional surface, friends and family are having rather odd experiences. Survey your home; find out what it would cost to have repairs made.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your day should include study of some creative art. Take the trouble to find out what is going on in your neighborhood.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): This weekend has a normal run of activity. Time your regular chores, meals, etc., for proper sequence. Talk while you work, there's much fun in exploring a lively mind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Think subjectively of your potentials and how better to express them. Consider taking on added things to do.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22—Dec. 21): Unorthodox approaches are more interesting now and produce results beyond your usual experience. You have leadership, but will not change anybody's opinion by pressure. A subtle appeal is better.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Something exciting and completely unexpected happens today. Theory gets a good workout, but the results are inconclusive. Much remains to talk about and more phenomena to be investigated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Expansion in both home and business operations clears off bottlenecks, old hindrances, and some long-standing petty squabble, spending for the home should be moderated for the time being.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Legal and official matters go well. Visitors have some hard-to-verify stories to tell, about strange places and stranger deeds.

Mackasey Enters Postal Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — The labor department has agreed to act as mediator in the postal dispute in Montreal, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said Thursday in the Commons.

The dispute broke out when five new firms won contracts for pickup and delivery of mail in the city starting April.

NDP Is Unable to Block Bills

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democratic Party blockade failed as the Commons final approval Thursday to three bills to give trust, loan and insurance companies increased operating flexibility.

Financial institutions named in the bills will receive wider investmennt powers. Insurance companies for example will be permitted to gain control of mutual funds.

Max Saltsman (Waterloo South), the NDP financial critic, emerged as the chief opponent of the measures, which he said would only reinforce the dark-ages approach of the country's financial institutions.

"We need a complete examination of the role of financial institutions in our society," he said. "We have to go far beyond this tinkering arrangement."

At the same time, he sought a sharp expansion in the scope of the Canada Pension Plan. If carried through, it would increase both benefits and contributions and produce a capital fund for the government to use for special purposes.

Mr. Saltsman doubted that the financial-institution change will produce more money for house mortgages. If it does, it will be at higher interest rates. The Trust Companies Act was inflationary.

Herb Gray, minister without portfolio, maintained that the bill would not produce inflation. Rather it would create more protection for depositors and increase the ability of trust and loan firms to compete with other financial institutions.

Steve Otto (L—York East) maintained that the government should have inserted a provision in the trust bill to ensure that any holdings gained as collateral by them should become the property of the trust company depositors.

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) supported the principle of the bill, but felt more guarantees were required to see that more trust and loan company funds were channelled into housing.

The NDP attempt to kill the Trust Companies Act went down 161-13 as Liberals, Conservatives and Creditistes combined against them. The story was similar or the British Insurance Companies act which went down 100-11. The third kill try did not have a recorded vote.

In other business External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Canada is opposed to all underground nuclear testing, including U.S. blasts. The planned American tests in the Aleutions would not take place for a couple of years, he noted.

Farmers' Union Demands $385 Million for Grain

SASKATOON (CP) — The federal government has been billed by the national Farmers' Union for more than $385,000,000 the union says the government owes western farmers.

In a statement dated Wednesday, union president Roy Atkinson said he had written to Prime Minister Trudeau and the federal cabinet demanding prompt settlement of the account.

"We are awaiting an early reply signifying your intentions as to when your government intends to settle this account in full," he wrote. "If you have already taken steps to pay this account in full, kindly disregard this notice."

He said the union is basing its demand on a letter from J. J. Greene, then minister of agriculture, dated June 17, 1968, in which Mr. Greene spoke of Ottawa's policy of providing minimum income assurances against market or price drops.

Mr. Atkinson said the figure asked represents the difference between the $1.95½ a bushel asked under the International Grains Arrangement, and the $1.70 a bushel for which wheat was sold in 1968.

Pearson Says Aid Not Enough

TORONTO (CP) — Former prime minister L. B. Pearson Thursday precited that Canada will contribute between $375,000,000 and $400,000,000 to developing countries during the coming fiscal year.

"But this is not enough," he told a United Church of Canada luncheon.

After his address, Mr. Pearson said in an interview that Canada should contribute at least $600,000,000 and even more by 1975.

Mr. Pearson, chairman of the commission on international development, said there is no way "we can escape our obligations" by saying money should be devoted to solving problems within Canada.

"We have to do both," he said. "We can do both. Of course we can."

He said developing countries should be able to "achieve self-sustaining roles in a decade or two."

Asked if he could give any assurance that foreign aid would not be used to shore up totalitarian government, Mr. Pearson said he would "hate to see any country deprived of aid because of the kind of government it has."

He said that some totalitarian governments may work in the best interests of their people.

Private Talks Exempt

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons justice committee Thursday modified and passed a section of the hate propaganda bill that would make it an offence to promote hatred wilfully against a group by "communicating statements."

The words "other than by private conversation" were added in an amendment moved by David Lewis (NDP — York South) to safeguard those "letting off steam." The bill is aimed at deliberate hatemongers.

The bill will add two other new offences to the Criminal Code:

—Promoting or advocating genocide against an identifiable group, defined as one distinguished by color, race, religion or ethnic origin. This will carry a prison term of up to 14 years.

—Inciting hatred or contempt against an identifiable group through statements in a public place, when this is liable to cause a breach of the peace. This would carry a two-year maximum penalty.

PICTON — Fire swept through a two-storey business block on Main St. last night, causing damages unofficially estimated as high as $100,000.

Smoke and flames first were spotted in Hutton's Barber Shop on the building's ground floor at about 10:30 p.m. by patrolling policemen. Picton and Bloomfield fire departments answered the alarm while police evacuated 10 families from an adjoining apartment block belonging to Miss Merle Pearsall.

Cause of the blaze remains unknown.

Alerting tenants, police discovered the inert body of resident Lawrence Hennigar, 51. Mr. Henniger was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival. In the absence of Picton coroner Dr. C. R. Richmood, the body was taken to Belleville where an autopsy will be performed today.

Canada Plans No-grow Wheat

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition parties have found little good in a federal no-grow decision aimed at slashing the Canadian wheat surplus and stabilizing international wheat markets.

The plan, announced Friday in the Commons, will put $100,000,000 or more from the federal treasury into the hands of the western farmer to eliminate most of the 1970 wheat crop.

To Alberta's Gerald Baldwin (Peace River), the Conservative House leader, it was "a limited and shabby program" when the sorry situation of the western farmer demanded long-range solutions. Other western countries had not adopted the defeatist attitude for the ruling Liberal party over wheat surpluses.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas thought it "the height of insanity" to take wheat out of production when millions in other countries are hungry. Federal payments to farmers to not grow wheat will barely, if at all cover the cost of the changeover for the farmer.

The object of their distaste would encourage the 188,000 wheat growers in Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and the Peace River district of British Columbia to allow wheat land to either lie fallow or switch it to perennial forage crops such as hay.

Compensation for the summer-fallow switch is $6 an acre, for forage $10.

As a supporting incentive, the delivery quota system administered by the Canadian Wheat

Guatemala Face s Election Crisis

GUATEMALA CITY (CP) — Foreign Minister Alberto Fuentes Mohr was being held under threat of death by leftist guerrillas today as tension mounted on the eve of Guatemala's general election.

The kidnappers, who said they were members of the Revolutionary Armed Forces, seized the foreign minister as he rode home from work Friday night. They gave the government 24 hours to free a university student who had been arrested Thursday in exchange for the minister's release.

The kidnapping was the latest in a series of shooting and bombings in recent weeks. Gunfights, assassinations and accusations of fraud have marked the election campaign and the government has blamed extremists on both the left and right for trying to disrupt Sunday's presidential and congressional elections.

In their ransom message to Guatemala radio stations, the guerrillas said Fuentes Mohr would be freed if 24-year-old student Jose Vincent Giron Calvillo was turned over to the Mexican embassy here.

Police said the rebel group, a Marxist-leaning organization, attempted to assassinate the director of Guatemala's election council last Tuesday. He was slightly wounded.

On Thursday, three persons, including a candidate for Congress from the governing Revolutionary party, were shot and killed as they put up campaign posters on a downtown street.

But police said the shooting was a gun battle between factions of the Revolutionary party and the right-wing National Liberation Movement.

Fuentes Mohr was seized as a chauffeur was taking him to his home Friday after a meeting with election observers from the Organization of American States.

A government spokesman said the kidnappers forced Mohr's car over to the side of the road and ordered him into their car.

"The government is making every effort to obtain the freedom of the minister," the spokesman said. This was taken as an indication that the university student might be released.

Many Guatemalans say the terrorism will continue whatever the outcome of the election.

Pant Suit Vetoed

SUDBURY (CP) — As far as women's pant suits go, "women should look like women," Mrs. Roland Michener said Friday.

"There's a time and place for everything, isn't there?" the Governor-General's wife answered when asked about the new style.

However, miniskirts are a little different.

"It really does count on what the legs look like and just how short is mini, don't you think?"

The vice-regal couple is on a two-day tour of the city. They will visit Belleville March 13 and 14.

Pompidou's Chicago Security 'Almost Like President's'

CHICAGO (CP) — French President Georges Pompidou, who met with Jewish leaders in San Francisco Friday, faces the threat of a major pro-Israel demonstration when he arrives here today.

One estimate has put the number of demonstrators who will be on the streets at between 10,000 and 15,000.

But Pompidou will be accorded an official welcome by Mayor Richard Daley and Gov. Richard Ogilvie of Illinois despite earlier fears the two might ignore his visit.

The president's visit, the first by a French leader to Chicago since Charles de Gaulle came in August, 1945, is threatened by the demonstration planned by Chicago's Jews.

Police have prepared to protect the French leader from demonstrators throughout his entire 19-hour visit with security of "almost (U.S.) presidential proportions," said Deputy Police Superintendent James Rochford.

In San Francisco Friday, Pompidou received a delegation of Jewish leaders concerned over French policy on the Middle East—particularly the decision to sell more than 100 Mirage jet fighters to Libya.

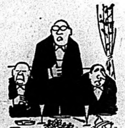
The head of the 15-member delegation, Lawrence Goldberg, said after the meeting: "I don't think the French government will change the position it has maintained all along."

During his visit to California, Pompidou plunged repeatedly into crowds to shake hands.

Pompidou, who said in Paris that he would not speak English during the tour, changed his mind often during the day.

One time came when he was asked at a luncheon if France thought Britain should be permitted to join the Common Market. He shrugged, smiled, and said: "Why not?"

He is to return to Paris Tuesday after visiting New York Sunday andMo nday.



'No one leaves until we hear it for Mr. Pompidou!'

Inflation Rebound Brings Warning

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said Friday indications are that the battle against inflation is being won but warned that over-reacting could be disastrous.

"We do not want the result of our anti-inflation campaign to be increased unemployment, lost capacity and lost income," he said in a speech to the Rotary Club of Toronto.

Mr. Robarts said estimates are that Ontario can expect a real, non-inflationary growth rate during 1970 of slightly more than three per cent, compared with the five-per-cent level of recent years.

"Our problem is to contain the over-all spending of the government while ensuring the necessary and urgent programs continue so that the growth of Ontario will continue uninterrupted."

Mr. Robarts said Canada's inflation fight is being won chiefly because of restraints by industry and government.

He promised continued Ontario support "in restraining and containing inflation within the broad, national approach of this problem."

Tragedy Haunts Family

Dionne Quint Found Dead in Her Apartment

MONTREAL (CP) — Marie Houle, one of the four surviving Dionne quintuplets born on a small Ontario farm 35 years ago, was found dead Friday.

Mrs. Houle had been ill recently and her brother-in-law, Germain Allard, went to her east-end apartment after he and his wife Annette had not heard from her since Monday.

Mr. Allard said he went to her apartment on Pie IX Boulevard along with a policeman and a doctor and broke the door down about 11 a.m.

"I was checking on her because she had not phoned since last Monday," he said. "She usually phoned every day."

At their home in Callander, Ont., the quints' parents, Oliva and Elzire, now in their 60s, were reported to be "very upset" about their daughter's death.

Surviving are Annette, Cecile, separated from her husband, Philippe Langlois, in 1957 and now living in Quebec City with her four children; and Yvonne, who is single and lives in Montreal.

Emilie, the fifth quint, died in 1954 at the age of 20 while she was a postulant in the Order of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate at Ste. Agathe, Que.

Mrs. Houle was married in 1958 at age 24 to Florian Houle, a provincial government official. They separated in 1964.

Last year she placed her two daughters in a foster home operated by nuns. Friends were said to be deeply concerned about her physical condition and apparent depression.

Cause of her death has not been determined and an autopsy was to be performed today.

Last May 2, the four surviving Dionne sisters celebrated their 35th birthday quietly, after years of attempts to avoid publicity and withdraw from the international limelight.

Born on the farm where their parents still live, about 12 miles south of North Bay, the quints have been dogged by a variety of family troubles and personal misfortune.

Their problems intensified after 1955 when they left the home of their parents.

In an interview several years ago, the sisters explained that friction between them and their parents increased with time.

They said there were disagreements over the method of their upbringing and over control of trust funds set up for them at the time of their birth. All have since been independently self-supporting.

Emilie was the first to leave home at the age of 16. Her death four years later was caused by suffocation during an epileptic seizure.

The president's visit, the first by a French leader to Chicago since Charles de Gaulle came in August, 1945, is threatened by the demonstration planned by Chicago's Jews.

Police have prepared to protect the French leader from demonstrators throughout his entire 19-hour visit with security of "almost (U.S.) presidential proportions," said Deputy Police Superintendent James Rochford.

In San Francisco Friday, Pompidou received a delegation of Jewish leaders concerned over French policy on the Middle East—particularly the decision to sell more than 100 Mirage jet fighters to Libya.

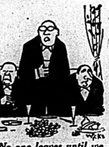
The head of the 15-member delegation, Lawrence Goldberg, said after the meeting: "I don't think the French government will change the position it has maintained all along."

During his visit to California, Pompidou plunged repeatedly into crowds to shake hands.

Pompidou, who said in Paris that he would not speak English during the tour, changed his mind often during the day.

One time came when he was asked at a luncheon if France thought Britain should be permitted to join the Common Market. He shrugged, smiled, and said: "Why not?"

He is to return to Paris Tuesday after visiting New York Sunday andMo nday.



'No one leaves until we hear it for Mr. Pompidou!'

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Seven persons were injured by rock throwing and 114 arrested Friday night as California National Guard troops armed with bayoneted rifles brought relative calm to the Santa Barbara collegiate community after four days of violence.

Inflation Rebound Brings Warning

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said Friday indications are that the battle against inflation is being won but warned that over-reacting could be disastrous.

"We do not want the result of our anti-inflation campaign to be increased unemployment, lost capacity and lost income," he said in a speech to the Rotary Club of Toronto.

Mr. Robarts said estimates are that Ontario can expect a real, non-inflationary growth rate during 1970 of slightly more than three per cent, compared with the five-per-cent level of recent years.

"Our problem is to contain the over-all spending of the government while ensuring the necessary and urgent programs continue so that the growth of Ontario will continue uninterrupted."

Mr. Robarts said Canada's inflation fight is being won chiefly because of restraints by industry and government.

He promised continued Ontario support "in restraining and containing inflation within the broad, national approach of this problem."

Tragedy Haunts Family

Dionne Quint Found Dead in Her Apartment

MONTREAL (CP) — Marie Houle, one of the four surviving Dionne quintuplets born on a small Ontario farm 35 years ago, was found dead Friday.

Mrs. Houle had been ill recently and her brother-in-law, Germain Allard, went to her east-end apartment after he and his wife Annette had not heard from her since Monday.

Mr. Allard said he went to her apartment on Pie IX Boulevard along with a policeman and a doctor and broke the door down about 11 a.m.

"I was checking on her because she had not phoned since last Monday," he said. "She usually phoned every day."

At their home in Callander, Ont., the quints' parents, Oliva and Elzire, now in their 60s, were reported to be "very upset" about their daughter's death.

Surviving are Annette, Cecile, separated from her husband, Philippe Langlois, in 1957 and now living in Quebec City with her four children; and Yvonne, who is single and lives in Montreal.

Emilie, the fifth quint, died in 1954 at the age of 20 while she was a postulant in the Order of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate at Ste. Agathe, Que.

Mrs. Houle was married in 1958 at age 24 to Florian Houle, a provincial government official. They separated in 1964.

Last year she placed her two daughters in a foster home operated by nuns. Friends were said to be deeply concerned about her physical condition and apparent depression.

Cause of her death has not been determined and an autopsy was to be performed today.

Last May 2, the four surviving Dionne sisters celebrated their 35th birthday quietly, after years of attempts to avoid publicity and withdraw from the international limelight.

Born on the farm where their parents still live, about 12 miles south of North Bay, the quints have been dogged by a variety of family troubles and personal misfortune.

Their problems intensified after 1955 when they left the home of their parents.

In an interview several years ago, the sisters explained that friction between them and their parents increased with time.

They said there were disagreements over the method of their upbringing and over control of trust funds set up for them at the time of their birth. All have since been independently self-supporting.

Emilie was the first to leave home at the age of 16. Her death four years later was caused by suffocation during an epileptic seizure.

City Budget Estimates Propose $1,981,000 For 1970 Capital Works

A bit of old fashioned "horse trading" with respect to capital works allotments might still allow construction of new sidewalks in the city this year.

Earlier this week City Manager J. R. Reynolds told council that for austerity reasons he was not providing any funds in the capital works budget for sidewalk construction in 1970.

But yesterday, during discussions of the five-year capital works program with council's budget advisory committee, it was agreed that $25,000 should be taken from the proposed arena allotment of $200,000, and made available for side walk construction.

The 1970 capital works budget quota proposed by the city manager is set at $1,981,621, an amount which Mr. Reynolds says cannot be exceeded with any expectation of approval from the Ontario Municipal Board.

Capital works budget proposals for the years 1971-1974 still have to be gone over by the budget advisory committee before submission to city council for approval.

The five-year capital works budget will then have to be submitted for approval by the Ontario Municipal Board.

It is expected that a special meeting of city council will be held to consider the capital works budget.

The 1970 works budget given tentative approval yesterday by the council advisory committee sees an amount of $675,700 (city's share) allotted for roads and bridges.

These projects include phase three of the Dundas Street bridge and roadway construction to cost the city an estimated $285,000; phase 2 of the proposed Sidney Street bridge construction at $200,000; widening of Dundas Street East from Bleecker Ave. to the divided highway at $100,000; and construction of Bell Blvd. westerly from North Front Street at a cost of $90,000.

New storm sewers in the northeast city area north of Tracey Street, are the costliest single item in this year's proposed works budget.

This work, to cost an estimated half million dollars, would drain the area from Sidney Street east across North Front and North Park Streets to the Moira River.

Mayor J. R. Scott said completion of this work would allow several housing sub-divisions in the North Parks Street area to proceed.

Work proposed to be done under local improvements this year (sanitary sewers, watermains and roads) totals $221,421.

Other capital costs in this year's works budget include $25,000 for the parking authority for the purchase of new parking meters, $297,500 for the public utilities for expenditures on its water and electric systems, $25,000 for possible purchase of a new garbage disposal site, and $37,000 for a bus for the Transit Commission.

But discussions on sidewalks and the proposed new second arena for the city took up most of the time at yesterday's meeting.

In the year's works budget program the city manager had included $200,000 for the proposed arena, but nothing for the construction of new sidewalks.

Budget committee members Alderman Paul Russell and Arthur Keegan argued that for the sake of safety some consideration should be given for sidewalk construction.

It was here that Mayor Scott came up with proposal to cut the arena allotment to $175,000 and enter $25,000 for walk construction.

If necessary he said consideration could be given later to making up the $25,000 for the arena by including this amount in the current budget.

Alderman Donald Soutter, chairman of the city recreation and arena committee, said the proposed new arena could cost up to $235,000.

However this amount would be reduced by the $32,000 already raised by the Quinte Action Centre committee, and possibly reduced further through government grants and by the city acting as its own general contractor.

He said the Quinte Home Builders had agreed to supervise construction of the arena at no cost to the city.

Alderman Soutter said the arena could be ready by Oct. 1.

"The opportunity is there, the timing is right and the citizens want it," he said.

Four possible sites for the new arena had been selected. These were in the Haig Road area, on YMCA or private property on Victoria Ave., on Coleman Flats and at the Centennial secondary school grounds.

Ald. Soutter said his first choice for location of the arena was the Centennial school area where planning is under way for a recreational complex on properties owned by two schools and the parks board.

This year's capital works quota proposal of $1,981,000 is lower than the totals proposed for the years 1971 to 1974. Quotas for later years ranged from $2,140,000 to $2,166,000.

Mr. Reynolds said the current debenture debt of the city was about 16 per cent of the taxable assessment and if all works proposed in the five year capital works budget were completed would increase to about 17½ per cent by 1974.

This would still be well under the 20 per cent ratio considered by the Ontario Municipal Board as allowable.

The city's taxable assessment for this year is about $117,000 — up $4 million from last year.

Trent Waterway Seen As "Major Playground"

OTTAWA (CP) — William H. Cranston, chairman of the Economic Council of Ontario, Thursday night urged reforestation and maximum development of the Rideau-Trent-Severn corridor.

He said the five-mile wide corridor from Ottawa to Georgian Bay "is Ontario's next major playground."

"Without its proper development, we face industrial and people pollution on a scale undreamed of," Mr. Cranston told a meeting of the Eastern Ontario Developing Council.

He said more hours of leisure for the average worker pointed out the needs for more recreation areas.

There was a need for inter governmental co-operation and Mr. Cranston cited as an example that 90 garbage disposal units were located along the Rideau river between Kingston and Smiths Falls.

He said 20 of these units posed a pollution threat because they were about one-half mile from the water.

New Post Office Being Built on Wolfe Island

TWEED — Construction began Tuesday, Feb. 24 on a new $24,485 post office which will replace the old facility near the Wolfe Island dock, on the island. Harold Cosgrove, postmaster, said postal facilities have been moved to temporary quarters in a house across from the General Wolfe Hotel.

The new office building, which will be used solely as a post office and include much the same facilities as the old office, is scheduled for completion by the end of June, 1970.

The old post office will be torn down.

Licences: Last Chance Brings Long Lineup

Today is the deadline for 1970 motor vehicle licences. In Belleville, pressure by purchasers which has been mounting steadily this week, brought a long lineup outside the city's licence bureau before doors opened at 9 a.m. today. Car owners had until 3 p.m. to secure plates. After that, licence issuer George Olsen warned, the office would close for the weekend.

Award for 'Outstanding Contribution'

Hastings Involved in Education Week

Canadian Education Week is being observed this year from March 1 to 7, with events scheduled throughout the county to focus attention of schools.

Highlight for Hastings county will be the educators' breakfast at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel at 8 a.m. Monday, when the Sir Mackenzie Bowell award will be presented.

The annual award is being presented for the fourth time to someone in the county who has made an outstanding contribution to education. The winner will be announced during the breakfast.

A similar breakfast will be held at the same time in Bancroft at the Old Barn Restaurant, when L. A. Kells, administrative superintendent with the county board and second winner of the Sir Mackenzie Bowell award, will be the speaker.

Monday night the men's and women's public school teachers' associations will sponsor a banquet at Club Canara. Walter Pitman, MPP for Peterborough will be the speaker.

Mr. Pitman, the NDP critic on education, is a past president of the Ontario Teachers' Federation.

Special events and open house have been scheduled in several schools during the week.

Leading off with an open house is Deseronto Public School, from 1.15 to 3.45 March 3.

Chief Earl Hill of Tyendinaga Reserve will be at Queen Victoria School in Belleville the afternoon of March 3 for a display and program on the Mohawk Indians. He is expected to bring a group of school children from the Reserve with him.

Tuesday is also the occasion of the annual meeting of the parents' association of William R. Kirk School, Belleville. M. A. Godin, co-ordinator of psychological services for the Hastings county board, will be the speaker.

Stirling public school will hold its open house March 3 from 9 a.m. to 3.45 p.m. and Tyendinaga Public School will hold a parents' night Wednesday.

At Queen Mary School in Belleville, Education Week is also book week for the pupils, and author Lynn Cook will visit the school Wednesday afternoon to talk with the children.

Wednesday will be open house day for parents and teachers at St. Mary's School in Trenton and talent day for St. Michael's Junior School in Belleville at St. Michael's Academy auditorium.

Hillcrest Public School in Belleville will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday when the pupils will give demonstrations.

Stirling Public School will hold a community and staff games night Thursday from 7.30 to 9.30 p.m.

Our Lady of Fatima School, Belleville will hold open house Thursday morning.

The student council of Stirling Public School will sponsor a winter carnival Friday from 1.15 to 3.30 p.m.

At V. P. Carswell School in Trenton events are planned for all day Friday, including gym displays, art exhibitions, reading laboratory demonstrations, puppet plays and folk dancing.

High school students will talk to Grade 8 classes at Frankford Public School Friday on the theme of learning by discovery.

Our Lady of Fatima School in Belleville will have an art display Friday and Batawa Public School will have a learning centre set up in the halls for inspection every day during education week.

North Trenton Public School will have open house for public inspection each day during education week from 9.30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Parkdale School in Belleville has scheduled a junior volley ball tournament at 9 a.m. Saturday and the zone 9 public speaking finals will be held at Queen Elizabeth School the same day.

Picton Fire Closes Stores

dead several hours prior to the outbreak of the fire.

He was formerly employed as a maintenance man at Camp Picton.

Occupying the block, owned by Clarence Foster of Toronto, were Hill's Paint and Wallpaper Shop, operated by Reuben Hill, Picton; The House of Beauty owned by Prince Edward Collegiate teacher David Craig, and Hutton's Barber Shop.

The second floor apartment of the building was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Neil Breakenridge and their two children, Billy, one, and Wayne, two. Two other children, relatives of the Breakenridge family, were visiting the apartment at the time of the fire. Police immediately removed members of the family to safety, carrying one child naked from the burning building.

Although fire gutted the second floor of the building and Hutton's Barber Shop on the ground floor, Hill's Paint and Paper Shop and the beauty salon were largely unscathed by the flames. Extensive smoke and water damage was reported in both shops.

Smoke and water damage also was reported in the adjoining apartment building.

Picton police, assisted by members of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, cordoned off Main St. as firefighters battled the rapidly spreading blaze. Two fire trucks were at the scene, while a third stood by on King St.

Firemen continued to hose down the smoldering block until dawn and were recalled briefly this morning.

Picton fire chief Leonard Tripp this morning was unprepared to officially estimate the damages.

Couple Lose Home in Fire

WELLINGTON — Fire destroyed the 1½ storey frame house of an elderly Wellington couple early today, causing an estimated $10,000 damage.

Wellington Fire Department answered the alarm at 1 a.m. and remained at the scene of the blaze for more than three hours in a futile attempt to save the house and its contents.

Occupants of the house, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Deusen, escaped uninjured.

Occupants of the house, Mr. and Mrs. Robert VanDuesen, escaped uninjured.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said today that the cause of the fire is undetermined. Mr. and Mrs. VanDuesen, who recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, took refuge at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Norman Tustin, Wellington.

Interest Is Up

TWEED — At a recent meeting of the Township of Barrie council a bylaw was passed, increasing interest rates on all tax arrears after March 1, 1970 to 1 per cent per calendar month until paid, and all interest on tax arrears be compounded and added to principal as of this date, March 1. All owners in arrears to be notified.

Also at this meeting it was moved and seconded that Ralph Thompson represent the Township of Barrie on the Napanee Conservation Authority Board and that Miller Black represent it on the Mississippi Authority Board.

Publicity Campaign Mounted

Catholic Teachers Take Grievance Controversy to the Public

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

With a full page advertisement in today's Intelligencer, Hastings and Prince Edward separate school teachers have mounted a publicity campaign to acquaint ratepayers with their grievance against the separate school board.

"The situation is so grave that the future of Catholic education in the two counties is seriouly threatened," the advertisement states.

It is signed by John Kuchinac, provincial president of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association. The provincial executive of the association was empowered by the teachers at a meeting Feb. 10 to act on their behalf in attempting to settle their differences with the board.

The issue in dispute is definition of levels, the method of classifying teachers on the basis of their academic and professional qualifications, for salary purposes.

The teachers' contract for 1969-70 has no definition of levels, and the board has refused to recognize definitions retroactive to September, 1969.

E. J. Buckley, chairman of the separate school board has said in the past that the board is giving consideration to insertion of definitions in the 1970-71 contract, expected to be under negotiation soon.

Eighty-nine per cent of the 189 separate school teachers resigned over the matter last November. They subsequently withdrew their resignations because of the "seemingly co-operative attitude" of a committee of three trustees at a mediation meeting.

The teachers "are of the opinion that they would be unfit to teach their pupils the principles of honesty and fair play if they did not stand up for their own rights and expect the members of the board to honor their obligations," the advertisement states.

Next move is up to the teachers who are understood to be meeting with their provincial executive some time this weekend.

They have several choices open to them. One is mass resignation, effective August 31, 1970. Another is "pink listing" of the board. In this course of action, the provincial body writes to all its member teachers in Ontario advising them of the contract dispute and requesting them not to accept positions with the Hastings - Prince Edward board.

Another choice is "working to rule", when teachers refuse to assume responsibilities not outlined in their contracts, such as lunch room duty and supervision of extra-curricular activities of their pupils.

A fourth choice could be a publicity campaign to inform separate school supporters of the teachers' grievance and solicit support. A series of teacher-ratepayer meetings to carry the teachers' viewpoint to parents is another possibility.

BGH Board Will Admit Reporters

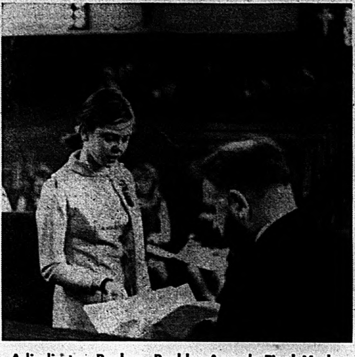
Press coverage of meetings of the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors will be allowed in the future, board members have decided.

The decision to make meetings open to reporters and the public was made at yesterday's board meeting after reporters from The Intelligencer and Radio CJBQ turned up, ready to cover the proceedings.

Reporters were not allowed to remain at the meeting but Board Chairman Msgr. J. P. Sullivan said the matter of press coverage would be discussed.

The Msgr. said he had never considered board discussions to be secret.

Press and radio representatives will meet with the board's public relations committee regarding items to be covered.



Adjudicator Ranken Bushby Awards Final Marks

Rotary Festival Strikes Final Chords After Four Full Days of Music

The 1970 Rotary Music Festival sounded its last notes in Belleville last night.

The finale came in a general salute from participating talent in the four-day event at the Festival of Stars in Centennial Secondary School.

Both on contest and audience response, festival officials called the final variety presentation a suitably successful ending to the big musical event that drew a total of 3,000 participants.

"We're particularly pleased with the number of young people that turned out to see the Festival of Stars," said a Rotary organizer.

The music festival proper opened Tuesday and ran morning, noon and night until yesterday.

Adjudicators wrapped up the final phases at sessions in Belleville Collegiate and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

At St. Andrew's, British concert artist Ranken Bushby gave a parting emphasis to the ideals of the festival as he distributed the last certificates won by competitors.

Festival entrants don't participate to win, he emphasized. "They just come here to play their pieces and have somebody give them constructive criticism."

Concentration on their chosen musical endeavor would stand youngsters "in good stead" in later years, he reminded the audience.

"They will derive enormous pleasure from it, and, of course, give enormous pleasure to those people fortunate enough to hear them."

Piano, 14 years and under—Joanne Belanger, 87; Don Campbell, 86; Carol Thicke, 85; Linda Zaback, 84; Kim Hay 82; Cynthia Horne, 81; Lori Rogers, 80; Virginia Irwin, 78; Connie Petrick, 78; Peggy Mackay, 75; Rosemary Sexsmith, 74; Cynthia Marsh, 70.

Piano, 13 years and under — Robin Ormsby, 88; Anne Marie Aquino, 87; Ursula Berger, 86; Thomas Aquino, 86; Cynthia Horne, 85; Connie Petrick, 82; David Cuff, 81; Jennifer Beach, 78; Cynthia Bileski, 77; Debbie Brennan, 75; Denise Sutherland, Lori Edey, Sharon Gray, 74.

Accordion octet — Ettore's junior orchestra, 80.

Clarinet, 17 years and under — Katherine Moran, 84; Pamela Flindall, 83; Dave Conley, 82; Meribeth Rowe, Dennis Sharpe, 81.

Trenton Kinsmen Revived

TRENTON — Kin National President Dick Rendek will present the newly-formed Trenton Kinsmen Club with the first charter of the national service club organization's golden anniversary year.

The ceremony will take place in the hall at Trenton Community Gardens following a 7.30 p.m. supper and will feature the installation of the charter executive — headed by president Robert Campbell and vice-president Steve Shadbolt, by Mr. Rendek, a resident of Regina, Saskatchewan.

Included as guests will be Mayor and Mrs. Duncan McDonald; Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Gordon Webb on behalf of Canadian Forces Base, Trenton; Trenton Chamber of Commerce president Irene Forchuk and husband Steve; Kin District 6 governor Pierre Blanchard of Montreal; Kin District 6 co-ordinator Ken Hacker of Ottawa; Kin District 6 expansion chairman Roland Pelletier of Pierrefonds, Quebec and Kin zone J deputy-governor Ron Hotson of Picton.

Tonight's charter-granting ceremony signals a revival of of Kinmanship in Trenton. A Kinsmen Club was initially formed here in 1944 but ceased to operate in 1952. A second attempt was made in 1954, lasting until the Kinsmen charter was relinquished in the early part of 1960 because of a lack of enthusiasm.

Mr. Campbell spearheaded a move by five former Kinsmen to re-establish the organization in Trenton resulting in the induction of 24 charter members tonight.

Students Win Speech Contest

Two Quinte-area highschool students will represent the east-central zone of the province at the annual public speaking contest sponsored by Ontario Hydro and the Ontario Trustees Association in Toronto.

William Rendell, 18, of Deseronto, Lennox and Addington High School student and Janice Johnston, 17, of Warkworth, representing Northumberland - Durham student speakers, were selected as winners of zone finals at Centennial Secondary School yesterday.

The provincial finals will be held March 23 in Toronto's King Edward Hotel.

Neil McMaster

He Set Ameliasburg Dancing And Made Youngsters Swingers

AMELIASBURG — A 15 - year resident of Ameliasburg Township, Neil McMaster, is soon moving to Gravenhurst but it's a cinch he won't soon be forgotten by township youngsters.

And for good reason — Neil McMaster is the father of an organization which calls itself the Ameliasburg Swingers.

Composed of nearly 200 area youngsters, primarily in the Grades 4 to 8 range, the Ameliasburg Swingers stage bi - monthly dances at Ameliasburg Township Hall during the school year.

Now a township institution, the organization is self - supporting and gives special consideration to bands composed of youngsters from Prince Edward County, particularly Ameliasburg Township, as well as Belleville and Trenton.

Admission to the dances is just 35 cents and all proceeds, including income from refreshments, go into the bank account of the Ameliasburg Swingers.

Neil McMaster explained the feeling which prompted him to organize the dances in the fall of 1967: "This is something that is needed for there is recreation available at high school, but little for the group in Grades 4 to 8."

"In addition there's little to do in the country during the winter months and this program is actually good training for the youngsters as well as a source of entertainment," the 47-year-old father of six emphasized.

"I've been working with children for a great many years — some other adults won't and something had to be done," he added.

"Some parents condemn children but I believe a great percentage of the problems arise from a lack of parental understanding," he stressed.

A feeling of togetherness, gained when he was a child in an era when it was not unusual for entire families to travel eight or 10 miles by horse and sleigh to attend a dance in the country, fostered Neil McMaster's program.

An interesting aspect of the program is the opportunity given to local bands. So far seven bands — all young groups — have got their start at these dances, including the Magical Merry - go - Round which was, according to Mr. McMaster, the youngest dance band in Canada in 1969 with members varying between 10 and 13 years of age.

"We pay all bands $30 per night; It's a good training ground and practice for them as well as an opportunity to get started."

Another distinguishing feature of the dances is the absence of tables for groups to sit around and chat.

Neil explained this feature. "We just have chairs along the walls because tables take up dance room the children could use. In addition the children are less liable to sit down on chairs alone and will get up and enjoy themselves which is the point of the whole thing."

Mr. McMaster's program has become a community effort with the township's board granting use of the Ameliasburg hall rent - free and parents take turns so that two or three act as chaperones every Saturday from 7.30 to 10.30 p.m.

The Ameliasburg program has proved so successful that three other communities — Cherry Valley, Bloomfield and Kingston — have adopted the same programs with organizational assistance from Mr. McMaster.

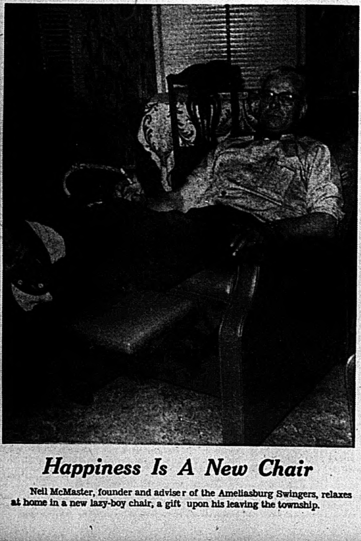
Soon that number will rise to four for Neil McMaster says, "When we leave here, I'm going to establish the same program in our new community."

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Noyes and Mrs. Marjorie Morton will act as advisors for the Ameliasburg Swingers with the departure of Mr. McMaster, his wife, Cessal, and their six children.

Mr. McMaster, a master at assisting children, got his reward Friday, Feb. 20 at the Friday night dance in Ameliasburg Township Hall.

In appreciation of his efforts, the swingers held a going away party. They purchased box lunches and soft drinks for all, but most important, a lazy-boy chair for Neil.

"I was never so surprised in all my life, but I was very pleased and appreciate the gift and the thought behind it," he said afterwards, concluding with, "I've really enjoyed every minute I've had with the kids."



Happiness Is A New Chair

Neil McMaster, founder and adviser of the Ameliasburg Swingers, relaxes at home in a new lazy-boy chair, a gift upon his leaving the township.

School Needs

It is incredible to learn that lack of psychological or preventative care, call it what you will, is creating a growing number of disturbed children with the potential for burning down schools and other anti-social behavior.

Hastings County Education Board has been discussing the problem and the word is that it would cost more than $200,000 to meet the cost of the special education and psychological services that are needed.

The schools themselves are not to blame solely for such a situation (it is estimated, for example, that some 1,418 children in Grades 1 to 8 require special education to overcome handicaps in learning alone). Home conditions, environment and other factors enter in too.

The school authorities see the need, but as Trenton trustee Mrs. Jean Hutchinson has observed, "This is a community service; should education have to assume the burden?"

The materialist pressures of society have much to do with the problem of the backward and anti-social child. Young people are under the gun early in life to train for the socio-economic system that governs this country. It leaves little time for relaxation, for recreation, for "delight in simple things" as Rudyard Kipling put it. Sport and recreation — and just plain innocent fun — are subservient to the salt mine psychology that spells success. The poorer families tend to get left out in the academic rush and the result is the sort of thing that goes with the drug cult, hippies and commune living, copping out and social regression.

Perhaps all we need to do is to put a little more fun into life, particularly for the children's sake. If there were more fun, more interest and concern on the part of parents for their kids (instead of grim faces and the not infrequent spectacle of mother bawling out their children) there might be less need of psychologists and professional counselling.

Laos Steps Backward

Without so much as by your leave, that other little far eastern war — in Laos — seems to be rolling merrily along in favor of the Communists. Reports from the capital, Vientiane, indicate that the North Vietnamese-Pathet Lao offensive has been moving forward unchecked in east-central Laos.

Meanwhile, some interesting facts about conditions in Laos have been revealed by a Brockville medical man, Dr. Mark Boss, who has just returned from a five-week voluntary stint with the Tom Dooley Foundation.

"It is apparent that for the millions of people in Laos, Cambodia, Vietnam and other adjoining countries the old days of the Union Jack and the French tricolor were the best," Dr. Boss said in an interview on his return. Everything is less efficient than under the colonial regimes."

It is an old story. Africa affords similar examples of breakdown in the social order, and of general inefficiency. Be that as it may, the best must be made of a bad job and Dr. Boss suggests that Canada could do much for the health of the people of Laos by providing funds for training personnel and hospital equipment.

We recall that Canada has provided such aid in the Caribbean, particularly with gifts of medical equipment no longer in use here but still serviceable.

In Laos ,Dr. Boss saw modern air conditioning on the one hand and open sewers on the other. In the whole country, with a population of 3,000,000 there are only 20 native doctors. Vientiane has three hospitals, all under-staffed and ill-equipped.

Despite heavy U.S. aid, the Americans are not popular according to Dr. Boss. He claims that there are many administrative errors and the U.S. authorities downgrade the Dooley organization.

In such a situation any intrusion by Canada might be difficult. On the other hand this country likely could provide money or equipment or both to improve the standard of living in Laos. As things stand, however, one wonders whether such aid will be possible much longer in view of the present Communist advances in that country.

Eccentric Yes...But Then

Any Prime Minister Worth His Salt Is 'Way Out'

By Richard Jackson
From THE INTELLIGENCER'S
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Like him or not, this much you must give your Prime Minister: he is different.

And getting more different by the day.

More entertaining, too, if increasingly puzzling.

It is not just that he is something of an eccentric.

Every Prime Minister has had his eccentricities.

You do not make it to the top of the political totem pole unless you have those most unusual talents and even more unusual ambitions that drive these remarkable men.

It could be mostly genius of a very selective sort. But there has to be just a trace of the kooky, too.

They all have had their entertaingly nutty moments when they have appeared less like Prime Ministers than prime candidates for the psychiatrist's couch.

There was former Prime Minister Mackenzie King, still undefeated champion in the art of the eccentric.

He alone among them all outperformed Pierre Elliott Trudeau in the uncorking of the unexpected and unusual.

But Mr. Trudeau gives all the appearances of trying hard.

It will have to be more than the old college try, because as a "most unusual man," Mackenzie King was a dandy.

There was that secret, spiritualist-obsessed double life he led.

There were those strange hours he spent up there in the third floor attic-study of Laurier House, alone with his crystal ball and old photographs of the mother he so worshipped and conversed with across the gulf of the grave.

There was that burial service for his beloved dog "Pat," an engaging terrier who had gone to the big kennel in the sky from under a carved headstone among the "Ruins" of Kingsmere, Mackenzie King's rolling pine - scented acres in the Gatineau Hills.

And there were those "Ruins," hauled into the brooding stunted shag-end of the Laurentians from as near as the Bank of Sparks streets corner of the Capital's mid - town section and as far away as London's Ludgate Hill.

Huge chunks of carved stone from a demolished bank's doorway, a church's arched window, fluted pillars from a library, assembled and raised, standing there in the middle of an empty, pine - ringed field.

There were other old quirks in the King character that in contrast made Prime Ministers Louis St. Laurent and John Diefenbaker appear like colorless conformists — which, of course, they were anything but.

For there was dear old "Uncle Louie" stashing state papers under the St. Laurent bed, because, it was explained as if it were merely routine, there was no other place to stuff them in his cramped little Ottawa apartment.

And there was explosive John Diefenbaker, finally defused by a broken ankle, using the space under HIS bed for a filing cabinet — not because there was nowhere else in spacious 24 Sussex Drive to stack state papers, but simply because he wanted them "close to hand," as they say.

There was Dief, too, serving only hot coffee and tea on a boiling summer afternoon to furiously fuming cabinet ministers, Tory MPs and newspapermen.

Still new in the job, Pierre Trudeau has already topped St. Laurent, Diefenbaker, and of course, Lester Pearson, pale in comparison, and could be well on his way to leap - frogging the old master, "Macking," in the expertise of odd - balling.

And it just is not the "way in" styles, the green and purple corduroy suits, the turtle necks with love beads, the rose in the teeth and boutonniere, the almost ritual sniffing of daffodils, the kisses, the skin-diving, skiing, ski-dooing, the clowning across the Commons with George Hees and Donnie MacInnis, the dating of gorgeous girls, the frugging, the twisting and all forms of avant-garde dipsy-dooing on the dance floor.

It is all kinds of things. But most of all, it is the style of the Prime Minister.

Like the other day, after confessing to the House that when the Commons rouses him he will "say yes to anything," he came tippy-toeing out of the Commons, peeking around the lobby corner to scout a waiting ambush of press, radio and TV types.

There was no escape — except to run for it — and sprint he did, only to be tackled, yes, that is the exact word for it, tackled, by a radio broadcaster twice his size. "OK, you win," he grinned, enjoying the caper hugely, "I'll talk."

And the time before that when he tried an end run around the microphones, cameras and was outflanked by the pad-and-pen set.

On went the Trudeau brakes, and as he skidded along on his loafers he threw up his arms in mock surrender crying, "I give up — don't shoot."

It is like that with this Prime Minister almost every day, an always surprising performance and a dazzling change of pace.

But are not all Prime Ministers a bit on the "way out" side? Sure, but not often this far.

Ontario's Forest Resources

In Ontario's northwest — west of Thunder Bay and Quetico provincial park, with the State of Minnesota immediately to the south, is Fort Frances. The hinterland of this border community is the Canada so few of its citizens really know. This is the land of lakes and forests and game, of mining and timber operations. The rest is silence, broken now and again by the sound of the saw in the timber mill or the clunk of hard wood in the waterways — as in this log drive at Sphene Lake northeast of Fort Frances. LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Burr are holidaying in the Southland, visiting New Orleans, Panama City and Tallahassee, capital of Florida.

Mrs. Fred Rodgers, Red Cross Homemaker, of RR 8, Belleville, who is a patient in Belleville General Hospital is progressing favorable.

The Progressive Conservative Women's Advisory Board of Eastern Ontario met at the home of Mrs. Charles L. Hyde, Mrs. Garnet Lockett, of Kingston presided and arrangements were made for a tea to be held in Kingston during the latter part of next month.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Blackburn have returned home after a delightful holiday trip in which they visited Chicago, St. Louis, San Antonio, Mexico City, Taxco and Acapulco.

30 YEARS AGO

February 28, 1940.

Fitting celebration of the 118th anniversary of Bridge Street United Church Sunday School was observed Sunday when Rev. Dr. Charles A. Myers, Associate Secretary of Religious Education of the United Church addressed both services and a special Sunday school service in the afternoon. A review of the history of the school which featured about the late Senator Billa Flint who came from Brockville to Belleville in 1829 was the highlight of the afternoon gathering. In 1830, it was brought out, a census was made of the village and over 200 children enrolled in the school.

40 YEARS AGO

Arthur Clare, son of the late Sheriff James H. Clare, has been appointed by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan as acting sheriff until a successor shall have been appointed by the attorney - general.

Belleville Y's Men's Basketball team won the intermediate championship of Eastern Ontario at Kingston last night by a score of 42 to 36. They will likely play against a Toronto club next in the Ontario playdowns. The local players were Armstrong, Weir, Faulkner, Walters, Buck and Davidson.

50 YEARS AGO

February 28, 1920.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society was held in its rooms in the Robertson Block on Front St. Charles E. Hanna, the president, occupied the chair. As R. H. Ketcheson, the secretary, was confined to his home through illness, R. T. Philbin recorded the minutes of the meeting. A. C. Dafoe, a director for many years, was appointed treasurer. The race committee of the fair board will meet in the near future and as only three days of racing will be on the program this year, something sensational in speed may be expected.

Music Festival Praised

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Anyone who did not take in the Rotary Musical Festival, has missed a real musical treat.

School bands showed a marked improvement which speaks highly for the instruction they are receiving. As they continue to advance, the standard of the compositions, selected for their use, can be raised.

The judges were most fair, and helpful in their tasks, and the Belleville Rotary Club is to be highly praised for their efforts to promote the arts in our community.

Color Mad In Peking

Peking's main department store has the most wildly colorful selection of bathing suits I have ever seen. Female models — one-piece suits, no bikinis — come in screaming orange and bright, bright purples and reds. Men can buy suits of orange, dazzling yellow and electric blue all with bands of contrasting stripes. It makes the sportiest possible contrast with the blue or beige pants and jackets both sexes wear most of the time.

White Paper on Taxation

Proposals Not as Black as Painted

Montreal La Presse: The tax reform proposal which Finance Minister Edgar Benson presented to Canadians in a white paper last November certainly did not arouse delirious enthusiasm, but the most authoritative spokesmen for the people recognized at that time that the intent of the proposal was to divide the tax burden more fairly. They even said the white paper represented an honest and courageous initiative on the part of the government. The rich would be paying higher taxes than the poor, and that was a good thing. . . .

Everything was going along smoothly when all of a sudden, last week, the white paper fell into disgrace and became the target of attacks of all kinds. Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and distinguished provincial premiers went to great expense to sound the alarm. In less time than it takes to tell it, the Benson proposal was made out to be the worst plot of the Trudeau administration to fleece the taxpayers. . . .

If we believe the alarmists, the white paper will kill small business, encourage Canadians to move to other countries and scare away foreign investment and capital, while economic initiative will be increasingly at the mercy of an all-powerful government.

A strange and sudden agitation. How does it happen that, all of a sudden, powerful pressure groups find it necessary to sound the alarm and rush to the defence of the "little" businessmen, the "little" property-owners and the "little" professionals?

It seems they are hiding something. The pressure groups pretend to be defending the interests of the "little" people, but they are really agitated because the white paper proposes to tax the capital gains of the big enterprises as well as the small. Canada, one of the rare countries in which capital gains are still exempt from tax, is thinking of finally putting an end to this abusive privilege, and along come the rich to denounce the "fiendishness" of such a step.

Informed people will not be fooled. The white paper is not as black as it is painted. It corrects an unequal sharing of the tax burden. It intends to make the rich pay more than before. Nobody would complain if it could, in addition, maintain the privileges of certain particularly vulnerable small businesses. And Mr. Benson would like nothing better than to improve his proposal.

'Lulu' Aids Disturbed Children

Bell Canada

As every little girl knows it's nice to have a doll to talk to — nicer still if the doll can also talk to you. Lulu is all this and more. She is a one-of-a-kind doll that will be the intermediary as therapists attempt to communicate with disturbed children.

Doctors have discovered that many disturbed children who won't relate to adults, not even to other children, will talk to dolls or toy animals. With this in mind, the Laurentian Council, Charles Fleetford Sise Chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of America fitted Lulu with a two - way radio. This permits a therapist working in another room from that occupied by the disturbed child and Lulu, to carry on conversations with the child through the doll.

The Pioneers recently presented Lulu to the Quebec Association for the Mentaly Retarded. At the moment the doll is being used for demonstration purposes in five nursery schools operated by the Association.

Lulu is just one of many community service projects carried out by the Pioneers. The organization, with some 74 chapters in Canada and the United States, is made up of employees and pensioners with more than 21 years of service in the telephone industry. The Laurentian Council, is made up of Bell Canada Pioneers from the Montreal area.

Franciscan Friars Will Seek Ties with Departed Priests

NEW YORK (AP) — Franciscan friars of the eastern United States have made public a wide-ranging set of reforms in their operations, including procedures for seeking to continue ties with priests who have left the order.

The plan was described as the first such formal step by a religious community to try to utilize the manpower of defecting members, and to perpetuate official links with them.

The changes, worked out during a year-long series of meetings of chapter delegates, also make room for greater theological freedom and for more latitude and flexibility in individual approaches to service.

Decision-making also was decentralized to a greater extent, giving wider prerogatives to local houses of priests. Guidelines also were set to protect personal rights in resolving disputes.

Over-all, the changes were described as opening a "20th century vision of Franciscanism" to serve new "emerging needs of the people of God."

Involved is the Roman Catholic order's Holy Name Province, which encompasses the eastern states of the U.S. With about 1,000 priests and brothers, the province is the second largest in the world, surpassed only by the Dutch province.

Rev. Finian Kerwin, provincial superior, said the actions recognize the "vital pluralism" now existing in religious life and offer "a free choice between the newer and older approaches to life style, community and apostolic work."

He said special consideration also was given to those who have "become alienated from the church" and left the order.

"We have set up a committee of friars and lay Franciscans to find ways of extending our notion of community to include former friars in some way and provide whatever services we can," he added.

A spokesman, Rev. Giles Bello, said about 30 priests have left the order in the last three years, as part of the generally increased defections from the priesthood throughout the church.

Through consultation with them, he said, the new committee will explore means to preserve relationships with them, and to retain their skills and services, when possible, either through the Franciscans' clerical or lay branches (third order).

Lutherans Favor Admitting Children to Lord's Supper

NEW YORK (AP) — Studies indicate that Lutherans in the United States generally favor a break with long-standing Protestant tradition by admitting children to the Lord's supper before they're confirmed into full church membership.

There also was predominant support for delaying the time of confirmation until mid-teens at the start of high school, when young people can make a more responsible decision about accepting Christian obligations.

Both changes would represent a departure from customs prevailing in most major Protestant churches since their 16th century split from Roman Catholicism.

The considered changes also would erase one of the differences in practice.

Results of a year-long consideration of the matter in local Lutheran congregations across the U.S. were made public by a joint commission of the three major American branches of Lutheranism.

The commission's proposals for permitting participation in the Lord's supper prior to confirmation, and postponing confirmation until a more mature age, produced "much more agreement" than disagreement, the commission reported.

Legislative action on the subject is expected at conventions of two of the Lutheran denominations this year, and of the other in 1971.

At present, the general rule among Protestant churches—including Episcopal (Anglican), Presbyterian, Methodist, Lutheran and United Church Congregational—is to admit youngsters to communion only after they're confirmed as full members.

However, numerous congregations, acting on their own, have started allowing unconfirmed children to share the communion elements.

This is standard practice among Roman Catholics, who admit children to the sacrament as early as five years old, although generally at seven, before they're confirmed.

Confirmation generally doesn't come until the ages of about 12 to 14 among both Protestants and Catholics. The best age for this rite also is at issue, with a trend toward raising it to a more mature level.

Personal Drive For Heart Fund Effort

HAMILTON (CP) — Six years ago Joan Marsh went into the Ontario Heart Foundation looking for a fight.

When she took on the job of Hamilton area co-ordinator, her husband, W. J. Marsh, had been dead only about four months.

The cause of death was a coronary. Mrs. Marsh calls it a "classic coronary," meaning there was no history of heart disease—just a sudden, killing attack.

Mrs. Marsh says now she can see two reasons why she went to work for the Heart Foundation.

"I was looking for therapy as much as anything. I knew I had to do something, and I didn't want to leave Hamilton just then.

"When I first went to the Heart Foundation, I was very belligerent. I was furious at the thing that could take my husband away."

Before she started to work there, the foundation did no general canvass in Hamilton, just an industrial canvass. Mrs. Marsh now directs the work of between 2,000 and 3,000 volunteers during the February heart month drive. She says many of her volunteers are teen-agers.

Most of the money raised in such campaigns is for research.

Mrs. Marsh says her Heart Foundation job is "not really a living." She augments it by doing free-lance public relations and advertising work, and has written children's stories.

A former radio women's editor in Hamilton and London, Ont., she is native of Kelowna, B.C.

White Cane Club Enjoys Folk Songs

The White Cane Club held its regular business meeting at the Recreation Centre on Wednesday evening. President Pat Baverstock presided and welcomed the 23 members and escorts.

Mrs. Maude Rollins introduced Tom Gill, a student at BCI who sang folk songs to guitar accompaniment.

Appreciation of the Club was expressed by Harvey Bailey.

The February C.C.B. Council Commentary was read and included several items of interest. A new club, "The Canadian Council of the Blind Peel Association, Ontario" has now joined the Council as the 82nd club.

On January 13, 1970 a cheque for $1,710.04 was forwarded by the C.C.B. Clubs to the Royal Commonwealth Society for the Blind.

This is to be used to further maintain the CCB Mobile Eye Clinic which is being used in Madurai, India. This valuable contribution proves that the deep love and concern for the blind in the emergent countries is certainly foremost in the minds of Canadian club members.

During the meeting it was noted that David Thompson, a Welshman who emigrated to Canada in the year 1784, while he had the sight of only one eye and who later became totally blind, surveyed more of Canada in his lifetime than any other geographer. He travelled 50,000 miles of North America by foot, in canoe and on horseback and put 1,500,000 square miles on the map.

Vi Waite, a club member who is a patient in the hospital sent her thanks for cards and flowers received.

Refreshments were served by the Kinettes who were thanked by Edith Miller.

PLIGHTS OF NEW PLAYWRIGHTS

"All careers in the arts resemble life on a roller coaster." — Garson Kanin.

We were discussing the plight of new playwrights and new plays over the phone, with the director of The Belleville Little Theatre, who is, as you will know, Roy Higgins, a Torontonian, with wide experience in this field, gained, in part at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago and New York.

The dilemma in question seems to be that there is a desperate need today as never before, for new playwrights and new plays, yet — New York producers, terrified of the danger of costly plagiarism suits, refuse to read unsolicited plays. Agents will not touch them, for they haven't the time.

To write a play without the slightest possibility of having it read is insupportable.

"Is this really true? Is the plight of a new playwright hopeless?" we asked.

"His plight is quite true," admits Mr. Higgins, "but it is far from hopeless." and this is the opinion of most critics of the theatre such as Walter Kerr of New York, it is pointed out. No matter how far away he may be from a theatrical centre a playwright can have his plays noticed, but he must create the way, where by his play is seen, perhaps not in Toronto or Ottawa or New York, not yet — but in his own back yard, so to speak. He cannot afford to 'sit and wait'.

"How? How is this possible?"

The answer seems logical. It is explained, there will never be a dearth of actors to act in a play, for actors abound wherever one lives. Nor is space or place to produce it any problem, what with The Canadian Legion Hall the church basement, even an old barn — all of which are right in one's home town.

"Nor," says Mr. Higgins, "should The Little Theatre as we have in Belleville be forgotten, or overlooked. Such theatres are valuable proving ground. Valuable for new playwrights, for actors and directors in gaining solid theatrical background experience."

"The opinion is that the lot of a playwright is as a rule, difficult, precarious and hazardous. Even so, he must as Bernard Shaw said, 'go through the mill like the rest of us', and by solving his own dilemma creatively, as suggested above, perhaps not with just one play, but by a persistent output of plays — his work will be noticed — and then it is possible agents, yes, even big producers become his valuable friends.

"Here in the Quinte district," went on Mr. Higgins, "I would like to add, if I may, how fortunate Belleville is to have so interesting an historical locale and background, and urge local playwrights to consider this fertile field. It is filled with many stories that are perhaps 70 per cent true and 30 per cent fiction. Such plays are needed whereby Canada's fine, proud historical heritage may be revealed and glorified.

"As a director, may I conclude that I am interested in and welcome the privilege and opportunity to read any unsolicited new plays — historical or not, from new playwrights of this community."

Such is the power and kindness of a director to put new playwrights' plight to flight.

Divorce Reforms Said Not to Meet Needs

TORONTO (CP) — Legal aid and new divorce laws have made the breaking of marriage ties a booming business across Canada, but there are lawyers and social scientists who feel the reforms do not meet the needs of a modern society.

Between 50 and 60 legal aid certificates for divorce actions are issued each week in Metropolitan Toronto, roughly double the rate when adultery was the only ground for divorce.

Five times as many women as men apply to a legal aid office here, and the average applicant is a woman between 30 and 40 with three children.

Adultery is still one of the leading grounds put forward for divorce applications, but physical or mental cruelty run close behind, along with separation for three to five years.

But the new grounds have not made divorce any easier to obtain, says Supreme Court registrar Gordon Beddis.

"The same rules of evidence, the same filing of documents, all the procedures that existed before, must be followed today," he says.

"What the new act does is to make it possible for more people to get relief from a broken marriage."

Prof. J. D. Payne, a lecturer in family law at the University of Western Ontario, believes the new act narrows the gap between the reality of marriage breakdown and marriage dissolution.

But he feels a significant step forward would be the creation of special family courts with jurisdiction over all issues arising from the domestic relationship.

Expert counselling staff in family courts could encourage a conciliatory approach to marriage problems by stressing reconciliation as an alternative to a legal decree.

The Divorce Act, which has been in force for 18 months, has a brief section dealing with reconciliation, but some lawyers feel it is not effective.

Toronto lawyer James MacDonald says the act "is working well as far as dissolving marriages is concerned—but the reconciliation section is not."

"There is a sense of urgency in the courtroom, a long list of cases to be heard, and reconciliation procedures are a little late in the day at this stage."

W. J. Smith, another Toronto lawyer, believes the new act should be amended to give a wronged wife better financial attention.

"You can walk out on your wife and in five years get a divorce," he says. "The deserting spouse should not escape financial responsibility."

Mr. Smith's partner, Charles Mark, feels the problem is not the availability f egal remedies.

"People no longer believe it is necessary to work hard to keep a marriage together. One can't blame the legislators for the prevalence of divorce. But we are not protecting children. The state must concern itself more with the rights of children of divorced parents."

CLUB 4-H NOTES

MELROSE 4-H

The first meeting of Melrose 4-H was held at the home of Mrs. McLaren. The election of officers was held with Carol Melburn as president; Patsy Pascoe as vice-president.

Requirements of a club member were discussed. A discussion and quiz on "Keeping Mentally Fit" were led by Mrs. McLaren. Mrs. Badgley led a discussion on "Leisure Time". Crafts were discussed and the meeting closed.

Home and School Group Hears Talk on Drugs

MARMORA — Michael Mahoney, director of Drug Addiction Studies of Kingston Psychiatric Hospital and Queen's University, spoke on the subject of drugs to members of Marmora Home and School Association and many young adults on Thursday evening.

His talk covered many phases of the drug problem, how it starts, the different chemical reactions and exploitation. "Young people are being manipulated in the drug scene for profit, and the people who profit do not care about them", he said. He gave proof of the harmful effects of drugs and said that LSD 25 has not been made except for animal experimentation since 1945; $1,000,000 of laboratory equipment is necessary to control its stability, and the drug on the streets is one of 100-150 forms of the formula. "It is unstable, unpredictable and the dosage cannot be guaranteed. Kids are gambling their life and sanity on a pill", he said.

The cry to legalize marijuana is a red herring since it will be three to five, or maybe ten years before we know whether or not it is harmful," and he added 93 per cent of known heroin addicts in the world did use marijuana or hashish at one time or another.

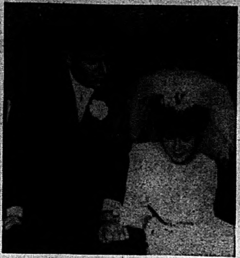
Mr. Mahoney's concluding message indicated that if the young people don't get out of the drug scene, there will be a complete breakdown in the future society and culture of this country.

He was introduced by Mr. Kenneth Gillies, principal, and thanked by Mrs. Dean Lavender.

In the absence of Home and School president, Vernon King, a short business meeting held before the arrival of the speaker was presided over by Mr. Gillies, who invited all parents to visit the school Monday, March 2 through Friday, March 6 during Education Week, when programming will be explained and a program presented by activity classes on Monday evening.

He drew attention to pictures of the school which will appear in the Marmora Herald in the ensuing weeks, and in other announcements, said that report cards will be issued beginning March 9, interviews with staff can be arranged through the school office, winter vacation is the week previous to Easter, and the next appearance of the Marmora school pupils competing on the Campus Quiz TV program will be April 23.

On behalf of the Home and School Association, Mr. Gillies thanked parents and young adults for attending.



MR. AND MRS. ROY SILLS

Sills – Desormeaux

Queen of Heaven Chapel CFB Trenton, was the scene of the recent marriage of Suzanne Marie Desormeaux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Desormeaux of Trenton and Roy Whiteman Sills, son of Mrs. Roy Sills of Belleville and the late Roy Sills. Officiating at the ceremony was Father J. A. Borg, organist was Jean-Guy Richard and soloist James Williamson.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white peau-de-soie empire styled gown accented by daisy appliques featuring a scoop neckline and three-quarter length puffed sleeves of daisy appliqued lace. The train, trimmed in daisy applique, was attached at the waist and the tulle veil had a pearl and of lilac tinted 'mums.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Sharon Baxter of Niagara Falls, sister of the bride. She wore a dress with lilac patterned lace over taffeta featuring an empire waistline accented by a lilac satin ribbon and bow, a high neck with ruching, long sleeves ending in ruching. She wore matching lilac flowers in her hair and carried a nosegay of yellow and white 'mums.

Bridesmaids were the Misses Reta and Jackie Desormeaux, sisters of the bride, dressed identically to the matron of honor.

Best man was Robert Sills and ushers were Paul Desormeaux, brother of the bride, and Barry Flindall.

For the reception held at CFB Trenton Yacht Club, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a cranberry crepe dress, matching feather hat and black accessories. She wore a corsage of white and yellow 'mums.

The bridegroom's mother wore a winter white suit trimmed in gold braid, gold accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

For the wedding trip to Peterborough, the bride changed into a three-piece navy pant suit with red accessories and a white borg jacket.

The couple will reside in Toronto.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

CEREMONY DAY

The 2nd Bayside Brownie Pack held a ceremony day at Bayside School with all leaders present. Brownies Lee Doberty and Lori Meyers were at the door to welcome all visitors. Madam Commissioner Broughm arrived and was welcomed by Brown Owl Jean Millar.

The ceremony opened with the Brownie song and the Sixer songs were sung as well. Greetings were extended to Madam Commissioner by the pack. She was called to the toadstool and Brown Owl asked her to present the badges to the Golden Bar, Golden Ladder and Golden Hand Brownies.

Golden Bars were presented to Brownies Colleen Shields, Natalie Savoy, Sharon Matthews, Theresa Musfelt, Kathy Johnson, Deane Hills and Kelly Doherty.

Golden Leader badges were presented to Brownies Delanie Chypcha, Lee Doherty, Rhonda Robertson and Brenda Porter. Brownies receiving their Golden Hands were Elizabeth Dunn, Johanne Morin and Katherine Musfelt. Twelve Brownies were presented with first year service star pins.

Beauty Pageant In Perth

PERTH — The Miss Eastern Ontario Beauty Pageant committee has announced that the Hon. George E. Gomme and Mrs. Gomme will be guests of the pageant at Perth on Saturday, March 21, and will attend the various functions connected therewith.

Also confirmed as a guest is Miss Pamela Whiting, the 1969 Miss Ottawa Rough Rider. She joins Lorene Archdekin of Brampton, the current Ontario Dairy Princess, on the guest list of the 1970 Pageant.

Bill Perkins, contest chairman, revealed today that 20 entries have been confirmed as of February 23. This figure is double the number at the same time last year, and Mr. Perkins urges areas not yet entered to do so in the very near future. The entry list will be restricted to 35. Girls must be single, and between 17 and 24 years of age. They can be sponsored or can enter as individual entries.

Gordon Gilhuly of the staff of Perth and District Collegiate is the new stage manager for the pageant replacing Bill Howard who retired from the position this year after many years of service. A whole new theme of decorations will be in vogue this year and is a project of the art class of the Collegiate.

Advance sale tickets, both reserve and general, are now on sale for the pageant from Ron Blackwell, 47 McLean Blvd., Perth. Reserved seats are available only for the evening performance, and in limited numbers on a first come — first served basis. The afternoon pageant at 2 p.m. is general admission at the door.

The committee has designated the Eastern Ontario area for contestants as east of Belleville, and south of Deep River. Many new centres have already entered this year, including Iroquois, Belleville, Tweed and Deseronto, with many other new areas expected.

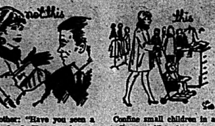
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "Have you seen a little boy? He was here a second ago."

Floorwalker: "He's over there by the escalator. That's not a safe place. He might get hurt."

Confine small children in a stroller or with a harness or hold their hands so they cannot wander into danger, if you have to take them with you when you shop in a big department store.

Though there may be many adults around, a small child can become seriously frightened if he is lost, or he may be injured before anyone can prevent it.

Ann Landers

Daughter Distressed By Mother's Actions

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mom is easy to get along with and we rarely have an argument. The problem is that she thinks she is Phyllis Diller. When I have kids over, Mom clowns around and acts so crazy it embarrasses me to death.

Last night she came downstairs with her wig on sideways. The guys cracked up. Then she went into a routine they thought was hilarious. I wanted to die.

Mom knows how I feel but it doesn't stop her. She says I am too sensitive, that a mother should be able to do her own thing without getting criticized. What is a girl supposed to do when she has a mother who likes to perform for everyone who comes into the house? — DAUGHTER DEPRESSION.

DEAR D.D.: There's nothing you can do, so accept your mother's kookiness gracefully. Her antics in no way diminish you in the eyes of your friends. In fact, your patience and quiet acceptance of her clowning is a mark of maturity. So you see, it's actually a plus.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am getting married soon. My mother and my fiance are giving me a hard time.

I asked my best friend to be my maid of honor. Bessie always had a bad complexion but in the last few months it has gotten worse. After my hother saw Bessie three weeks ago she said to me, "Please get somebody else to be your maid of honor. Her skin is a mess. She'll ruin the bridal party." I was shocked. My fiance agreed with Mom. I refused to drop Bessie and we got into a big hassle.

The next day my fiance called and said his best man had met Bessie at a party and refuses to stand up with her because "she is such a dog." When I reminded my fiance that his best man was not exactly Mr. America, he bellowed, "Well, at least he won't kill anybody's appetite."

I am heartsick and don't know what to do. Mom says if Bessie is a real friend she'll understand. My fiance called me a stubborn mule. — TORN UP.

DEAR TORN: I find it hard to believe that a mother would encourage her daughter to behave so heartlessly. And your fiance sounds like a creep. Ditto his best man. Stick by your principles, honey. You are right and they are wrong.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife and I work together in our own business. We eat out five night a week. My brother owns a small cafe with a great dance combo. We eat there most of the time.

Rosie loves to dance. The minute the music starts Rosie rolls here eyes, snaps her fingers, swings her head — anything to advertise the fact that she has rhythm. Naturally guys come over and ask her to dance. She'll dance with anybody.

I don't think this a ladylike and have told her so but she says it's O.K. because I'm along and no harm will come from it. What do you say? — TWO LEFT FEET.

DEAR LEFTIE: If you don't approve, that should settle it. On occasion, however, invite another couple along so Rosie can get some dancing in.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am seven years old. My mommy is helping me with this letter. My friend and I had this Club. Every time we had a meeting we each put a dime in the treasury. My friend moved away. She didn't tell me where she went. I have $3.80 that belongs to the Club. Do I get to keep it? — ONTARIO, CALIF.

DEAR ON: Give the money to a worthy charity. I recommend the American Cancer Society. They need it.

Successful Living

Wise Mother-in-Law Well Loved

By DORIS CLARK

One of the most difficult careers is that of mother-in-law! A mother-in-law can turn a marriage into a living hell. Or she can create a friendship so beautiful that she is beloved by her entire family.

The successful mother-in-law: (1) refuses to take sides in family arguments, no matter how large or how small the issue at hand; (2) offers advice only when asked for it, and even then she hands it out sparingly and tactfully; (3) takes an interest in her grandchildren and loves to baby-sit them. But she doesn't allow herself to be taken for granted. Nor does she spoil the children with lavish gifts or by thwarting their mother's ideas about raising children; (4) declines to live with her children; (5) loans money on a business-like basis when she can and when it is needed — but never gives large sums of money; (6) doesn't allow herself to become so dependent on her son or daughter that she comes between two hopeful young married's; (7) makes no habit of dropping in unannounced.

Dear Doris: I'm teaching piano this year to six pupils. One of them plays well by ear and my job is to improve his fingering. He is in grade two in school and is very advanced in playing by ear.

The trouble is he doesn't want to play anything more than once and if he does this his fingering and his playing won't improve. He doesn't want to listen but I've managed him so far. I praise his good work.

Is there anything else I can do so he will work harder and learn to listen and like it? — Teen-Age Musician

Dear Teacher: In grade two, your pupil can't be more than seven or eight years old. His attention span is short. His natural talent makes him think he knows all about the piano — even more than you do.

Yet he can be helped to see that practice makes perfect; that growing habits of right fingering is a matter of doing it over and over, as in developing any skill.

Get him to notice the difference when he has done even two bars ten times.

Dear Doris: I too would like depression recipes, and if you have any household hints of that era I would greatly appreciate them.

I well remember that the only "lamp" we had at times was a large coat button centred in a square of old cotton and set in a saucer of fat (sheep). It served as a candle. — I. C. C.

Dear I.C.C.: All I have are the recipes and they are on their way. We do have some "Tips for Harassed Homemakers" but they come of the era of the sixties — doubtless somewhat more harassed. Perhaps someone else can oblige.

I am trying to envision the lamp. How did it light up?

Day of Prayer Service to Be Held in Tweed

TWEED — The World Day of Prayer service will be held this year on Friday, March 6, in Tweed.

The theme is "Take Courage". It was chosen and developed by a group of five women who live as far away as Egypt, Guyana, India, and the Phillipines and as close by as the United States.

In this community the World Day of Prayer services will be held in St. John's United Church, at 2.30 p.m. under the convenership of St. John's United Church. Women from almost all Christian groups will participate, these include: Anglican, Pentecostal, Presbyterian, Roman Catholic, Salvation Army, United.

The Day of Prayer began in Canada in 1895 — but union with the World Day of Prayer came in 1921 when the offerings were less than $400. Last year the total was $96,842, and the needs growing world-wide, the 1970 gifts to finance the publication and distribution of Christian literature, refugee work and family relief, should increase.

Chinese-born Mother Disclaims Idea Oriental Women Dominated

NEW YORK (AP) — The "liberated" American female who wants to achieve real freedom and enjoy it too, might do well to take some lessons from her Chinese counterpart.

That's the opinion of Shirley Young, an attractive Chinese-born mother of three who recently was named head of the marketing research department at Grey Advertising.

The romanticized view that Oriental women are completely dominated by their husbands and not allowed an identity of their own is not true in China, said Miss Young in an interview.

Chinese women, she said, traditionally take for granted the raising of children and the managing of the home by servants. "It isn't like in this country where there's a big thing about the role of the woman and the satisfactions she's supposed to get."

Miss Young—her married name is Mrs. George Hsieh, but she uses her maiden name because it's easier to pronounce—said she has a live-in maid who gets the children off to school, watches over them during the day and prepares the meals.

"I was brought up by maids and I never suffered," she said. "I have no compunctions about having a maid."

American women, said Miss Young, have been brainwashed into thinking their place is in the home "and if they don't happen to want that, there are all these feelings of guilt."

Miss Young plays with her children in the evenings and on weekends.

"When I do spend time with them, I really spend the time," she said. "They're not a stone around my neck and I'm not a stone around theirs."

Miss Young was born in Shanghai in 1935 and came to the U.S. in 1945. She was graduated from Wellesley College 10 years later, got into the advertising business "accidentally" and joined Grey 10½ years ago.

Her husband is in the computer business. They have three sons—David, 6; Billy, 3; and Douglas, born last November.

Miss Young mixes home and career with the aid of "good help, a husband who'll put up with it and lots of energy."

As head of marketing research, she supervises 68 men and women who help clients plan selling strategy.

Is being a woman an advantage or disadvantage?

"Definitely an advantage in the same sense that I'm distinctive," Miss Young said with a smile, adding, however, that there can be problems.

"Some people don't quite know how to deal with you. They don't know whether to be gallant or businesslike."

First Barometers Often Used with Thermometers

Any farmer knows the vertical lift of an ordinary water pump is limited to 32 feet. Greater vertical distance results in a loss of suction and requires a different type of pump. This has been known for centuries. Prior to the 17th century it was explained by saying "Nature abhors a vaccuum" and that the abhorrence was limited to 32 feet.

Galileo was interested in this phenomenon and passed it along to his pupil Evangelista Torricelli. Torricelli believed that water was forced up in a pump by atmospheric pressure. If the atmosphere could support a 32-foot column of water, it would support approximately 30 inches of mercury, a substance 13½ times as heavy.

Torricelli proved his point by experiment. He reasoned the column to be supported would vary with height and proved this by climbing mountains and church spires with columns of mercury.

Also, Torricelli observed that mercury in a column fluctuated with the weather, as atmospheric pressure increased and decreased. In 1663 a treatise was published on his observations and "weather glasses" or barometers began to appear, even aboard ship.

Barometers for domestic use were available toward the end of the 17th century and became common in the 18th and 19th centuries. They were often combined with thermometers as the illustration shows.

Until refinements appeared, Torricellian barometers had to be at least 30 inches in size, frequently larger. English barometers are still related to a scale of 30 inches of mercury.

The best barometers are made of brass and glass and filled with mercury. They are really scientific instruments, individually calibrated. Very few old barometers still contain their column and cistern of mercury but are nonetheless prized for their decorative value.

Aneroid barometers which require no mercury and work on a different principle were used in Napoleon's campaign in Egypt but were not patented until 1945. In 1849 a patent suit stopped production until 1858. Almost all aneroid barometers were manufactured after this date. They quickly replaced Torricellian barometers because they could be made cheaply, much smaller and were readily adjusted.

Old barometer cases sell for high prices, usually the best part of $100. Wood, gilt and ormolu cases from Europe in the style of Louis XV and later sell for much more. Current Torricellian barometers are still made by scientific instrument makers at prohibitive private prices.

Slow Method of Cooking Turkey

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I am collecting your low-slow method of roasting beef and turkey and any other meats you mention. Would you please tell me time and temperature for roasting a 12 or 13-lb. fresh (not frozen) turkey? — Madge E.

ANSWER: The turkey was my only responsibility at my son's on Christmas Day and it weighed 12 lbs. 12 oz. so that fills your requirements.

ROAST TURKEY

(12-13 lbs. — semi-slow method)

NOTE: 9 cups bread crumbs combined with other small stuffing ingredients were sufficient to fill this bird.

When stuffed and skewered and tied, butter skin of turkey, cover with tent of foil and place on trivet in roasting pan. For dinner at 6 p.m. put in oven at 12 noon at 275 deg. Fahr. At 3:30 remove foil. Baste bird. Raise heat to 375 deg. Fahr. to start browning. Perfect at 6 p.m.

Turkey roasters please clip the recipe above.

Question from Mary Moore to Marian Robinson, 396 Queens Ave.: What city do you live in please? I have all of the recipes you requested ready to mail but no city to which to mail them.

QUESTION: Would you please give the old-fashioned method of making creamy rice pudding in top of double boiler? — Mary L.

ANSWER: My secretary tested this for you. It is her mother's recipe and her children love it.

CREAMY RICE (serves 5)

- ¼ cup raw long grain rice
- 2 cups milk
- 2 eggs — separated
- 3 or 4 tbsps. sugar (first amount)
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 3 or 4 tbsps. sugar (second amount)
- Toppings optional (see below)

In double boiler cook rice in milk sixty minutes till tender. Beat yolks with first amount of sugar until blended and stir gently into hot rice for 2 min. Remove from heat and add vanilla and fold in egg whites stiffly beaten with remaining amount of sugar. Pour into serving dishes and if served hot sprinkle with shredded coconut. If served cold, if desired top with canned or fresh frozen fruit.

Two Year Supply

Boom Days or Bust, Canadian Wheat Farmer Can Go Broke

WINNIPEG (CP) — Harvest years with wheat shimmering like a golden fortune and dust-bowl days when it seemed there was a curse on the land.

The western Canadian farmer has found that either extreme can leave him broke.

This is the paradox underlined by the Ottawa announcement Friday of cash incentives to western grain-growers not to seed wheat this spring.

The dilemma, this time around, is one of super-abundance.

Even if not one acre was sown to wheat this year, Canada would still have about 1,000,000,000 bushels on hand—at least a two-year supply at the current tempo of trade and domestic consumption.

Other seasons it's been other reasons, and it's no wonder the farmer who sticks with his land is a philosopher.

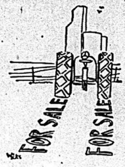
Since the first shipment of western wheat was moved to eastern Canada in 1876, via Duluth and the Great Lakes, the wheat-grower has had more ups and downs than a tester in a trampoline factory.

In the early days, any semblance of orderly marketing occurred only in times of crisis such as the First World War and immediately after.

Then came the boom of the late 1920s and the bust of the great depression.

Canadian wheat prices fell from a high for that time of $1.72 a bushel in 1929 to a low of 51 cents in 1930-31.

In 1932, December futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange reached an all-time low of 38 cents a bushel, in contrast to the present Lakehead export price of about $1.82 for top-graded No. 1 northern.



Those were the years of drought and dust, of mortgage foreclosures, children with haunted, hollow eyes, and Bennett buggies—stripped-down autos powered by horse because nobody, or hardly anyone, had money to buy gas.

Crisis times which led to the establishment of the Canadian Wheat Board—an end to speculative boom or bust on the freewheeling futures market—with the board becoming Canada's sole marketing agency for wheat, oats and barley in western Canada with additional powers to control the movement of other grains.

Again, war intervened in 1939 and cut off much of the wheat export market. The government of the day acted much like the government of the day on peacetime Friday, Feb. 27, 1970.

It offered incentives to farmers not to put acreage into wheat.

The post-war years brought with them a series of international wheat agreements between grower and buyer countries, both sides protected by a minimum-maximum price range and by a minimum-maximum commitment of delivery.

It's an arrangement that works reasonably well.

But for the western farmer the glory years were still to come in the early 1960s when enormous wheat deals are swung with the Soviet Union and China.

Open quotas were declared on wheat deliveries to country elevators—bring it all in and pick up your delivery payment, the word goes, and then seed still more land to wheat.

Then belt-tightening time again.

All the exporter nations including Canada have a series of bonanza harvests; the last International Wheat Agreement lapsed, and price-cutting competition began before the IWA was succeeded by the IGA—the International Grains Agreement.

Even under the IGA, price-cutting continued under the pressures of a multi-nation surplus, and the harvest kept getting more bountiful.

Now, again, farmers are to be paid not to plant wheat—and offered a bonus to plant something else.

Delivery Quotas Are Changed

Board will be changed for the 1970-71 crop year to eliminate wheat acreage as a quota-getter.

Instead the farm-to-elevator wheat delivery quotas for the farmer will be based on a formula involving forage and summer-fallow land. Basically, the more such land he has, the more of his farm-stored wheat surplus he can deliver.

The quota has been set at eight bushels an acre. It could rise to nine if conditions warrant, or drop if too much wheat flows into the grain-handlers' bins.

Otto Lang, long in the middle of the wheat surplus-low price crisis as the cabinet minister responsible for the wheat board, unveiled the program, which he said was arrived at in consultation with farm organizations.

Apart from the immediate benefit of approximately halving the 950,000,000-bushel Canadian stockpile, Mr. Lang said the drastic Canadian move would add impetus to international efforts to stabilize the world grain economy.

"Foreign buyers are not willing to pay top prices when they know we are sitting on a mountain of grain," he said.

To help unravel the international snarl over orderly grain marketing, Mr. Lang disclosed that he has invited wheat exporting countries and officials of the European Economic Community to meet to consider complementary steps to Canada's wheat reduction program.

The program commits the government to paying for the switch of a maximum of 22,000,000 acres of wheat land out of a total of 24,500,000 seeded to wheat last year.

Obviously, if the program works to perfection the country will have a tiny wheat crop this fall. But federal officials doubt a perfect score and will settle for a 70 per cent reduction.

The eventual score is in doubt. Western farmers, wise to the ways of government and crop failures, will make their choices at spring-planting time. That process will decide the validity of the theory.

Because the program is a one-shot affair, good for the next crop year only, the farmer will have to weigh the misty future when he decides whether to switch and how much.

It is unlikely the current quota system will be re-introduced in the succeeding crop year. It has fallen into disrepute under the pressure of the tight international sales situation.

Other changes are in the offing. For one, Mr. Lang has promised additional measures to see that the 1971 crop—the first one after the no-growyear is in line with international demand.

Farmers Pleased But Cautious

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Western farmers, politicians and farm leaders were generally pleased but cautious about a federal proposal announced Friday to pay farmers for taking wheatland out of production.

Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, Canada's major wheat-producing province, called a cabinet meeting for Monday to discuss the program.

He told the legislature the plan "probably isn't an over-all solution" but he welcomed it "as an attempt by the prime minister to help the western farmer."

The program will pay farmers $6 an acre for wheatland put into summer-fallow and $10 an acre if seeded to a perennial forage crop. Partial payment will be made in July and the balance in the fall, with a maximum of 1,000 acres for any individual producer.

Objective is to take 22,000,000 acres out of production.

Premier Harry Strom told the Alberta legislature the program should be supported by the province "although if we are looking for areas to criticize, we could find them."

The plan was explained in the legislature by Alberta's acting minister of agriculture, Ray Reierson, who said it is "a massive attack to reduce the wheat surplus."

Mr. Reierson said government action is urgently needed in view of a wheat surplus that is equivalent to two full crop years.

E. K. Turner, president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, said it would have been better if the cash incentive had been higher, "but it is probably at a fair level."

George Sellers, president of Federal Grain Ltd., said in a statement that although there is concern about some of the mechanics, "the concept of reducing acreage at this state of our marketing problem is certainly sound."

Andras Seeks 'Broad Approach' To Urban Crisis

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, Friday night called for a broad new approach to urban problems.

What is being done now, he said, is not good enough. And to do more of the same "may very well aggravate our problems in fragmenting the whole by encouraging the parts to fly off in all directions."

Mr. Andras, speaking to the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs, said "we must try and spell out what we as a nation—and by this I mean not only the politicians—what we Canadians want our urban life to entail, what is realistic, what is acceptable."

The minister said new channels of communication must be opened because people want to be heard. If a new national urban policy is developed, he said, it must involve the collective response of Canadian society, not just the federal government.

"We shall have to co-operate, where destructive petty jealousies now predominate; we shall have to make hard choices, where we now bury our heads in the sand; we may have to abort old irrelevant programs in the face of new knowledge and reordered priorities. . . ."

But he said the challenge should not frighten anyone "for it provides to us as a society an opportunity never before taken up, a challenge to shape our future rather than be swamped by events."

By the year 2000, he said, Canada will have more than doubled the size of its larger cities.

"Our problems now are trivial compared to the sprawl, the unavailability of housing, the noise, the filth, the traffic, the taxes, and even more the violence that we may well face."

The questions that must be answered were: "Who will govern? Who will pay?"

Text of his speech was released before delivery.

Blazing Off-shore Well Threat to Delta Wildlife

WASHINGTON (AP) — A small army of oil industry and government personnel is forming near New Orleans to fight a potential black tide of crude oil that threatens the wildlife and lush vegetation of the Mississippi Delta.

Authorities fear the oil could begin its shoreward movement Monday when Paul (Red) Adair, famed oilfield firefighter, plans to blow out the fire on a Chevron Oil Co. offshore drilling platform.

An oily, greasy plume of black smoke has gushed from the site since the fire began Feb. 10. Adair plans to blow out the fire with a charge of several hundred pounds of explosives.

Authorities fear the oil that has been going up in smoke will spill into the Gulf of Mexico to be pushed toward the Delta marshes by prevailing winds.

The platform is near the Chandeleur Island off the mouth of the Mississippi River and in an area harboring extensive oyster beds and shrimping grounds.

The region also is the winter home of hundreds of thousands of migratory waterfowl, including a heavy concentration of blue geese. Two bird and waterfowl refuges are located nearby in the marshes.

Oil company officials estimated the spill might reach 5,000 barrels a day until the wells can be capped—and that may not be easy.

"The wells in that area operate at 1,000 to 1,500 pounds per square inch of natural pressure," said Richard Hess, a federal interior department pollution expert. "That's a lot of pressure.

"It could be another Santa Barbara," said Hess, referring to the oil well spillage that debased the California city's beaches.

The coast guard is providing ships, helicopters, and the command functions.

Hess said Standard Oil of California, Chevron's parent firm, has spent about $1,000,000 collecting consultants and "a laundry list of equipment and supplies."

The list includes four oil barges with a total capacity of 2,200,000 gallons, three tugboats, 11 pumps and 29,700 feet of floating booms designed for oil containment.

This equipment is to be strung together as a floating pocket to trap the spreading oil and suck it off the surface of the water.

If some oil gets past all that equipment—and previous efforts at skimming oil off the ocean have not been notably successful—a standby force of more than 300 men will be waiting with up to 30,000 bales of straw and 450 synthetic foam pads to mop up oil that washes ashore.

Wheat Plan Said Federal Failure

SASKATOON (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Friday wheat acreage payments announced earlier in the Commons are an unquestionable admisson of the government's failure to sell wheat.

He said in an interview the payments will help western farmers, but they do not attack long-term problems.

Two of the Belleville Mo-Hawks' more defensive-minded standouts will be trying to shut the scoring door on Kingston Aces when the two teams meet in Belleville tonight for the second game of their OHA Senior A best-of-seven quarter-final playoff series. Defenceman Lou Kazowski and goalie Steve Rexe are seen in action in Kingston Tuesday when the Mo-Hawks lost the series' opener 7-5.

Mo-Hawks Ignoring Calendar

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Saturday night might be "Hockey Night in Canada", but it's never carried that distinction in Belleville.

No-one can remember the last time a senior hockey game was played in the Memorial Arena on a Saturday night, but everyone can tell you when the next one will be.

That comes tonight, when familiar Kigston enemies are in town for an 8 o'clock playoff duel, second in the best-of-seven quarter-final series.

The Aces won their first home instalment 7-5 Tuesday night, and will entertain the Mo-Hawks back in the Limestone City Sunday evening at 8 p.m.

The Saturday night rarity has apparently not abated the local appetite for senior hockey. Advance ticket sales are pointing to the season's largest Mo-Hawk crowd, and it looks like a first-come, first-served box-office situation.

What will be offered for the 2,000 spectators could be one of the most exciting — and roughest — brands of senior hockey in a few years.

The two clubs served notice of that Tuesday night when they played end-to-end hockey, only a goal apart for two periods.

Despite a rash of injuries, the Mo-Hawks expect to be at 99 per cent full strength tonight.

Veteran Wayne "Wiener" Brown is the only likely nonstarter, still waiting for badly-torn ankle ligaments to heal.

The much-needed aggressiveness of winger Ray Johnston will be present in the lineup. Johnston is expected to play wearing protective face-gear after a cross-check by the Aces' Rod Graham contributed a badly-bruised cheekbone to his features.

Defensive leader Lou Kazowski set hearts a-fluttering Tuesday night when he went down heavily in a corner and came up wincing and favoring the trick right ankle that kept him out of the lineup for six weeks.

But Kazowski is scheduled to start tonight, giving the locals a rarity — a full defence of Greg Marchen, Bob Wilson, Lionel Botly and Kazowski.

Wilson will be a face to watch tonight. The rugged American Hockey League veteran has steadily improved since joining the Mo-Hawks seven games ago, and has been dishing out some of the team's more robust contact.

RAY JOHNSTON

Kingston rookie Hugh Harvey squared off against the Havelock heavyweight Tuesday night but found himself tied up in a sweater sheep-shank in about 20 seconds flat.

The Aces will also have a special eye out for Ralph Plane. The Mo-Hawk captain cost Kingston two members of their lineup in the playoff opener with his free-wheeling approach to hockey.

First-period collisions with Plane sidelined defensive standout Bob Olajos indefinitely with a broken kneecap, and forward Tom Smallman, at least temporarily, with a jarred memory.

Forward Doug Senior, particularly effective against the Mo-Hawks all year, is another lineup question-mark. Senior was missing from Tuesday night's game, reportedly due to a contract squabble with Aces' management.

On the plus side, the Mo-Hawks have the George Godson-Lorne O'Donnell-Al Ferguson and Davey Jones-Ralph Plane-Lorne Ferguson forward combinations working well.

But the key to tonight's game — and future Mo-Hawk playoff chances — may well lie in coach Jones' success at mustering an effective third forward combination.

Jones will have a choice of Wayne McConnell, Gary Dalliday, Ray Johnston, John Baker, Billy Armour and Ray Summers from which to draw additional atacking power.

Armour, Baker, and McConnell did the honors Tuesday after Johnston was hurt, but their efforts proved disastrous. The line was on the ice for five Kingston goals and failed to contribute a single scoring point to the Mo-Hawk cause.

"We can't go back into Kingston tomorrow night two games down," says Jones. "If we get a 15-player effort, they are in trouble."

Bad Breaks Repeat on Braves

Getting bad breaks is enough of a problem, without getting the same ones twice.

Bata Braves are running into that sort of problem as they face elimination in their Eastern Ontario Intermediate C semi-final playoff series with Little Britain.

Little Britain trounced the Braves 10-4 last night to take a 3-0 stranglehold on the best-of-seven set, but not before they had watched the Braves add insult to their own injury problems.

Goalie Gary Genereaux had the little finger of his blocking glove hand broken in the pre-game warmup and had to be replaced in the game's second period by Earl McFaul.

It was the second time this season that the Bata goalkeeper had broken the same finger.

Ray Wellman scored a pair of Bata goals, with Doug Potts and Andy Faulkner adding singles.

The fourth — and possibly final game — in the series is scheduled for Little Britain Sunday night.

Third Game Sunday

Juniors Turn Tables on Crushmen

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The Belleville Ellis Printers "hit the hand that bleeds" them last night, coming up with a 9-6 win over Oshawa in their second Eastern Ontario Junior B playoff encounter.

While little Belleville blood was actually spilled you really can't knock Oshawa for not giving it that old Crushmen try. Play was halted for over half an hour in the second period, when coach Bob Dionne sent his troops over the boards in an apparent attempt to give Oshawa a ten-man advantage, in a physically-oriented argument that Ellis defenceman Greg Burkitt was having with three different Oshawa debaters.

Belleville coach, Floyd Crawford retaliated by releasing a crew of would-be "Crushmen killers" and the boys all joined forces in the Belleville end for the season's largest goalmouth scramble. Game officials administered some fast, fast relief in the form of game misconducts to Burkitt, Brian Rose, Bill Barker and Chris Bone, as well as eight bench penalties. Dionne was later thrown off the Oshawa bench for unsolicited appraisal of the game's officiating.

TERRY MEAGHER
Fills Net

The Printers were without the services of regular netminder Ron Jury, who was unable to play because of a painful reaction to a vaccination, and were forced to go with back-up Paul Hopkins, in action for only one period of the last half of the schedule. Although he was to blame for three soft goals, Hopkins came up with some good stops on many of the 30 saves he was called on to make, and turned in a creditable performance.

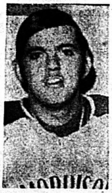
The Ellis defence contributed their finest effort of the season, keeping the Oshawa attack at long range for most of the evening.

They were particularly adept at clearing enemy forwards from in front of the net, coming up with a hard-hitting game that was a complete reversal of the first match. John Mulvihill continued to stand out on the Ellis blue line, but the team got a solid effort from all their rearguards. Dalton Lambert's roughhouse style of play earned him seven penalties for the match, but also gave the Crushmen forwards a look at the Belleville net from a prone position.

Oshawa opened the scoring at 2.11 of the first period when Bob Kirk's low shot from the right wing boards eluded Hopkins. Belleville winger Terry Meagher tied the game three minutes later firing in a rebound after Oshawa goalie Tom Christie had committed grand larceny on Reid Mallory.

Two power-play goals by John McConnell, on smoking slapshots from the point, put the Printers two goals up, with each team adding another first frame marker. Both clubs scored twice in the second frame to give Belleville a 6-4 lead.

Danny Lupenette, who skated miles and threw some of the game's stiffest checks, scored what proved to be the winning goal at 4.28 of the final period, firing a breakaway tally into the top left-hand corner. Christie had previously robbed Lupenette twice and Dennis MacCormack once on clear-out breakaways.



PAUL HOPKINS
Fills Breach

Terry Meagher, who has always had the knack of scoring goals, came through with what was possibly his best all-round performance of the season.

Besides firing four goals and adding a pair of assists, Meagher played strong two-way hockey, spelled off the defence and was a stand-out on the power plays and killing penalties.

Other Ellis forwards who turned in good efforts were utility man Ron Fuller, who did an excellent job killing penalties and on the Belleville power play, and centre John McConnell, who possibly suffered another fracture of his already broken nose in the second period brawl.

While the Belleville dressing room wasn't a gold-mine of original quotes, it pretty well summed up the team's feelings. "I'm tired!" moaned Terry Meagher. "I'm dead!" echoed John Mulvihill. "I'm happy!" beamed Floyd Crawford.

The third game of the best-of-seven semi-final series will be played Sunday night in Belleville at 7.30 p.m.

Shaw Outdistances Nemesis To Break Own Backstroke Record

MONTREAL (CP) — Jim Shaw of University of Toronto swimming team is a very happy man today after setting a record in the 200-yard backstroke event at the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union championships Friday night.

"I wanted to do it in less than two minutes," said Shaw, "but I just didn't have it at the end."

Shaw, a member of Canada's Olympic swimming team in 1968, covered the 200 yards in 2:00.5, knocking 4-10 of a second off his old mark set in 1967.

Shaw's nemesis in the past few months, John Hawes of McGill University, was disqualified in the event for making an illegal turn. Hawes had scored three straight victories over Shaw in the 200-yard backstroke in the last seven months.

McGill swimming coach Fouad Kamal was upset with the officials' decision to disqualify Hawes and filed a protest, but the decision was not changed.

Shaw's team-mates on Toronto's 400-yard freestyle relay team also broke a Canadian record with a time of 3:17.8, breaking the old mark of 3:18.8 set by Simon Fraser University. Simon Fraser is not a member of the CIAU.

Meanwhile, two CIAU records also fell.

Brian Richie of Alberta set a new Canadian college mark when he swam the 200-yard butterfly in 2:02.1 to break the old mark of 2:03.8 set by Richard Zajchowski of McGill in last year's meet in Fredericton, N.B.

Dave Johnson of McGill won the 200-yard freestyle in a college record time of 1:48.9. The old mark was 1:49.8 by Bob Coke of Manitoba.

Other individual winners Friday included Theo Van Ryn of Toronto in the 50-yard freestyle, Craig Gauld of Western Ontario in the 200-yard individual medley and Ken Fowler of Western in the 200-yard breaststroke.

In the one-meter diving, Saskatchewan's Ron Friesen took an early lead and went on to capture the event with 372.90 points. Doug Darling of Western Ontario finished second to Friesen with 346.50 points.

The two-day event, hosted by the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Athletic Association concludes today with preliminaries and finals in the 100-yard butterfly, 100-yard freestyle, 100-yard breaststroke, 100-yard backstroke, 500-yard freestyle, 400-yard individual medley, 400-yard medley and three-meter diving events.

French Girls Vying For World Cup Honors

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Michele Jacot, the 17-year-old French flash, won the giant slalom here Friday, meaning team-mate Francoise Macchi would have to win the remaining three women's cup races to edge Michele for the World Cup Skiing title.

Karl Schranz of Austria was beaten by four other Europeans in the men's giant slalom over a hard, tricky Grouse Mountain course.

He needs a fourth or better in today's slalom to claim his second consecutive men's world championship.

Alain Penz of France picked up his first international giant slalom win as he continued to improve on what started out as a poor year on the international ski circuit.

Penz, 22, second in Thursday's first run, whistled over the fast track Friday to nip Werner Bleiner of Austria by 2-100ths of a second for the victory.

Patrick Russel of France remained in third spot with a combined time of three minutes 6.37 seconds, 1.9 seconds off the pace set by Penz.

Jakob Tischhauser of Switzerland moved up from sixth to claim fourth.

Canadian captain Peter Duncan of Mont Tremblant, Que., complained about his technical attack of the 65-gate, 4,400-foot course with a 1,220-foot vertical drop and then discovered he had moved from 11th to seventh place, the best Canadian men's performance this year.

Keith Shepher of Waskesiu, Sask., was 17th in 3:10.73; Bill McKay, Edmonton, 26th with 3:14.06; Bert Irwin, Kamloops, B.C., 29th in 3:15.07; Dan Irwin, Thunder Bay, Ont., 31st in 3:15.68; Mike Culver, Montreal, 35th in 3:16.64; Jim Hunter, Calgary, 39th in 3:18.21; Bob Swan, Ottawa, 41st in 3:19.14; Aidan Ballantyne, Toronto, 42nd in 3:19.50; Reto Barrington, Calgary, 44th in 3:20.63, and Graham Hess, Toronto, 45th in 3:21.04.

Miss Jacot, No. 8 in the world last year and the leader most of this season, was about the only skier who gave full approval to the 68-gate women's course.

She was clocked over the 4,000-foot icy track that had a vertical drop of 1,200 feet in one minute 38.84 seconds, beating Barbara Cochran, 18, of Richmond, Vt. who survived a near-fall when her ski tips crossed.

Another American, Judy Nagel, 18, of Enumclaw, Wash., placed third in 1:39.98.

Miss Macchi, in second place in world standings, fell and did not finish.

Rosi Mittermaier of Germany was fourth in 1:40.46.

Betsy Clifford, the 16-year-old from Ottawa who is heralded as heir to Nancy Greene Raine's ski queen title, was the top Canadian girl, placing 10th in 1:41.51.

Betsy won the grand slalom at Val Gardena, Italy, earlier this month.

Miss Jacot picked up another 10 points to run her cup total to 180. Miss Macchi has 145 and could reach 184 if she wins Sunday's slalom here and the giant slalom at Voss Bergen, Norway, last stop on the world cup circuit.

Florence Steurer of France is third with 121 points, one point ahead of Miss Cochran. Miss Clifford is seventh with 101 points and the only Canadian in the top 20 of the World Cup standings.

Diane Culver of Montreal placed 12th Friday in 1:42.18. Other Canadians in the top 25 were Laurie Kreiner, Timmins, Ont., 15th in 1:42.95; Judy Crawford, Toronto, 18th in 1:44.78; Susan Graves, Toronto, 19th in 1:46.87, Diana Gibson, also of Toronto, 20th in 1:48.74, and Kathy Kreiner, Timmins, 1:53.54. Canadian girls occupied 15 of the final 16 finishing positions.

Penz, fifth in the world last year, moved up to sixth with his giant slalom victory.

His 89 points is well below Schranz' 146. The Austrian is followed by Italy's Gustave Thoeni, disqualified in Thursday's first giant slalom run and Russel. Each has 140 points.

Dumeng Giovanoli of Switzerland is fourth with 116 points and Jean-Noel Augert of France is fifth with 110.

Palmer Hangs In

Part-timing Pays for Gilbert

MIAMI (AP) —Gibby Gilbert, who has played only on a part-time basis for two seasons, has a one-stroke lead over Mike Hill and Jim Colbert going into today's third round of the Doral open golf tournament.

Gilbert, a 29-year-old assistant pro at nearby Hillcrest Country Club, came out of the pack with a second-round 68 and took the 36-hole lead at 138 in the $150,000 tournament.

Colbert, whose only tour victory was in last year's Monsanto Open, had a 70. Hill, younger brother of 1969 Vardon Trophy winner Dave Hill, had a 69.

Larry Hinson had a 71 and was alone at 140.

Dave Marr and Jack McGowan, the first-round leaders, slipped to 75s on the 7,028-yard, par-72 course at the Doral Country Club and were tied at 142 with Dan Sikes and British Open champion Tony Jacklin. Jacklin had a 72 and Sikes a 73.

Arnold Palmer remained in contention at 144, but some of the other well-known names fell victim to the demanding layout.

Frank Beard, 149, Ray Floyd and defending champion Tom Shaw, 150, Tom Wiskopf and Gardner Dickinson, 151, Bob Murphy and Doug Sanders, 152, Julius Boros, 153 and Bert Yancey, 158, all failed to make the 148 cut for the final two rounds.

Two Canadians qualified. Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver shot a 70 for a 146 and George Knudson of Toronto had a 74 for 147.

Nobody Knows What Worsley's Worth

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers have been leaders of the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League for most of the season but their hold on first place appears threatened because of injuries to key players.

The Rangers lost all-star defenceman Jim Neilson early this month with pulled knee ligaments and last week they lost another defenceman, Brad Park. He suffered a broken ankle.

The injury jinx struck again Wednesday night when utility forward Donnie Marshall wrenched his shoulder in a game with St. Louis Blues after he checked Gary Sabourin.

The injuries leave the Rangers without three of their top players as they enter this weekend's action with a two-point lead over second-place Boston Bruins.

But Ranger coach Emile Francis is not sitting still. Replacements Mike Robitaile and Larry Brown have both performed well since Neilson and Park were injured. And Friday night the Rangers traded two players to Los Angeles Kings in exchange for left winger Ted Irvine.

Irvine, who played in 58 games for the Kings this season, scoring 11 goals and picking up 12 assists, was swapped for rookie Juha Widing and Real Lemieux.

In another deal Friday, Montreal Canadiens transferred the NHL contract of veteran goaltender Gump Worsley to Minnesota North Stars.

Sam Pollock, general manager of the Canadiens, said that in return for Worsley the Montreal club will "receive various considerations from the North Stars to be finalized after the completion of the current season."

'GUMP' WORSLEY

Neither Pollock nor Wren Blair, North Stars general manager, would say just what considerations the Montreal club will receive, but Blair said of the transaction:

"I don't like the inference that Sam Pollock is a big, bad man on the deal and I don't like the inference that I'm cluck enough to trade a draft choice for a veteran goalie.

"There is absolutely no draft choice involved, and in fact there was no player considered at this stage."

Blair said Worsley will join Minnesota in Philadelphia today and plans are to start him against the Flyers in Minnesota next Wednesday.

"But I can't emphasize too much that Canadiens were more than generous. They didn't even mention drafts, or any players. They just said if I feel Gump could help us, then to work something out with him and they'd work something out with me later, depending on how long Gump stays with us."

The North Stars can really use Worsley, although Blair says the club doesn't feel goaltending was a weakness of the team. "Cesare Maniago has been one of our strong points," Blair said.

Worsley joins the Stars at a time when the club has gone 19 games without a victory. They have won only one of their last 33 games.

Besides the Minnesota-Phil delphia game tonight, othe scheduled games have St. Lou at Montreal, Los Angeles Kin playing at Toronto against t Maple Leafs, New York visiti Detroit Red Wings and Oaklan Seals at Pittsburgh against th Penguins.

Sunday night the North Sta play Toronto in Minnesota, Ch cago meets the Rangers in Ne York and Los Angeles plays th Flyers in Philadelphia.

Terriers Take Opener

ORILLIA (CP) — Orillia Te riers defeated Barrie Flyers 2 Friday night to take a 1-0 lea in their Ontario Hockey Associ tion Senior best-of-nine sem final series.

The Flyers took a 1-0 lea early in the game on a goal b Corby Adams, but Orillia cam back with two third-period goal by George Westfall and Pete Speyer to claim the victory.

Orillia outshot Barrie 47-34.

Hamilton Wings Edge Near Berth

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Red Wings nipped Niagara Falls Flyers 4-3 to creep closer to the final playoff position and Toronto Marlboros crushed Peterborough Petes 6-0 Friday, destroying the Petes' last chance of overhauling Montreal Junior Canadiens for first place in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series action

The forward unit of Gerry O'Flaherty, Bill Barber and Gerry Byers combined for 17 scoring points in the only other Friday game at Ottawa as Kitchener Rangers outscored the 67s 8-6.

The Red Wings, who now trail eighth-place Oshawa Generals by one point with two games in hand, opened up a 3-0 first-period lead at Niagara Falls and held on to hand the Flyers their 37th loss of the season.

Jim Schoenfeld, Mike Boyle, Ron Climie and Tom Williams shared the Hamilton scoring while Jerry Roussel, Owen Jelly and Bob Cambell scored in the Flyers' late rally.

Gary Crosby led Toronto's one-sided win with two goals, leaving the Petes four points behind the defending national champion Junior Canadiens with two games left to play. Montreal cannot fall out of first place, even if they lose all three of their remaining games and the Petes win twice. The league-leaders have won six more games than Peterborough.

Borrowed Rocks, Open-air Rinks Taught Top Senior Skip Skills

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Don MacRae learned the shooting skills that helped make him the Canadian seniors' curling champion on a frozen pond in Brandon, Man., where you had to buy or borrow your own rocks if you wanted to play at all.

"In those days, you became a good shot-maker before you became a curler," said the Nanaimo, B.C., skip who won the oldtimers' title Friday with a 9-7 victory over Jimmy Hill of Delisle, Sask.

"No two pair of rocks were the same. Some were heavy and some light. It was all natural ice and there was more chance than cold turkey involved in winning."

MacRae, third Gene Koster, second Bev Smiley and lead Gordon Howden compiled a 23-1 won-lost record, starting with the city playoffs in Nanaimo last month, and they gave everyone fits here.

The 54-year-old insurance agent piled on a 9-1 lead after six ends against Hill, a two-time representative at the national men's final, then he changed strategy to protect it.

"When you're playing good curlers, you can't lie back and get fancy or they'll get five on you," he said following presentation of the Seagram Stone to his rink.

MacRae got a big assist in his run for the title from Dr. Wen McDonald of Charlottetown who upset Hill 8-7 in the 10th round for his second loss in as many games.

"I just don't know what happened to us," said Hill, "but in our last three games, we just couldn't curl the way we did starting out."

MacRae laid a four-ender in the fifth, but the 50-year-old Saskatchewan farmer didn't quit.

He came back with two in the seventh and three more in the eighth before B.C. halted the comeback and ran him out of rocks.

The B.C. victory brought a sigh of relief from tournament officials who were making plans for a three-way playoff following the morning round.

A Saskatchewan win over MacRae would have left Hill, MacRae and Slim Otterson of Calgary with identical 8-2 records. Otterson blasted MacRae 10-4 in the second round for B.C.'s only setback of the 11-rink round-robin competition.

The Alberta rink was runner-up in the week-long tournament at 8-2 and Howie Wood Jr. finished in a third-place tie with Hill at 7-3.

Northern Ontario's Stan Brooker, the substitute skip, was 6-4, along with McDonald. For Brooker, who filled in for Ralph Smith when a family illness prevented him from accompanying his rink here, it was a repeat of his 1969 performance in Hamilton.

Brill Bends Best

NEW YORK (CP) Debbie Brill of Haney, B.C., set a meet record Friday night by winning the high jump in five feet 11 inches at the 82nd annual U.S. Amateur Athletic Union indoor track and field championships at Madison Square Garden.

Debbie Van Kiekebelt of Toronto was second with 5-7 and Patricia Wilson of Ottawa was fourth with 5-4.

Cathy Hunter of Toronto was second in her 60-yard high hurdles heat but did not place in the semi-finals and did not qualify for the final.

Two meet records fell in successive races as Dave Romansky, the defender, swept to the mile walk title in 6:14.0, and Juris Luzins of Williamsburg, Va., took the 1,000-yard run.

Saskatoon Out of Slump

Women's Winners Youngest Ever

CALGARY (CP) — Dorenda Schoenhals of Saskatoon, forced into a detour by Prince Edward Island, got back on the right road with a couple of playoff victories Friday to win the Canadian women's curling championship for Saskatchewan.

"It's a dream come true," Dorenda said, after emerging from a nightmare slump to defeat Manitoba 8-6 and British Columbia 8-4 in the first three-rink playoff in the 10-year history of the championship.

"Fantastic," said Linda Burnham, 21, who threw second rocks for the youngest rink ever to compete in the 10-rink, round-robin affair.

It was an appropriate description for a topsy-turvy tournament that saw Saskatchewan surge ahead with seven consecutive victories, then topple into a first-place tie with Glenda Buhr of Winnipeg and Donna Clark of Burnaby, B.C.

The Saskatoon girls could have wrapped up things in the eighth round Thursday, but lost 9-6 to Manitoba.

Manitoba had a chance to win in the ninth round when Marie Toole of Charlottetown took a 9-7 extra-end victory and left the Saskatchewan girls crying. But Mrs. Buhr blew the opportunity with a clean miss on an open, last-rock takeout attempt.

"I've created a mess," Kay O'Neill of Kingston said, after Ontario stole single points on the last three ends to upset Manitoba 7-6 in an extra end.

Miss Clark, whose B.C. rink appeared out of the picture with two losses, suddenly found herself back in contention.

In becoming a giant killer Mrs. O'Neill finished with a 6-3 record and a share of fourth place with Lee Tobin's Quebec rink from Montreal. P.E.I. finished sixth at 4-5, Violet Pike of Grand Falls, Nfld., seventh at 3-6, Audrey Thorbourne of Liverpool, N.S., and Shirley Pilson of Bathurst, N.B., shared eighth place at 2-7

White Paper Termed 'Robin Hood in Reverse'

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield Friday described the federal white paper on taxation as "Robin Hood in reverse," and warned it would reduce Canada's middle class to "spenders, borrowers and debtors."

Speaking at a Progressive Conservative luncheon, Mr. Stanfield lashed out at the white paper's policy and said it was "robbing from one element of the community to reward another."

He said the proposals would reward the rich and save the poor almost nothing. The proposed tax schedule would save a family of two making $4,000 a year only $127. But an executive earning $100,000 a year would save almost $5,500, he said.

He charged the white paper would inspire conglomerates, mergers and foreign takeovers with a reduction in competition in Canada.

About 750 party members applauded hs pledge to repeal the white paper's "more iniquitous" sections if the Conservatives were elected. He promised that the legislation would be an election issue.

Continuing his attack, Mr. Stanfield said the paper's avowed purpose to soak the rich and reward the poor was "either a misconception, a fallacy or a fraud."

He said the paper "really masks an intent to deceive the poor, beguile the rich and sock it to nearly everyone is."

Mr. Stanfield criticized the capital gains tax proposal saying anyone who saved in the short run would lose to the capital gains tax in the long run.

Small businesses would feel the brunt of 50-per-cent to 100-per-cent increases in taxes, while large corporations would have increases so small they "can only be stated in negligible fractions."

Mr. Stanfield said the paper is suggesting "small businesses, as we have come to understand them in this country have neither value nor utility in the economy and that the best way to eliminate this redundance is to minimize its chances of growth and simply tax small businesses out of existence."

PCs Plan Conference on Cities

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield announced Friday the federal Progressive Conservative party will hold a two-day conference in Toronto in May to discuss the city's problems and what the federal government could do to help.

The conference is to be the first of a series in Canada's major cities, and will cover pollution, transportation, housing, poverty and the quality of urban life.

Legislature Seeks to Restrict Law's Self Governing Powers

TORONTO (CP) — Proposed major revisions of the Law Society Act to permit public scrutiny of the Ontario legal profession and restrict the profession's self-governing powers were introduced Friday in the legislature.

The government also introduced a bill which would revise safety regulations in the mining industry, and launched an attack against NDP member Morton Shulman, charging he maligned and intimidated staff at the Vanier Institute for Women at Brampton.

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart, introducing the new Law Society Act, said it follows closely the recommendations of a royal commission on civil rights headed by former Ontario Chief Justice J. C. McRuer.

The McRuer report found that the Law Society of Upper Canada was one of 22 self-governing professional bodies in the province and had semi-judicial powers without appeal procedures for lawyers against disciplinary action and without public approval.

The new act provides for the inclusion of three government-appointed members on the society's advisory council and for provincial cabinet approval of many of the society's regulations.

The society remains free, however, to make rules without cabinet approval in such areas as bar admission procedures, legal education, granting of degrees and the rights and privileges of members.

The act raises the number of benchers—members who govern the society—to 40 from 30 and sets out procedures by which they may take disciplinary action against members.

Members would be given 15 days to appeal a disciplinary order to the Ontario Court of Appeal. At present, disciplined lawyers have no recourse to the courts.

Mr. Wishart also introduced an amendment to the Judicature Act to increase the number of High Court judges to 29 from 26.

This will be followed by other legislation to re-organize the jurisdictions of the three court levels—supreme, county and provincial.

In other business:

—Mines Minister Allan Lawrence introduced a bill to revise mine safety regulations through amendments to the Mining Act. The changes would include such features as ultra-sonic examination of shafts and equipment and fresh-air bases in deep mines for rescue purposes.

—Two Conservative backbenchers, Gordon Smith of Simcoe East and William Newman of Ontario South, followed the cabinet's lead in criticizing the federal white paper on tax reform. Both repeated arguments previously expressed by Premier Robarts and other ministers.

Members Exchange Insults

TORONTO (CP) — A complaint by Dr. Mortor Shulman that a letter to him from a prisoner in a women's detention home had been withheld by the staff of the institution was referred to the Ontario legislature's committee on privileges Friday after a 45-minute exchange of insults in the house.

Dr. Shulman, NDP member for Toronto High Park, charged earlier this week that on a visit to the Vanier Institute for Women northwest of Toronto he had found in a prisoner's personal file a letter addressed to him marked "not to be sent out." This was contrary to what MPPs had been promised—that there would be no interference with mail to a member.

Friday, Allan Grossman, minister of correctional services, said the letter was held up for therapeutic reasons. The woman was under treatment and the letter was an example of what was said to be her tendency to distortion and exaggeration. It would have been mailed had the woman insisted, but she recognized her problem and agreed to rewrite it.

The minister quoted from a report by Vanier Superintendent Donna Clark which accused Dr. Shulman and Pat Lawlor (NDP Toronto Lakeshore)' of being "extremely rude and insolent" to the staff. They had been maligned personally and publicly and "intimidation by threats" interfered with their ability to help Vanier prisoners.

Dr. Shulman said the report contained "unbelievable distortions." There had been no intimidation and his relations with the staff he saw had been friendly.

In making his charge originally, Dr. Shulman said the woman had suffered "cruel and unusual punishment" when an employer for whom she worked under the province's temporary absence program was notified that she came from Vanier Institute.

Mr. Grossman said Dr. Shulman was misrepresenting the facts. All employers of persons under sentence but permitted to leave an institution were told the circumstances.

In this instance, the woman's employer, a hiring service, had not been advised of her history but was told when the oversight was detected and the institute ordered to comply with regulations.

MPs Ask Overhaul Of Penal System

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition parties took advantage of a Commons debate on minor amendments to the Parole Act Friday to urge that the government undertake a major overhaul of the penal system.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) urged a fresh look at the treatment given those convicted of drug offences.

Young people convicted of illegal drug use should be placed on "day-to-day parole" instead of receiving lengthy jail sentences, he said.

This would enable those convicted to receive comprehensive rehabilitation treatment.

The legislation received second reading and was sent to committee for further study.

The Commons earlier gave third reading to a Senate bill preventing the introduction to Canada of infectious or contagious diseases. The measure now needs only royal assent to become law.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons domestic copper prices will be increased by 3.5 per cent to 59 cents a pound—10 cents less than the U.S. price.

The move should have little or no effect on inflation in Canada, Mr. Pepin said.

During debate on amendments to the Parole Act, Jack Bigg (PC—Pembina), a lawyer and retired RCMP sergeant, said more trained magistrates and police officers are needed to give more attention to rehabilitating young people convicted of criminal offences.

Social attitudes must be changed so prisoners are allowed to communicate with other members of society.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) said the penal system should be revamped to give more emphasis to rehabilitation and less to punishment.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said the Commons justice committee should go out and talk to prisoners before approving the amendments to the act.

Canadian authorities have been overly-cautious in administering parole, he said.

Solicitor-General George McIlraith said MPs should remember that the amendments were "a housekeeping matter" and make no substantial changes in existing legislation.

Mr. Woolliams said the present laws often fail to reflect changing social conditions.

For example, about 60 per cent of those now in educational institutions had used drugs illegally at some time but only "a handful" was caught. Why should these few suffer while most offenders remain free, he asked.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said committees should be set up in prisons to put forth prisoners' views to administrators and the public.

Mining Act to Be Revised

TORONTO (CP) — Mines Minister Allan Lawrence Friday introduced a "monumental revision" of the safety regulations in Ontario's mining industry.

He told the legislature the bill, an act to amend the Mining Act, is so complex it will be referred to a committee for detailed discussion by all interested parties.

The act is 235 pages long.

Mr. Lawrence said it was intended to revise mine safety regulations last year but industry unions were involved in strikes and contract negotiations and were not free to give it proper consideration.

Major changes in safety regulations proposed:

—Electro-magnetic testing of all hoisting ropes for their full length;

—Direct-fired heating of all underground workings;

—Ultra-sonic examination of shafts, brakes and other features of hoisting equipment and cranes;

—Prior notification of major electrical installations;

—Regulations for the use of guide and rubbing ropes used in shafts;

—New protections when cranes or power shovels operate near overhead power lines.

The bill also calls for fresh-air bases in deep mines for rescue purposes and specified personal protective equipment and clothing.

To End Jail For Drinking

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Public drunkeness will cease to be an offence in New Brunswick if the legislature approves a bill proposed by Justice Minister Bernard Jean.

He told the legislature Friday a policeman will be allowed to arrest a person for being drunk in a public place and detain him only until "sobering sufficiently" to be released.

The end of jail terms for being drunk is a part of new legislation proposed to change the province's corrections policy by shifting emphasis to rehabilitation from imprisonment.

It would include much more extensive use of probation and parole, wider discretionary power for judges in imposing fines and establishment of a five-member parole board.

In other legislatures:

Halifax—Nova Scotia should follow the examples of Norway, Sweden and Switzerland and establish "tourist complexes" throughout the province, said P. Fisher Hudson (PC—Victoria). This could be done by land assembly, providing serviced areas and then enticing the private sector to build its facilities in these areas.

Regina—A special government-appointed committee will be set up to study the role of small hospitals in Saskatchewan, Health Minister Gordon Grant said. Only 28 of the province's 130 hospitals are professionally accredited and this is "just not good enough," he said.

Edmonton—There should be no restraint on funds for housing, Municipal Affairs Minister F. C. Colborne said. He hit at the federal government's "policy of tight money and restraint which resulted in a severe shortage of mortgage funds."

Victoria—A gloomy picture of British Columbia's economic future was painted by George Mussallem (SC—Dewdney) who charged that development is lost in a "morass of logs and stumps."

"The Hardest Working Classified Want Ads are the ones that are Written the Best!"

Follow These Helpful Suggestions For Writing A Good Want Ad.

1—IT'S ALWAYS BEST to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale, start your advertisement with the location.

2—Be CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete or definite information. Always include "price".

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always insert your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, give a preferred time to have prospects contact you.

4—THE GREATEST READER ATTENTION can be secured for your advertisement by using consecutive insertions.

You can stop your ad in the event of results, and then you pay only for the days it is published.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know tabout your offer. The answer you give will make a good Classified Ad.

6—CLASSIFIED readers are already interested in buying your used or new merchandise. These people have the money and are already in the market to buy. So give them every advantage you can with good ad copy.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL to bring satisfaction do so, not through any lack of readership but because they are often carelessly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.

E. BAIN, H.S.S.
Ask at Hotel Desk for room number. Hours 12 to 8 p.m.

F. A. ORR, H.S.S.
Will personally supervise your treatments from the Toronto Laboratories.

2 DAY CLINIC STARTS

Monday, Feb. 23rd and Tuesday, Feb. 24th

HOTEL QUINTE

Mr. E. Bain will personally supervise and demonstrate this new method of growing thicker, healthier hair. A free examination by Mr. E. Bain can determine the exact cause of hair loss and baldness — can result in treatment that stops hair loss and grows thicker, stronger, more virile hair.

PROVED EFFECTIVE IN 95% OF CASES TREATED

This new, revolutionary method has proved itself! In 19 out of 20 cases treated, excessive hair loss has been stopped, hair has been regrown in some cases, dandruff, scaling and itching have been completely eliminated.

50 YEARS OF CONTINUOUS RESEARCH HAS DEVELOPED THIS NEW METHOD OF SCALP CARE

Down through the ages baldness has been one of the most common afflictions of the human race. All progress has involved painstaking research and time-consuming experimentation. Only the Frommes Clinic, backed by an organization that has devoted 50 years to this continuous research, can show such startling results. Now, the crystalization of all this scientific research and effort is being demonstrated and offered to you.

HEALTHIER SCALP, MORE VIRILE HAIR IN JUST 30 DAYS

Results are quick with the new Frommes treatment. You don't wait around for months on end. Fast-acting Frommes treatments cleanse all dandruff from your scalp, kill bacteria swarming beneath the surface, eliminate local disorders Once your scalp is healthy and responsive you'll discover that hair loss is stopped. Then special Frommes formulae are applied to the healthy scalp to stimulate hair growth. In less than three months your hair grows more virile. New hair replaces hair you have lost. You look years younger in weeks.

ACT TODAY!
TOMORROW MAY BE TOO LATE

Many unhealthy scalps if treated in time will respond. If your hair is too dry or too oily — if your scalp is itchy and shows dandruff—if you have excessive hair fall, these are the initial causes of baldness . . . not heredity. Baldness is not inevitable. You can inherit a weak scalp, but you cannot inherit baldness. Proper care and treatment can make a weak scalp retain and grow hair for a lifetime.

FREE Consultation
No Obligation

You will find Frommes free consultation informative and absolutely truthful regarding the results expected. If you case will not respond to treatment, we will tell you so. Come in today and let Frommes show you how you can take care of your hair — without obligation. Both men and women accepted for treatment. No appointment necessary.

Gunman Flees

Fighting Banker Routs Intruder

Battle in Basement Of East End Branch

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Police today were still seeking a foiled bank bandit whose armed robbery attempt in the east end branch of the Bank of Montreal was frustrated by a fighting, 22-year-old acting manager.

Police teams today were interviewing bank personnel and householders in the vicinity of the East Dundas-MacDonald Avenue branch for clues in the holdup attempt.

Being sought are any leads to the identity of the would-be robber, his features obscured possibly by a nylon stocking, who surprised the young bank official alone in the building nearly three hours after closing time and snatched a bank pistol from him.

The holdup attempt ended abruptly when acting manager Clinton Halladay suddenly closed with the intruder and both men locked in a struggle for the loaded gun.

In the punch-throwing sequel — in the bank basement — the man failed to subdue the plucky Halladay and fled the scene.

Today, in what is believed the first bank robbery attempt of the century in Belleville, police are seeking a man of burly build, about five foot, seven inches tall, weighing 180 pounds, aged in his mid-40s and wearing a red-check bush jacket, work pants and possible work boots at the time of the hold-up.

The attempt took place shortly before six p.m. — nearly three hours after the branch closed.

Today, police chief Douglas Crosbie said police surmise the man may have entered the bank through a cellar door.

Police relate the incident in this sequence:

Mr. Halladay, with the bank four years and posted to the suburban Belleville branch in October, had locked the front door behind the last of the staff some time after five p.m.

He was working at his desk, just about ready to depart home when the incident occurred.

On his desk was the pistol, which he had just taken from a drawer to lock in the vault for the night, in keeping with bank safety practice, say police.

The man silently came up behind Mr. Halladay and grabbed him around the neck, scooping up the gun.

He ordered Mr. Halladay to Aftermath of Holdup Attempt

Exhausted, his clothes in disarray, acting bank manager Clinton Halladay shows signs of holdup ordeal as he is interviewed by police at Bank of Montreal east end branch last night. Alone in building, he fought off intruder who held him at gunpoint. Taking details are city Sergeant of Detectives Robert Begbie (left) and Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

Snow Slide Kills Thirty

RECKINGEN (AP) — An avalanche crashed through this sleeping Swiss Alpine village at dawn today and 30 persons were feared dead.

Seven bodies were recovered, but 10 hours after the slide struck 23 persons were still missing.

Villagers said there is no hope for those still buried.

Many of the victims were Swiss Army officers whose barracks was crushed. They were attached to a small anti-aircraft unit stationed in the village.

U.S. Inquiry Into Safety of the Pill Stirs Wave of Unwanted Pregnancies

WASHINGTON (CP) — A woman birth control specialist told a Senate subcommittee today that its hearings into the safety of the pill had created international panic and prompted a wave of unwanted pregnancies.

Dr. Elizabeth B. Connell of Columbia University in New York City said a stepup in pregnancies "strikes profound fear in the hearts of those who deal daily with women and population problems."

Dr. Connell, associate professor of obstetrics and gynaecology, said fear caused by adverse publicity given the pill at Senate hearings last month could have disastrous effects on population control programs in developing countries which rely on the pill.

"Evidence documenting the panic regarding the pill mounts daily," she said.

". . . If the pill is discredited here, will we again be faced with the problem of appearing to supply something to women of other nations which is too dangerous to give our own?" she asked.

Dr. Connell criticized the hearings for creating what she said was an arbitrary division in the medical profession on the pill issue.

She also criticized some of the conclusions reached by witnesses at hearings last month. Testimony then linked the pill to scores of suspected side effects, including cancer, fatal blood clotting, diabetes and heart trouble.

Dr. Connell, a mother of six and the first woman to testify at the hearings, said even the most violent of critics of the pill had to concede his data was limited and that many of his conclusions were based on unsupported speculation.

Prince Charles in Revue

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP) — Prince Charles talked and danced his way through 25 acts and didn't fluff a line in a stage revue at his Cambridge University college Monday night.

Britain's Prince of Wales had to be prompted during a press showing of the revue Sunday when he forgot his lines.

But his performance before a private gathering in Trinity College Monday night was word perfect.

Offshore Oil Rights In Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials from Canada and the United States will meet "within two months" in attempts to settle a long-standing dispute over a large area of the seabed in the Gulf of Maine, an external affairs spokesman said Monday.

Both Canada and the U.S. have been issuing oil exploration permits for the same areas in the gulf for six years or more.

Latest development in the dispute came during the weekend when the U.S. government in an official publication expressed "formal reservations" about the permits issued by Canada.

Bad Housing Top Obstacle In Anti-poverty Campaigns

OTTAWA (CP) — Bad housing is a prime obstacle to all anti-poverty efforts, the federal health department told the Senate poverty committee today in a 75-page brief.

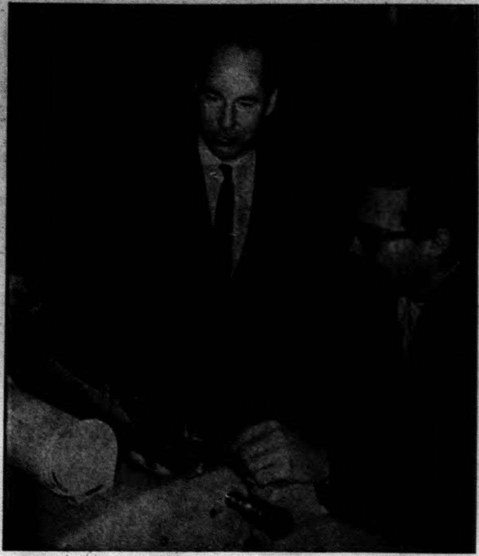
A large increase in low-rent housing projects and housing for low-income families and aged persons was needed.

Any income-maintenance programs for needy persons should include sufficient provision for an adequate housing standard, the department said. Bad housing raised the costs of health and welfare programs.

The brief also said concerted approaches are needed to eliminate substandard housing, as well as poor sanitation, malnutrition, and improper personel hygiene since communicable diseases are more prevalent where these conditions exist.

The department said services to reduce dependency and increase vocational skills have always been an important means of attacking poverty. But opportunities offered were frequently only grasped by the more able and least deprived persons.

Massive amounts of such services must be directed to some of the most seriously disadvantaged persons. "This means much more money and personnel than are currently being used for these purposes."



City Billing Explained

Craig Morrison, Grade 11 student at Centennial Secondary School, as the current Mayor of the Week, has the intricacies of the accounting machine in city tax office explained by City Treasurer Frank Morrell. The $50,000 accounting machine, installed a year ago, does all the city's general accounting and issues all payroll cheques for city employees. Craig is this year's fifth Mayor of the Week from city high schools to spend a week at city hall under the Rotary Club Youth Program.

Board Asks for Talks To Discuss Open Meeting

Representatives of radio station CJBQ and The Intelligencer have been invited by Hastings county board of education to meet with the board at a regular session to discuss opening committee - of-the-whole meetings to the press.

The invitation followed reading of letters from the two media at last night's board meeting. The letters stated "it is in the public interest for reporters to attend committee of the whole meetings of the school board."

"I think the intent is to give the reporters background information rather than have them report the meetings," commented chairman James Clarke after reading the letters.

"I think what brought this up was the board's decision at the last committee of the whole meeting to refuse a half-holiday for school children during the coming visit of the Governor-General," said trustee MacDonald Smith. "I accept the policy that personnel reports and property purchases would be discussed in committee of the whole. But many items now considered in committee of the whole should be known to the public."

"We should work out a system to limit the items that go into committee of the whole, added John O'Flynn.

However, Robertson Collins, separate school representative on the board, questioned the concept that committee of the whole meetings are closed to press and public.

"I have never regarded committee of the whole as an in-camera meeting," he said. "Since this board was instituted, we have confused a caucus meeting with committee of the whole." No one should be excluded from committee of the whole."

He suggested that the board should reserve the right to go into caucus at any time "to discuss certain items, and exclude everyone, including members of the administration and the press".

Trustee F. John Follis of Bancroft said he thinks the public "feels it is being left out" when the board makes decision in commitee of the whole.

"I have every confidence in the press," he added.

But before making a policy decision on the matter, the board decided to invite newspaper and radio representatives to attend a regular board meeting to discuss the question of press coverage.

Board Tells Councils Budget Ready April 13

Hastings County trustees have suspended budget meetings scheduled for every night this week, as administration officials struggle with the calculations involved in determining the provincial grants.

At the regular board meeting last night, superintendent L. A. Kells attempted to summarize the 15-page book of instructions for calculating grants, but trustees confessed they were totally baffled by formulae involved.

"Is there a name for the man who set up all that math?" asked trustee Mrs. Miriam Graham.

"Yes, but it's not repeatable in public," retorted director of education Eric Runacres.

Business administrator Kenneth Wormald said his department is working towards a target date of April 13 to present the budget and a breakdown by municipalities.

In the meantime, the board will send a tax requisition based on 1969 requirements to the municipalities by March 1.

Reason for the long delay in setting the budget is the mass of information required to calculate the government grants. Calculations are based, among other things, on 1969 expenditures not yet audited.

The Hastings board is dependent upon other boards to furnish it with essential figures on such things as the enrolment of county children in schools in other counties, and actual 1969 costs for their education. The board, for instance, purchases education for Deseronto secondary students from the Lennox and Addington board.

"The intent of the minister of education in setting up this grant formula is good," director of education Eric Runacres told the board. "It is intended to help boards with low per pupil costs in previous years to catch up with others that had more money to spend. But we're not sure at this time if the complicated math in the grant formula is the best way to do this.

"We must wait until the figures are in before we will know if the minister has done what he set out to do," the director added. "If he's pulled it off, he's done us a favor; if not, who knows?"

The board asked its administration to inform the 29 contributing municipalities strike a budget before April 13.

Student Loan Proposal

Students and their parents will have an opportunity to air their views and pose questions concerning student loans when assistant deputy minister of university affairs, Alan Gordon, visits Belleville tomorrow.

Invitations have been sent to all area high schools, business and community colleges to use this opportunity to gain first hand information about the subject of student loans.

Appointed assistant deputy minister in 1967, Mr. Gordon is a graduate of the University of Toronto, a qualified secondary school teacher and former registrar of Waterloo University.

The open discussion is being sponsored by the Belleville Progressive Conservative Association, and organizers are hoping for a good turnout of young people and interested public.

Monthly Interest $17,000

Hastings county board of education is currently spending about $17,000 a month in interest on money borrowed to finance its operation.

Business administrator Kenneth Wormald told trustees last night that the board's bank loan now stands at $3,000,000.

It was necessary to borrow the money, he said, because some 1969 provincial grants have not yet come in, and the board had already had two months of payments for 1970 operations to meet.

The first municipal tax levies are due March 1, but the temporary requisition made to the municipalities is based on 1969 figures.

Karen Hasselfelt Wins

Karen Hasselfelt, 12, of Belleville is county winner of the public speaking contests now being held under the sponsorship of the Ontario Trustees' Council and Ontario Hydro.

The Grade 8 student at Harry J. Clarke School took the county honor with her talk on study habits. She won a cup that was presented to her school, and a study lamp.

Miss Hasselfelt competed against three other elementary school pupils. The four contestants were winners in each of the four areas under the jurisdiction of the county board.

The contest, held at Stirling Intermediate School, was presided over by Robert Horwood, area superintendent with the county board.

Miss Hasselfelt will compete against other winners of county competitions in the zone 9 final at Queen Elizabeth School in Belleville March 7.

The winner of that contest will go to the provincial finals in Toronto.

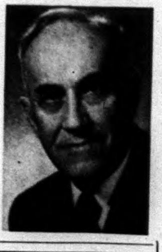
George Wishart

Former Alderman Dies

A resident of Belleville for 40 years, who took part in the cultural, civic, community and religious life of the city, Ex-alderman, George Wishart, 154 Dufferin Avenue, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Monday afternoon in his 74th year. He had suffered from a heart condition for some time and his illness was brief.

Mr. Wishart was born at Carp, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wishart and received his early education in that district. He attended Ottawa Teachers' College and then attended the University of Toronto graduating with a degree of BSA. He took his master of science degree at McGill University and joined the Federal department of agriculture. He came to Belleville in 1929 to join the Research Institute on Dundas Street East, where he was employed until his retirement in 1961. During his years at the Institute and afterwards he wrote many articles on science for a number of science journals.

Conservation was a subject uppermost in his mind and after joining the Moira River Conservation Authority he entered whole heartedly into the workings of that organization and became chairman of the board. He did not limit his ability to this work but gave of himself to the Canadian National Institute of the Blind and the Victorian Order of Nurses and in both capacities served his city truly and well. He was chairman of the CNIB for a number of terms and received a citation for 25 years of continuous service in this organization.



In civic life he entered the municipal field and became an alderman in 1958 and served for six years in that capacity. During his term of office he was appointed to the Hospital Board of Governors by the council and served for some years in that capacity. Before entering council he served on the board of education, and the Jaycees in 1965 named him Citizen of the Year.

The Children's Aid Society was one of his pet projects and he served for many terms on the board as a director while a member of council.

He was a member of Bridge Street United Church but earlier was a member of John Street United Church, when he first came to the city. He sang in both choirs for some years and was most active in the work of both congregations.

Surviving are his wife, the former Lois Christina Keatley, and three daughters, Lois Mary (Mrs. J. O. Graham)Richmond Hill, Elspeth Ann (Mrs. C. J. Menendez) Ottawa, and Miss Carol Emily Wishart of Ottawa.

Also surviving are one brother, Jack of Arnprior, an adopted sister, Margaret (Mrs. Ralph Johnstone) Montreal and five grandchildren. A brother, Wallace Wishart and a sister Helen (Mrs. Norman James) Montreal predeceased him.

Mr. Wishart is resting at the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home. Service will be conducted in Bridge Street United Church on Thursday, Feb. 26 at 10 a.m. with Dr. H. M. Davis officiating.

Interment will be in Arnprior Cemetery on Thursday afternoon.

In lieu of flowers donations will be acknowledged to the Ontario Heart Foundation or the CNIB.

IN MEMORIAM

HIBBARD — In ever loving memory of a dear mother, Blanche Evelyn who passed away two years ago today, March 24th, 1968.

Mother you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
Still in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.

—Sadly missed by son William and family.

HIBBARD — In loving memory of a dear mother Blanche, who passed away February 24, 1968.

Gone, dear Mom, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember,
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.

—Sadly missed by daughter Bonnie, son-in-law Denis and granddaughter Kristal-Lynne.

HIBBARD — In loving memory of a dear mother, Blanche, who passed away two years ago today on Feb. 24th, 1968.

Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps her near.

—Sadly missed and forever remembered by daughter Trudy and son-in-law Peter.

MACDONALD, Lucille — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother.

We miss her love and cheery ways,
With her we spent our happiest days,
In memory we see her the same,
As long as we live, we'll cherish her name.

—Husband John, children Suzanne, John and Jim.

MACDONALD, Lucille — In loving memory of a dear mother.

She has not gone from those she loved,
Nor has she wandered far,
Just entered God's most lovely room,
And left the door ajar.

—Daughter Barbara and son-in-law Keith.

MACDONALD, Lucille — In loving memory of a dear mother.

Always a smile instead of a frown,
Always a hand when one was down,
Always true, faithful and kind,
Wonderful memories she left behind.

—Son Garry and daughter-in-law Marian.

CARDS OF THANKS

The McKenna family would like to express their heartfelt thanks to the many friends, neighbors, relatives, ANAF and Legion members for the many flowers, cards, gifts and kind expressions of sympathy bestowed upon them in their recent bereavement in the loss of a husband and father James McKenna.

The family of the late Edward Montgomery wish to express sincere thanks to relatives and friends for the lovely floral tributes, contributions to the Heart Fund, cards and messages of sympathy, to the staff of Hastings Manor, Belleville, the Rowe Funeral Home, Frankford, Rev. John Weese, the bearers, members of Foxboro LOL and RBP, and Frankford Hydro and all those who provided and served lunch after the funeral. We also wish to thank all the friends who have send cheer parcels and cards during his lengthy illness. All was deeply appreciated.

We wish to thank our many friends, neighbors and relatives for the many beautiful floral tributes, cards of sympathy donations to the Heart Foundation and Gideon Bibles and for all the kindness shown us during our recent loss of a dear husband and brother, Frederick Arthur Treverton. A special thanks to Rev. Poulter for his comforting words, to Dr. Empson and the nurses and staff of Belleville General Hospital, 6th level, and to the Thompson Funeral Home for their very efficient services.

Mrs. Frederick A. Treverton and Mrs. Orval Beer.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to friends and relatives for cards, flowers and visits during my stay in Belleville Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. J. H. Bateman, nurses and staff on 6th level. Rev. Bunner and Rev. Vessey.

Ameliasburg School Proposal Termed Sound Program by Board

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Edward Rutter, chairman of the Prince Edward County board of education last night voiced confidence in the elementary-secondary combine school proposed for Ameliasburg. "We feel we have a very sound program and this plan is before the department of education for its recommendations and will be referred back to us on certain segments," he remarked.

"Eventually we hope we will obtain enough favorable grants to begin construction," he said. Mr. Rutter added that the proposed school does not yet have the approval of the department but said it does have its 'blessing' to a certain point.

Mr. Rutter was one of four representatives from the Prince Edward County board of education joining members of the Picton Kiwanis Club and guest Rotarians in a panel discussion of the proposed school in Ameliasburg. With him were Prince Edward County director of education John McNeil, business administrator, E. A. Shortt, and James Plommer, chairman of the board's education committee.

Showing slides to illustrate the need for a new school in Ameliasburg, John McNeil defined the challenge facing the board of education. "The Prince Edward County Board of Education is faced with the same challenge as its counterparts across Ontario — to provide equal education and opportunity for every child," he said.

The slides shown listed the schools in Prince Edward County requiring additions among them Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, North Marysburg School, South Marysburg school and Athol, Wellington and Happy Hours schools. Library facilities were listed as requirements for Massassaga, Rednersville, Athol, South Marysburg, North Marysburg, and Mildred Corke schools. Limited library facilities are available in some of these.

Facilities for home economics, shop and athletic programs were demonstrated as lacking in several schools.

Although projected figures for school attendance were shown in the slides Mr. McNeil stressed "We are not talking tonight about counting heads. It is not this board's plan to work on some percentage figure. We want to plan for the children we have." He added that by moving the existing number of elementary students up, a total of over 1,800 secondary students could be expected in 1977. "This, I think, is a solid way to look at the situation," remarked Mr. McNeil.

He referred to Ameliasburg as a growth area that should receive specific recognition. His estimate of the school population there in 1973 was more than 1,000 pupils. Again Mr. McNeil warned that this figure was only a projection. "It is my conviction that when the new accommodation is finished it will be full. I don't think we should build for heads we can't count."

He explained that Hastings County recently notified Prince Edward it cannot receive additional retarded children from this area. Mr. McNeil suggested, "If we build and replace at Rednersville, Massassaga and Mildred Corke schools, one of these could be used for retarded children."

Outlining existing conditions at Kente School the education director observed that three portable classrooms will soon be necessary. He added that classes have already been built up to as many as 40 pupils. "Is this equal education, equal opportunity?" he queried.

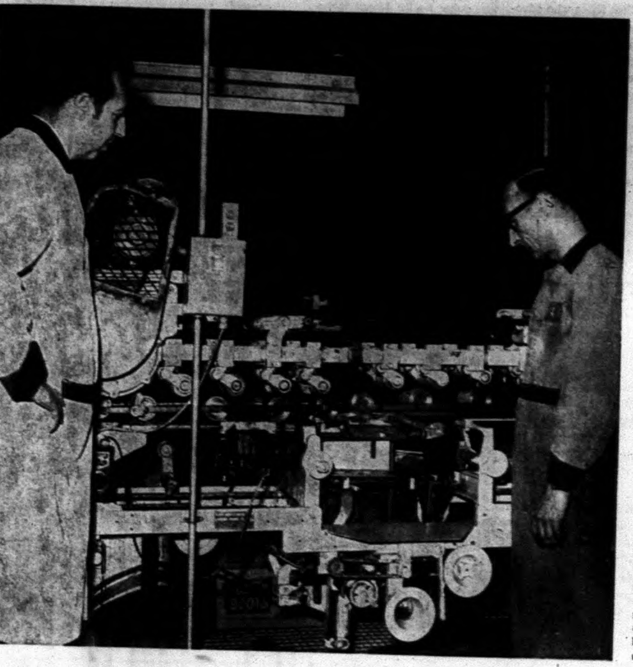
Mr. McNeil explained that the school board's plan for Ameliasburg township touches other county schools as well. Grade 7 and 8 students from North and South Marysburg schools and Athol school would attend Prince Edward Collegiate for classes in home economics, shop and physical education. "We bring home 375 high school students from Hastings, we transfer high school students from the Wellington area to Kente and we have a workable unit," he said.

"What is this Grade 7 to Grade 13 idea?" questioned McNeil. He noted that when pupils from several county elementary schools joined classes at Prince Edward Collegiate, their teachers would be present when department head call meetings. "We must plan to teach these pupils, we must know what they have studied before," he remarked.

Mr. McNeil told Kiwanians that when the Rednersville, Massassaga and Mildred Corke schools were closed, 16 additional classrooms would be required at Kente to accommodate the pupils. He stressed that this was the kind of accommodation needed to bring home 375 students now in Hastings. Mr. McNeil anticipated that in two years time 500 Prince Edward County students might be attending secondary school in Hastings at an approximate cost of $1,000 per pupil.

During the question period, several Kiwanians seemed concerned with apparent trends toward continuous change in education that could one day make the proposed new school fall short of future requirements. Others were interested in suggested innovations such as a music program for secondary school students.

In his concluding remarks Mr. Rutter stressed that no cost figures have yet been obtained for the proposed school. He added that he had looked at several schools in Kingston at the department of education's request and that their costs averaged from $12 to $14 per square foot. In a later discussion the department of education indicated that these modular buildings might not be satisfactory to the project in some respects and advised examination of other schools with cost figures of $28 to $30 per square foot. "I don't want to leave you with the impression that the board favored this. I think the department's implication was 'take a second look'. he added. Mr. Rutter told Kiwanians that the school might not be operational for about two years. The board has been told that only those with urgent needs would get approval to proceed. "We wanted to go in 1970," commented Rutter



Pet Food Plant Completes Modernization Program

New equipment is now being used in production at Quaker Oats pet food plant on Dufferin St. in Trenton. The $400,000 expansion and modernization program is almost completed, and manager Robert Prentice estimates a 40 per cent increase in both output and efficiency. Mr. Prentice and Lorne Forbes, operator, inspect a new high speed labelling machine with a capacity of 500 tins a minute, double the plant's previous capacity. The new high speed can filler being inspected by Mr. Prentice increases the can filling capacity by 50 per cent.

Tight Budget Could Cut Sidewalk Construction

Sidewalk construction is likely to be curtailed in Belleville this year as an austerity move by city council to help keep the 1970 tax rate in line.

This was indicated yesterday when a recommendation from the city traffic committee concerning sidewalk construction came before council for consideration.

The recommendation suggested that priority in the following order be given to construction of walks on the north side of Bridge Street East from Farley Ave. to Haig Road, on the south side of Bridge West from Yeomans Street to Palmer Road and on Tracey Street for use of students at the new Vanier Separate School.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey questioned the Tracey Street walk suggesting that walks were more needed on certain other city streets.

It was acting Mayor Alderman Arthur Keegan who revealed that council might see fit to cut out sidewalk construction this year as an economy move.

"There is some doubt that any of the proposed walks will be built this year," he said.

City manager J. R. Reynolds later said that walks were included in the city's five-year capital works program but nothing for walks was entered for this year.

However, he said it would be up to council to decide.

Traffic committee members Ald. Paul Russell and Jack Ireland said council was taking a wrong meaning from the committee recommendation.

The intention of the committee, they said, was that if any walks were to be built this year, it was suggested that priority be given to the walks listed.

Alderman Ireland said the priorities had been suggested from a safety standpoint by the city engineer and city police.

In the end the traffic committee recommendation was referred back for further consideration.

A parking authority recommendation that consideration be given to placing $50,000 in the corporations five year capital works budget for purchase of new parking meters was referred to the budget committee.

"I think the meter purchases could be delayed," stated Ald. Ben Corke, noting that a delay would assist Prime Minister Trudeau in his austerity program.

Ald. E. A. Orr felt the meter purchase could be spread over several years to ease the financial impact.

A further parking authority recommendation to restrict meter parking to a two-hour period on Front Street, Victoria Ave., Campbell and Bridge Streets to two hours was referred to the traffic committee.

Council denied a parking authority request that 50 per cent of the parking fine revenue collected by the city be turned over to the authority to help meet the salaries of employees who enforce parking bylaws.

Ald. Enos David said he understand parking authority employees were underpaid but said he objected to tying their wages in with fines.

The same attitude was taken by Ald. Gerald Joyce who said he wanted no part of any suggestion that fines be used to pay employees' salaries.

the vault to open the safe.

The acting manager showed him it was impossible for one person to open the safe, which is secured by a double combination lock. The code sequence is shared by two bank employees.

The bandit then rifled several bank cupboards, attempting unsuccessfully to force two metal cabinets with a screwdriver.

Then he ordered Mr. Halladay to the bank basement, "possibly to get more tools," say police.

Below ground, Mr. Halladay suddenly shoved a door on the bandit's face and closed with the intruder.

During the struggle the pistol fell to the floor. A scuffle ensued — with both men trading punches — for possession of the weapon.

The official was struck in the face and felled. Simultaneously, the would-be robber fled empty-handed.

When Mr. Halladay reached the bank's ground floor the building was empty.

He telephoned police — the alarm came in at headquarters at 5.51 p.m. — and roadblocks were set up on all roads leading from the city.

Two hours later the cordon was disbanded when no trace of the wanted man was found.

Council Seeks School Holiday

The Hastings County Board of Education will be asked to reconsider a previous decision not to declare a school holiday in honor of next month's official visit to Belleville by Governor General Roland Michener and Mrs. Michener.

The question was raised yesterday at city council by Ald. Jean Smith who asked that the school board be approached to reconsider the matter.

She said the vice-regal visit to Belleville would be the first in more than a century. Recognition of Queen's representative in Canada was part of our British heritage, she claimed.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey said she also felt strongly about the matter noting that during a visit to Kingston by Mr. Michener, school children had lined the streets. The governor general had alighted from his car and had created a good impression by walking the curb shaking hands with the children.

She said this could be the only opportunity for many children to see the governor general.

But other councillors—Ald. Ben Corke and Gerald Joyce — said they could see certain problems in the board granting a holiday.

Ald. Corke noted that the school board was now county wide and it might be unfair to declare a holiday only for students attending classes at Belleville. Ald. Joyce suggested that a half day holiday would be all that was necessary.

Council was told that the Separate School board had decided to declare a school holiday for the vice-regal visit.

The governor general is coming to Belleville on March 13 to officially lay the corner stone for the new Loyalist College building.

To dress up city hall for the visit, council directed the purchase of bunting and flowers for the occasion.

Requests Referred

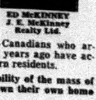
Grant requests from three local organizations have been referred to budget committee discussions by city council.

These were from the Belleville YMCA, the Kinsmen Swimming Pool and from the Hillcrest Community Centre.

The "Y" request asked exemption from payment of city taxes which can legally be forgiven plus a grant to cover those which must be paid.

REAL ESTATE

IS YOUR NET WORTH INCREASING?



ED McKINNEY
J. E. McKinney
Realty Ltd.

It is a common experience to find New Canadians who arrived in the country from overseas only a few years ago have accumulated greater wealth than many native born residents.

The reason is usually traceable to the inability of the mass of the population of most overseas countries to own their own home due to the high cost and low incomes.

Given this opportunity on their arrival here, many New Canadians save religiously, often depriving themselves of luxuries, in order to acquire property.

The result is that often in a few years they have accumulated property worth more than people who have lived here all their lives.

If you don't own your own home now, or even if you do, and would like to see your "net worth" increase with the years, then the sooner you begin by investing in property the better.

Real Estate today offers some of the best safeguards against inflation that is reducing the worth of our dollars about four per cent yearly.

A competent Realtor will advise you of the best properties available to suit your needs and desires in either residential or commercial areas. You can tap his fund of information and knowledge by a simple inquiry.

The Red Threat

Perhaps it is as well that those who advocate the overthrow of the Canadian government and the introduction of Communism are free to do just that. We see the whites of their eyes as it were — people like young Robert Cruise, a former University of British Columbia student who now stomps the country preaching Marx and Lenin on university campuses.

At the same time we may wonder just how far the government should permit this sort of thing. For example, Cruise said recently that armed guerrilla groups would be operating in Quebec in two years' time. Just what is the government doing to counter such a threat? It would be prudent, to say the very least, to question Cruise on this. Who are the people involved . . . from what source do they obtain arms . . . what form will the threatened insurrection take? Will there be attacks on leading personages and on buildings?

These are matters that should be taken seriously. Former Conservative leader John Diefenbaker is one who thinks so. He told an audience of 1,500 attending the 52nd anniversary of Lithuania's declaration of independence in Toronto that he was concerned about "the impunity with which these groups are advocating the destruction of our country by revolution."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he would like to see criminal prosecutions against "those who use traditional Canadian freedoms to destroy freedom in this country."

Certainly the number of such dissidents is growing. The university press is a case in point, as the special Senate committee on mass media discovered for itself recently. In a six-hour hearing, liberally punctuated with Communist jargon, the representatives of the student press said that the press of Canada will never serve the people until the structure of society is radically changed.

Canada deserves a better fate. Who for example would want to read the rantings of one like Canadian University Press president Stewart Saxe? A 22-year-old University of Waterloo graduate in political science. Russell, according to The Globe and Mail, treated the hearing to a long Marxist-toned dissertation, using multi-syllable words which at least one senator admitted he did not understand.

But not all the university press people are of this stamp. David Chenoweth, managing editor of the McGill Daily had this to say: "The student press is undoubtedly the most arrogant group ever to be seen. . . Education by ideology seems to be the hallmark of the student press. It's one of the worst perversions of freedom of the press ever seen."

How much sedition then can be tolerated? Must we stand by and watch Communism running rampant in the universities, to spill over into society at large? As we suggested recently, the time has come to conduct a detailed investigation into the spread of Communism in this country, and particularly in the universities.

The Long Walk

There are not too many people around today of the adventurous stamp of A. F. Tschiffely who back in the late twenties rode by pack horse from Washington to Buenos Aires (or was it the other way around?)

Tschiffely, as we recall, spent most of his life in the Argentine and he chronicled his journey in the book, Tschiffely's Ride. Of Swiss background, he claimed family relationship with an Australian prime minister of a few years ago who spelled his name Chifley.

It is now some 40 or more years since that famous journey but it is good to know that the same spirit of adventure is still abroad — in a continent-spanning saga of almost similar proportions. But while Tschiffely had two pack horses, Carlos Pereira is walking from Buenos Aires to Juneau, Alaska.

The 26-year-old Latin was pictured recently en route from Brandon to Regina, having covered some 12,000 miles since leaving Argentina in April 1968. It is still a long way to Juneau, but with the mileage involved he is on the last lap as it were. Barring accidents, he should make it. When he does, it wil have been in the tradition of the great adventurers of the world.

Pearson Would Have PM Axe Baby Bonus Instead

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The Biggest-Spender - of - Them - All, former Prime Minister Lester Bowles Pearson has been socking to his protege and designated successor Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Designated?

What else was Pearson's plucking of the Trendy One — in sandals, slacks, sport-shirt and jaunty Ascot tie — from the Liberal backbenchers and assigning him to that prestigeous Cabinet post of Minister of Justice.

And then, at the Federal Provincial Constitutional Conference — which turned out to be a sort of stage-setter and mood maker for the Liberal leadership convention — move aside to let the new Justice Minister star?

You must remember how Pearson, as Prime Minister, directed the conference spotlight on his Justice Minister who proceeded, with zest, to zap it to Daniel Johnson, then Premier of Quebec.

The sequence of events made an instant hero of Trudeau who came off the TV screen across ten provinces as the Intrepid Advocate of English Canada in the Great Debate with Quebec on "special status," language rights, taxes and a whole hatful of issues.

Pierre Trudeau burnished that image during the subsequent federal election to the dazzling point of mesmerizing the rest of Canada into thinking here, at last, was a Prime Minister, and miraculously enough, a French Canadian who would, as the phrase then went, "put Quebec in its place."

At that Federal Provincial Conference, the curtain-raiser of the Liberal leadership drama, Pearson played Robin, leaving Batman's part to Trudeau, in the face-down of Daniel Johnson.

And if that was not designation then "It does not rain in Vancouver in the wintertime," as the current hit song might go if a Canadiar had written it.

So what is upsetting Lester Pearson about his boy Pierre Trudeau?

Pierre, complains his mentor, is a dangerous penny-pincher, doing "irreparable damage" with his government's austerity program to such "great cultural agencies" as the National Film Board and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Both agencies have been slightly wounded in the government's war on inflation. With their budgets frozen, they have been compelled to make small cutbacks in personnel and programming.

Their moans of the agonies of austerity have reached the understanding ears of Lester Pearson and he has clucked sympathetically.

Speaking in a panel discussion of the Canadian Broadcasting League at Ottawa's Carleton University, he let go with what must be one of the strangest statements ever heard in this National Capital where there never has been any shortage of odd-sounding pronunciamentos from High Places.

Rather than freeze the CBC and NFB budgets, he said — and it was not some oddball joke he was attempting either — it would have been better to lop a dollar off family allowance scales.

The "damage" as he put it, would have been less.

Some children and "a few babies" might suffer, he conceded, but the end result might be nothing more harmful than their fathers being forced to trim their beer consumption.

This Strange Interlude of Lester Pearson has been raised in the Commons by Conservative Leader Stanfield, but Prime Minister Trudeau stick-handled his way around the embarrassing questions by observing that if there had been no economies forced on the CBC, the NFB and almost all other federal agencies, there would have been still the same open-handed government spending, and another deficit instead of the expected $500 million surplus.

It can not be that Lester Pearson does not care — about babies, children and even their fathers' liking for beer — more likely it is that he cares more about the preservation of the government "empire" he labored so long to build which now is being "damaged," as he sees it, by Pierre Trudeau.

As Prime Minister, when he was doing his biggest spending, Pearson added an average 1,000 people monthly to federal staff.

And in his 17 years as External Minister and finally Prime Minister, he ran the diplomatic budget from $11 million to better than $75 million. When you learn to spend like that, it hurts, man, it really hurts to watch your self-designated successor save.

Factor in Inflation

Federal Sales Tax Could Be Reduced

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

My job over many years involves continually pricing goods at the retail level (hardware). It seems to me that one big bete noire in the inflation picture in Canada is our 12 per cent federal general sales tax. Twelve per cent is a very big tax at any time. It has become much more seriously so since basic costs have gone so high, and since provincial sales taxes have been superimposed on it. This tax was first levied in 1920 at one percent on sales by manufacturers, wholesalers and importers. It is included in the retailer's cost and becomes a "hidden" tax when paid by the consumer. By 1967 it had risen to 12 per cent (11 percent on building materials). Certain goods are exempt such as foodstuffs, drugs, electricity, fuels, the products of farms, forests, mines and fisheries, equipment used in farming and fishing and production machinery. But it is applied to all kinds of necessities such as a broom, a hotplate or a pair of shoes. Thus it tends to come too often, as do all sales taxes, directly out of the pockets of the poor.

This tax is a very important source of revenue for the federal government as a comparison of the following figures will show. According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the three main sources of revenue for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1969, were as follows: Personal Income Tax, $3,422. millions; Corporation tax $2,030. millions; Federal general sales tax $1,527. millions. Total net general revenue from all sources, $12,489. millions.

Three per cent of the federal general sales tax is used for old age security. I firmly believe that the remaining 9 per cent should be slowly but surely reduced. When I suggested this to my brothers, they, being businessmen, both immediately countered with "Where will the money come from?" "Where will Canada, with her unique and costly development needs, get the money to carry out these projects?" They do believe that the tax on building materials adds too much to construction costs.

My answer is that government spending at this time should be limit l to those things which are truly vital to the needs of the people and the health of the economy. And this most certainly goes for governments at all levels.

For the past fiscal year Canada spent for defence $1,700. millions. It is very gratifying to note that spending in this field is to be reduced. I know that defence is very necessary but I do not believe that Canada, or any other country, can stand up to exorbitant defence costs year in and year out so I trust that in this field especially government spending may continue to be reduced.

'Cox's Bazar'—Shades of The British and Portuguese And The Sea on A Timeless Shore

Pakistan Affairs

On Jan. 2, in this town with an odd name, was commissioned the first radar storm warning station. Cox's Bazar is a pleasure resort with one of the world's great beaches and a hinterland crowded with wild life.

The recorded history of this area goes back to the time of the Moghals, when the ill-fated Shah Shuja passed through the southern hilly region of what is now Chittagong District, to seek asylum with the Arakan Kings across the border.

The scion of the great Moghal house was so enchanted by the natural beauty around him that he ordered the thousand palanquins carrying the ladies of his court to stop. His cavalcade camped in the hills for days before continuing its march. The area where he camped is still called Dulaharazara, a corruption of Hazar Dolli (a thousand palanquins).

The trail which Shah Shuja followed was used by others during subsequent eras. When the Moghals withdrew, the land was ruled and pillaged in turn by the Tripuras and the Arakanese. Then came the Portuguese and finally, the British, who secured a firm foothold in the southern hills.

In 1798, the British Government sent a Captain Cox to settle Buddhist immigrants from Burma in this region. Thus came into being a new colony called Cox's Bazar.

The inhabitants of this area are a colorful people — a mixture of Muslims, Hindus, and Buddhist immigrants of Burma-Arakanese origin.

Although the Muslims form the major portion of the population, the Buddhist tribal people, known as Moghs, are an important section of the population. They are a shy, unassuming people, taking an obvious pride in their own culture and traditional values.

The Mogh women who perform most of the domestic and outdoor tasks, are expert weavers and make colorful traditional design. The Mogh Kayangs (ancient Buddhist temples) at Cox's Bazar, Ramu, Teknaf and Nilo house priceless treasures and rare relics.

Cox's Bazar is easily reached by air, road and sea. There are also regular bus-services from Chittagong. This journey, by an all-weather metalled road, through lush plains, green hills and cool forests. In winter, the journey can be done by speedboat or launch.

Cox's Bazar has one of the world's longest stretch of beach sloping gently into the blue sea. At low tide, a jeep can drive for over two hours and not come to the end of the beach with its light yellow sand. Out in the bay, can be seen the fishing boats with their sails unfurled against the blue sky and the darker blue sea.

A trip by jeep to Teknaf at dawn, is a rare experience. The range of hills from Teknaf to Cox's Bazar hugs the sea for about 12 miles and then runs parallel to the beach for another 60 miles. As the winter sun rises above the hilltops, the beaches at Himchari, Inani, and other places are transformed into a colorful panorama.

The Inani Beach is more than 600 feet wide at high tide, and nearly 1,000 feet at low tide. Himchari, a beautiful picnic spot, is a continuation of the same beach with a background of palms and bamboos.

Totem Poll at Captain Cook Ceremonial 'Down Under'

Ottawa Journal

It was all for the best that the ceremonial associated with the gift of a totem pole to New Zealand should have been reported in the main by R. M. Macdonnell, our high commissioner, a lively correspondent.

The gift honors the bicentenary of Captain Cook's first landing in 1769. The first headland the navigator sighted is known to New Zealanders as Young Nick's Head, in honor of the ship's boy called Nick who told Cook land was in sight.

Anyway, the Canadian pole was installed at a town called Gisborne and Macdonnell went out to present the gift to Prime Minister Holyoake. Everyone's disdain of the weather would have done Cook proud. An informal part of Macdonnell's report to Ottawa said:

"Earlier in the day, the Governor-General unveiled a statue of Captain Cook at the top of a hill, the total elapsed time for the ceremony being three minutes, while the official party leaned against the wind to avoid being blown over a cliff. A cabinet minister informed me that Captain Cook had already unveiled himself twice before the ceremony started. As the Governor-General hastily cut a ribbon to make it official, his umbrella blew inside out, providing one of the best news photos of the entire Cook bicentennial celebrations. At least we can claim that no official umbrella blew inside out at the Canadian presentation.

"Considering the weather, there was a surprisingly large crowd of well-wishers on hand . . . which can only indicate goodwill towards Canada. Apart from those in official positions, there was quite a turnout of the general public, slopping through puddles to get a close look at the proceedings. I addressed them as friends, noting that they must be friends to have come out on such a day . . ."

Control Is Questioned

Rewriting Criminal Code First Task of Law Reform Body

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons, in an unusual show of geniality, looked kindly Monday on Justice Minister John Turner and his bill to set up a permanent law reform commission.

Opposition party spokesmen expressed general approval of the proposal, which received second reading and went to a committee for further study, but tempered their praise with warnings that Mr. Turner may have retained too much control over the commission.

Mr. Turner said the first task of the commission would be a complete rewriting of the Criminal Code.

It would also be charged with promoting greather similarity between rules of evidence under the civil law of Quebec and those under common law in the rest of Canada.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood), also lawyer, said he and his party strongly support the bill. But he hoped young members could be found to serve on it.

The commission is to be made up of a chairman, vice-chairman, two full-time and two part-time members.

Also given second reading Monday was a bill exempting shipping conferences from certain anti-trust laws under the Combines Investigation Act.

The bill was drafted as a result of 1965 recommendations by the restrictive trade practices commission.

It says anti-trust laws should not be used against conferences of shipping companies over the rates to be charged or the division of responsibilities to the groups' customers.

Shipping conferences involve groups of companies that adhere to certain rates and tariffs in particular marine areas.

Mr. Brewin said the law reform commission should include persons other than lawyers.

The bill stipulates that the chairman, vice-chairman, at least one full-time and one part-time member would have to have a minimum of 10 years experience as a lawyer or judge.

This could tend to give the commission a very conservative outlook, Mr. Brewin said.

Melvin McQuaid (PC—Cardigan), a former attorney-general of Prince Edward Island, said Mr. Turner and the government have to be congratulated for proposing the commission but Mr. Turner should spare no effort to make certain it is independent.

Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste—Roberval) said the commission would have to go to the grass-roots level to see what "the people think about justice."

R. G. L. Fairweather (PC—Fundy-Royal) said a permanent commission is an excellent idea but it should involve people with widely different viewpoints.

Mr. Turner said the commission would table its proposed program of study in the Commons as well as any conclusions it reaches. But he would have the right to instruct it to study any area he thought necessary.

Quebec Readies For Election Later This Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A bundle of pre-election goodies is expected to be announced today when Quebec joins two other provinces in opening its legislature session.

The three bring to eight the number of provincial law-making bodies sitting across Canada.

The Quebec, New Brunswick and Ontario houses join Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Quebec's political parties are preparing for a general election later this year. Expected announcements in the speech opening the national assembly include legislation to link Quebec to the national medical care insurance program, to provide legal aid and to protect the consumer.

Left over from last session is a bill which would authorize Quebec to hold a referendum on any subject, and another which would unify school boards on Montreal Island, now divided along religious lines.

New Brunswick is expected to announce legislation changing its corrections policy, to shift correctional emphasis from imprisonment to rehabilitation.

Ontario's throne speech may dwell on a hold-the-line theme, including proposals that will not cost much. Pollution, inflation and reform bills are expected to highlight the Ontario session, with a provincial election expected in 1971.

In other legislatures Monday:

St. John's, Nfld.—Premier Joseph Smallwood's Liberal government easily survived a motion of non confidence by a vote of 21 to 8.

Halifax—Premier G. I. Smith reviewed his government's over-all record and rejected Liberal criticism as "altogether unfounded." He said all indications were that the province would end the year with a favorable balance on current account.

Regina—Frank Meakes (NDP—Touchwood) accused the Liberal Saskatchewan government of ignoring the plight of farmers and putting forward programs that would drive them deeper into debt. He said the program on farm diversification caters to large producers at the expense of smaller operators.

Edmonton Public Works Minister Albert Ludwig said that if all the promises made by Alberta's Progressive Conservatives were implemented it would cost taxpayers an extra $500,000,000 on the basis of the budget proposed by the Social Credit government for the coming year. He said he had kept a record of the PC promises.

Victoria—A bill designed to discourage distribution of unsolicited credit cards and other goods was given first reading in the British Columbia legislature. The bill would amend the Consumer Protection Act and relieve a person of legal obligation in connection with unsolicited cards and goods.

Election Prelude

Ontario Spending Restraint To Usher in Low Key Year

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature opens today with the throne speech expected to indicate the Conservative government's concern with inflation and pollution.

Premier John Robarts already has promised an anti-inflationary budget with no tax increases.

Otherwise, the government's program is expected to be a low-key advance in such areas as consumer protection, electoral reform, labor legislation and regional development, both economic and political.

Leaders of the opposition Liberal and New Democratic parties have indicated they will criticize the government on the gut issues of taxes, the cost of living and housing.

Major confrontations during the third session of the 28th legislature are expected to arise over the issues of housing, medical health insurance and extension of provincial aid to separate schools.

Both opposition parties recently re-shuffled their shadow cabinets in preparation for a session they believe will be the last before a provincial election, possibly in the spring of 1971 although Mr. Robarts' present mandate extends into 1972.

The opposition believe they have a new campaign weapon: a feeling among voters that the Conservatives, after 23 years, have been in power too long. The NDP notes its victory in the Middlesex South byelection last year as a reflection of this trend.

Premier Robarts, with 68 seats in the 117-member house as against 27 for the Liberals, 21 for the NDP and one independent, lately has been charged by the opposition with attacking the federal government as a means of hiding his mistakes in Ontario.

Mr. Robarts has said he will go along with the decision at last week's federal-provincial conference to exercise restraint in spending.

There will be no increase in provincial prices and fees on such items as licence plates and liquor "for the moment" and although the government "won't cut services . . . they are going to have to cost less money."

In the last budget, brought down March 4, Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton called for a surplus of $2,000,000 above estimated expenditures of $2,996,000,000. This surplus still is expected to be achieved.

But even with a cut in departmental spending of $350,000,000, which Mr. MacNaughton said is a "reasonable estimate" of what is necessary to balance the budget, spending probably will increase by $849,000,000 this year.

Premier Robarts has indicated Ontario is considering asking Ottawa for permission to opt out of shared-cost programs, which he has said are chiefly responsible for increases in provincial expenditures.

Some of the fire of the pollution issue has been removed by the federal announcement that detergent makers must limit the amount of phosphates in their products within six months, but several moves likely will be made in this area.

Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr has said legislation is being prepared to insure the "proper dumping" of industrial wastes, particularly that containing oils and chemicals; and that four government departments will team up to track down polluters of recreational waterways.

The government so far has adopted a wait-and-see attitude toward the birth pangs of the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan which went into effect last Oct. 1.

OHSIP has been criticized by both the public and doctors because it pays only 90 per cent of the Ontario Medical Association fee schedule and there has been some delay in payments.

Lieut.-Gov. W. Ross Macdonald will read the speech from the throne, and the proceedings, expected to start at 3 p.m., will be televised live by the CBC.

Another hot issue in the new session could be that of aid to separate schools, now provided only through Grade 10. Both the Liberals and the NDP have come out in favor of extending aid through Grade 13, but Mr. Robarts has been notably cool to the proposal.

Closed Sessions Are Attacked

HALIFAX (CP) — Federal and provincial government civil servants came under attack Monday night prior to the close of the first day of study of the potential growth of the Halifax-Dartmouth area.

The government officials were placed under fire during the close of the day's discussions after a 12-member panel of international specialists on urban development completed a series of meetings with federal, provincial and municipal officials.

The week-long series of talks was organized by the Nova Scotia voluntary planning board, a group of financial and business leaders representing private industry, to devise ways of stimulating the region's development.

The organizers of the unique study, being conducted by experts from the United States, Britain and Canada, were criticized by members of the panel for keeping the news media and the public from hearing most of the discussions with government servants.

T. J. Scanlon, director of the school of journalism at Carleton university, described the organizers' decision to close the meetings as ridiculous.

RELATES BAN

Benjamin H. Higgins, an economic specialist in urban planning at the University of Montreal, told the public meeting of the request by a provincial government official to make sure the press was outside the room before he made his statement.

The official, said Mr. Higgins, then told the session that the Nova Scotia government was having financial difficulties and would either have to raise taxes or reduce its spending program.

Martin Rein of the centre for environmental studies in London said he thought the government officials had a good reason to keep the meeting closed to the public.

"They didn't have the information at their finger tips and they didn't want anyone to find out," he said. "The knowledge by the civil servants increased as you went down from the federal civil servants."

At that point, A. Russel Harrington, chairman of the sponsoring board and of the urban development study, explained that it had been difficult to get the co-operation of the government authorities in the study.

"I had a little bit of difficulty convincing government authorities," said the president of the Nova Scotia Light and Power Co. Ltd.

"Perhaps they were a bit worried they might be embarrassed. Some people just won't meet with you if the press is there. We wanted the panel to see things as they are."

Transatlantic Fares Lowered

MONTREAL (CP) — New low transatlantic airline fares worked out at a series of meetings of the International Air Transport Association late last year will become effective March 1—subject to approval by the governments involved.

The new rates were agreed to at a meeting in Caracas, Venezuela, with the negotiations winding up Dec. 9 and resulting in what an IATA official described as some of the lowest fares ever offered to the public.

The IATA meetings were called after a decision by Alitalia to introduce a new low 22-day minimum-stay fare on its Italian-North American routes. The Alitalia move in effect pulled the rug from under transatlantic flight rates.

The new fares are applicable under the Caracas agreement which will remain in effect from March 1, 1970, until March 31, 1971.

A worldwide passenger traffic conference will be held in Honolulu next fall, aimed at creating a new simplified fares structure corresponding to the requirements of the market and sound airline economy.

The basic fares agreement in Caracas included a re-adoption of fares and service agreed to earlier in 1969 at an IATA conference in Dallas, Tex.

In addition, the airlines extended the 14-to-21 day excursion fare to 28 days in most areas with no change in price.

A new 29-to-45 day excursion fare was also introduced—as was a new lower fare for groups of 80 passengers. However, some limitations on stopover privileges accompanied the lower levels of the new fares.

The group fare for 80 passengers applied only to persons who are members of social clubs and other organizations with a similar common affinity.

An Air Canada spokesman said the airline tried without success to remove the affinity clause from the agreement so that anyone could go to an agent and have the agent make up the groups.

Under the 29-to-45 day excursion plan, return cost of travel in the off season between Montreal and London is $233 (U.S.); Winnipeg and London $297; Vancouver and London $373; and New York and London $250.

Under the 80-passenger group rates, individual return tickets between Montreal and London cost $153, while the fare between Vancouver and London is $251.

No Change in NATO Trudeau's Office Says

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau in an interview with Le Monde of Paris made no suggestion of any change in Canadian policy toward NATO, his office said Monday in a statement.

The statement was issued by his office in response to a number of queries about a report of the interview carried by a news agency Friday.

In the report of the interview Mr. Trudeau was quoted as saying that Canada and France "have taken or are about to take similar actions, including withdrawal from NATO's military command structure. . . ."

A transcript of the interview from the prime minister's office quotes the prime minister as saying: "And in one sense, but for other reasons, I believe that our slight withdrawal from NATO corresponds somewhat with certain moves which France made in the past."

Canada is in the process of reducing its manpower contribution to NATO. France has withdrawn all its forces.

MR. AND MRS. WAYNE NOLAN

Nolan – Bradshaw

St. Joseph's Catholic Church was the scene of the recent double - ring wedding of Mary Anne (Penny) Bradshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bradshaw of Belleville and Wayne Cornell Nolan, son of Mrs. E. Nolan of Belleville and the late Mr. Nolan. Officiating at the ceremony was Monsignor J. Carley assisted by Father C. Gazley. Servers were Greggory Bradshaw and Stephen Duffy.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white floor - length gown of French lace over satin in Queen Anne styling. The long sleeves were gathered at the wrist with a lace ruffle which matched the standup collar of the gown, and the shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a satin pill box crown. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow carnations.

The maid of honor, Wendy Wood and bridesmaid, Elizabeth Bradshaw wore identical gowns in mauve with matching veils. Each carried a bouquet of giant yellow 'mums.

Best man was Warren Hay and ushers were Michael Bradshaw and Norman Pope.

Receiving the guests at St. Joseph's Parish Hall, the bride's mother wore a Roman purple lace over taffeta dress with long sleeves, pill box hat, matching satin shoes, white accessories and a corsage of talisman roses.

Assisting her was the mother of the bridegroom, wearing a gray two-piece wool suit, pill box hat, navy accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For the trip west the bride chose a powder blue and gray two - piece plaid dress and coat ensemble with a gray picture hat and navy accessories.

The couple will reside at 410 Bleecker Ave., Belleville.

U.C.W. Meeting

MOUNT PLEASANT — RAWDON UCW

The February meeting of Mount Pleasant — Rawdon United Church Women was held a week later at the church hall owing to weather conditions.

Forty men, women and children enjoyed a pot luck meal at noon. The new president Mrs. Garth Joslin presided over the meeting. There were 29 women in attendance.

Several officers gave their reports which included thank-you notes and a financial summary of the recent catering.

Mrs. James Hoard gave a message, "charity begins at home". Several items of literature were displayed by Mrs. Robert H. Hoard gave a report of the kitchen equipment. Several new items will be purchased. Mrs. Milford Wrightman gave a report of the recent presbyterial meeting held at Napanee.

Parents Anonymous Group Formed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dan Giroday knows drugs can kill and feels Parents Anonymous is one means of combatting the problem.

It was LSD which contributed to the death of his 18-year-old son, Dennis, on Oct. 18 last year and this tragic incident led Mr. Giroday and a small group of concerned parents to organize Parents Anonymous.

Based on the same principle as Alcoholics Anonymous, the members meet together on an informal basis to help educate themselves on the drug problem and prevent the spread of drug use in society.

"There now are about 100 people, divided into three cells, who belong to the group," Mr. Giroday said in a recent interview. "These are not just parents whose kids are on drugs but others who are interested in combatting the drug problem."

He said the main objective of Parents Anonymous is to get into the schools and, by education and control, cut down the increasing use of drugs by the students.

Mr. Giroday referred to drug use as a "disease," which he said must be located, isolated and then cured. He said it is time parents realized the seriousness of the situation among the young people of today.

"It is one of the greatest problems that society has ever faced, in my opinion, and it is threatening to destroy the minds and weaken the moral fibre of our youth."

He said he was not aware that his son, who was in his first year at University of British Columbia, was on drugs, and he feels this is part of the problem with other parents—they don't know what is happening to their children.

Before his son's death in a plunge from an apartment block, his family never mentioned drugs, but he said parents should talk about the drug situation.

"I think it is better to put the cards on the table. Parents should not be afraid to come right out and ask their kids if they are taking drugs."

He said this is one of the purposes of Parents Anonymous: to arm interested parents with sufficient knowledge about drugs that they can talk about them to their children with some intelligence.

"LSD is catching up to young people. Being an older generation we know about alcohol and fast driving, but perhaps parents, generally, haven't an awareness of the seriousness of this situation."

Another feature of Parents Anonymous was that it enabled parents whose child was taking drugs to talk to other parents in the same predicament. They could learn from one another.

"Above all, if any lesson is to be learned from the tragedy that took my son, I hope it is that people will realize LSD can kill."

He said anyone petitioning for any reduction in the legal penalties for possessing LSD "is not close to the situation."

He also gets irate with politicians who advocate the legalization of marijuana, or at best seem casual about such a thing happening.

"If it ever comes to the stage where we legalize marijuana, we are going to have a real sick society," he said.

To prevent this happening, Mr. Giroday and the other members of Parents Anonymous write letters to members of Parliament and encourage other parents to do so.

Mr. Giroday, driven by the memory of his dead son, feels society is drug-oriented, and the only way to fight the spread of the "disease" is for parents and interested individuals to unite and create a combat force.

He admits that he doesn't know all the answers, and that Parents Anonymous may not be the solution. But it was a start.

"If somebody comes along with a better idea, I will be the first to jump on the bandwagon," Mr. Giroday said. "But right now Parents Anonymous gets my vote."

Costumed Dance

Costumes were the name of the game at a costume ball held Saturday night at the Club Canara, sponsored by the Greek Ladies Auxiliary. This couple, garbed in Chinese costumes, groove to the music.

Greek Ladies' Auxiliary Sponsors Costume Party

A custom widely celebrated throughout Greece took place at Club Canara on Saturday evening when the Greek Ladies' Auxiliary of Belleville held a costume party for the Greek community and other interested Bellevillians.

The celebration known in Greece as apokries is the word for carnival, and customs for this event vary from one district to another, but all have the same purpose — to make all happy and enjoy themselves.

This was the first time the Greek community has held an apokries night in Belleville and approximately 70 persons were in attendance. A special guest for the event was Mrs. H. Fast of the newly formed International Club of Belleville.

Various prizes were awarded including one to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nicholas as the best dancers, and to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Zegouras for being the best dressed couple (wearing Chinese costumes).

The Greek Ladies' Auxiliary is an active group in the community and are now preparing for a bazaar which is to take place in the fall.

Phil Flagler Speaks at Bay of Quinte Chapter, National Secretaries Assoc. Meet

The Bay of Quinte Chapter of the National Secretaries Association held their February meeting at the Quinte Hotel, Belleville on Feb. 17.

Our guest speaker, introduced by Kathy Ellis, was Phil Flagler, farm director and salesman of CJBQ. Corresponding to our "Program of the Year - CNSA Calling" Mr. Flagler spoke on his over 25 years of experiences in radio broadcasting and then presented a film on the 50th anniversary of private broadcasting in radio. Some interesting facts were that radio began in 1919, and anyone who could play or sing was invited to perform. Microphones were disguised to overcome mic fright. Programs over the years such as Happy Gang, Tom McNeil and His Breakfast Club, Lone Ranger and Tonto, The Green Hornet, Benny Goodman and the Charles Lindberg Flight from New York to Paris non stop, brought back memories to some chapter members.

The first half of our "Program of the Year" was celebrated at Loyalist College on Feb. 2 where an exciting, informative and humorous evening was spent learning what goes on behind the scenes of a TV show. Loyalist College technicians allowed us to produce a program, where all members participated in directing, operating the sound and running cameras to put together two 10 minute programs of panelists discussing "The Future Secretary'.

Mrs. Marlene Phillips thanked Mr. Flagler for a most memorable presentation.

The vice - president Mrs. Phyllis Graham chaired the business session. Two guests were introduced, Mrs. Fran Moon of Brooke Bond, Belleville and Miss Brenda Karachun of Quaker Oats, Waffle Plant in Trenton.

Mrs. Marj Cross led in a quickie quiz of radio statistics. Mrs. Gabrielle Watkins announced Mrs. Lorraine Stanley would serve on the education committee. Two new applications for membership were received. Secretaries' workshop to be held on Sunday afternoon on April 19 was discussed. The nominating committee for 1970 will be Mrs. Mary Magee, chairman, with members Mrs. Marlene Phillips and Mrs. Kathy Ellis. It was announced the Kingstor Chapter was holding a fashion show on March 4. Congratulations to Mrs. Marg Kleinstuber who has applied for her CPS and has been approved. The ways and means committee will hold a flea market in late March. The meeting adjourned.

Used Greeting Cards Aid in Financing Mission Centre

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have a thank-you letter from Saw Lader, Director of Christian Audio Visual Centre, 82nd Street, Mandalay, Burma, for Christmas cards I sent them last Christmas. I obtained the address from your column.

Mr. Lader says they remodel the cards, and sell them to finance the radio and audio - visual work. Some beautiful ones are made up into calendars and many are sent to far - away Christian churches in remote parts of Burma, for sale at a very moderate price.

He also says: "We national Christians are now on our own, shouldering all responsibilities in mission work. It is made so much lighter and pleasanter with prayers and material help from our kind friends over the seas". — Kingston Reader.

Dear Reader: I know that Canadians will be glad to respond. The cards should be put in plastic bags and tied securely, and marked "Used Christmas Cards, No Value."

Dear Doris: It just made my blood boil when I read the letter from Just Pat in your column stating that said column is wasteful and uninteresting. She must be a very ignorant and selfish woman.

Doris, I hope the small minority of crank letters like the one from Just Pat will not discourage your continuing to help so very many people.

I could tell Just Pat there are already too many columns for recipes and poems.

I have a question: How do you keep your blood pressure from rising when you receive a letter like that?

Keep up the good work, Doris. You're tops in my book. — Indignant.

Dear Indignant: I like your attitude! But if I am in this business of helping people to understand other people, I'd take a dim view of me blowing my top. Wouldn't you, now?

Just the same, your kind of message is the kind that keeps me turning out the column.

Dear Doris: How can I trace someone in another province?

Is it possible for an individual to write to some finance companies in the province and will they send such information as an address to you? If this could be done it would be so much cheaper than getting someone to trace him. — A Reader.

Dear Reader: The Salvation Army has a missing persons bureau. In desertion and non-support cases the police or a child care agency may be able to help.

No reputable finance company would give out a client's address for this or any other purpose.

Ann Landers

Mother Opposes Ideas Of Catholic Church

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Mother in Massachusettes," who said she is ashamed of you for speaking out in behalf of the liberalization of our abortion laws. She called it an insult to 46 million Catholics in this country who believe abortion is murder.

ANN LANDERS

Make that figure 45,999,998, please. My husband and I are Catholics and we don't go along with her. The Church is changing and it's about time. My husband and I have four children and we want more. But we insist on the right to make that decision ourselves.

We love our church and find great strength and solace there but we refuse to blindly follow a dogma designed hundreds of years ago when population growth was necessary. The world needed people then, but in 1970 the central problem is the population explosion.

Many Catholic leaders who opposed birth control have changed their position. I predict the same for abortion. Massachusetts Mother does not speak for all Catholics. — ENLIGHTENED.

DEAR ENLIGHTENED: The figure is lower than 45,999,998 — and I have several thousand letters to prove it. One of the best letters came from Dr. Bernard J. Ransil, a Catholic scientist-physician who teaches at Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Ransil, in his book "Abortion," suggests that Church teaching is handicapped by its cloudy understanding of human reproduction. He argues that St. Thomas Aquinas proposed a concept of the beginning of the soul that would allow a more permissive view of abortion today. Some eminent Catholic theologians are in disagreement as to when life begins. Writing on the nature of the human soul, in Summa Contra Gentiles, Thomas teaches that a life principle is present during the early months of pregnancy. But it is not the human soul as understood in terms of theology. The latter is infused later, Thomas says, at a time when the fetus has developed to the point that it can support the activities of a human soul. This would mean some time after the sixth month.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Who decides when to eat, when to get up and when to go to bed? The guests or the hosts? My in-laws spent four days with us and before they left my husband told them that the next time they come they'll have to stay in a hotel.

This is what happened. They never got up before 10:30. We were up with our children at 7:30. This meant I had to fix a second breakfast at 11:00 a.m. Naturally they weren't ready for lunch at noon so I had to fix a second lunch at 3:00. This meant they couldn't eat dinner with us at 6:00, so I had to fix a second dinner at 8:00.

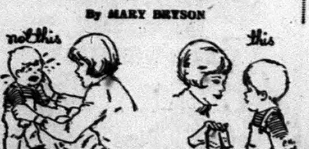
I was exhausted cooking six meals a day and doing dishes around the clock. This is why my husband told them that next time they'll have to stay in a hotel. Now they are mad. Was it worth a family breakup? — INDIANAPOLIS.

DEAR IN: No. Your mother-in-law could have fixed her own breakfast and lunch and you and your husband could fed the kids at 6:00 and waited until 8:00 and eaten with his parents.

Since they stayed only four days you could have been more gracious. After all, they are his parents and I wouldn't be surprised if they put themselves out for him on more than one occasion. Mend the quarrel and pass the peace pipe.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Child: "I don't want my face washed. It hurts.

Mother: "Stop making such a fuss about being cleaned up. If you didn't squirm so, I wouldn't have to wash so hard."

Mother: "Let's sing a song as we clean up for dinner. This is the way we wash our face, wash our face, wash our face - - - "

Child: "Now let's sing 'This is the way we dry our face'."

Put yourself in a 3-year-old's shoes, and you'll know how unpleasant it is to have your face scrubbed as you struggle to be free. A little ingenious distraction, however, can help you manoeuvre a child through the necessary routines of a day with a minimum of friction.

HARMONY STUDIO CLUB

The Harmony Studio Club held its monthly meeting on Saturday evening, at the home of Mrs. Emily Veley RMT.

Mrs. Veley opened the meeting and extended a special welcome to the new members. She made two announcements that concerned students from this club — the Rotary Music Festival to be held in Belleville this week, and the joint recital of the ORMTA to be held on March 7.

The program consisted of grade-work selections performed by the following students at the piano — Helen Keskula, Mary Bailey, Ann Keskula, Marie Deline, Beverly Lewis, Linda Noakes, Lynn Walton, Carolyn Lewis, Debra Grass, Lois Scott, Lynn Bailey and Sheryle Cretney. A vocal solo by Ann Keskula accompanied by Mrs. Veley at the piano concluded the program.

Refreshments were served.

Grandma's Madeira Cake Still One of Mary's Favorites

By MARY MOORE

When I was 11 years old my grandparents' shoe store was on my way home from school. If the store was not crowded I would drop in. Grandma would say "Madeira cake, Mary dear?" knowing perfectly well why I was standing there.

The memory of that first bite of cake still lingers with me. We never got a whiff of the Madeira it traditionally accompanies — nor did Grandmother I am quite sure. Yesterday I tried the nearly impossible — to reproduce it and I think I did.

For such a beauty it is surprisingly easy to make and since it requires only two eggs you could make one right now!

MARY'S MADEIRA CAKE

(2 eggs)

2 cups sifted cake flour — divided
¾ cup shortening (half butter and half shortening is better—room temperature)
2 large eggs
1 cup sugar
2 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. lemon extract (if artificial use 1 tsp.)
½ cup milk

Into beater bowl measure shortening (or shortening and butter) and 1 cup of the sifted cake flour. Beat until creamy. Then add eggs and sugar and beat until very light. Sift the remaining 1 cup sifted cake flour with the baking powder and salt and fold in, alternately, with the milk nad lemon extract until smoothly blended.

Turn into buttered pan. I used regulation size angel food pan because I wanted outside surfaces to be a little crusty like Grandma's Madeira Cakes were. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 35 min. but this cake may be baked in a buttered loaf pan, when it requires longer baking. Do not fret — it separates from sides of pan about 1-16th of an inch when it is done.

Bring this cake and yourself up to date by making it now.

NOTE: Recently a reader asked for a mock pound cake recipe. I think this may be close to what she is seeking.

QUINTE MEDICAL SECRETARIES

The Quinte Medical Secretaries held their monthly meeting in Education Hall on Wednesday, Feb. 11.

The members were well rewarded for braving the cold, snowy, night in having Miss Diana Savage, audiologist at O.S.D., speak to them.

One could not help but feel her great desire to help these handicapped children and her enthusiasm in the work as she related the procedure of testing for degree and type of deafness and then placing these children according to their academic and social requirements.

Young people looking for challenging and rewarding careers would do well to look into this possibility as there is need for specialized training in this field.

Miss Savage was thanked by Mrs. Beth Cunningham and a social cup of coffee followed.

ARMY, NAVY AND AIR FORCE LADIES AUXILIARY

The Army, Navy and Air Force Ladies' Auxiliary held their monthly meeting in the Tartan Lounge of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201.

The meeting was called to order by the newly elected president, K. Gurnoak with a good attendance. All committees reported. Mary Northey, 1st vice - president gave a long list of dates for banquets, and weddings, in the coming month. The president and three other delegates and two visitors attended a provincial quarterly meeting held in London in January.

As this is the year the convention will be held in Vancouver in September, plans have to be made early. The official delegate will be the president.

The evening draws were won by B. Grass and C. Hales. Lunch was served by M. Northey, D. Tapp and C. Noland.

Jumped For Life

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — "Get out of your car," patrolman Robert H. Auld Jr. shouted over a bullhorn after Edna R. Johnson's car stalled on the railroad tracks. Mrs. Johnson, 62, jumped out quickly and ran over to give the patrolman a big hug. For good reason. A Southern Pacific Co. commuter train had been approaching and smashed the car to pieces seconds after she jumped out.

ure Seeks to Restrict elf Governing Powers rights headed by former Ontario Chief Justice J. C. McRuer.

The McRuer report found that the Law Society of Upper Canada was one of 22 self-governing professional bodies in the province and had semi-judicial powers without appeal procedures for lawyers against disciplinary action and without public approval.

The new 'act provides for the inclusion of three government-appointed members on the society's advisory council and for provincial cabinet approval of many of the society's regulations.

The society remains free, however, to make rules without cabinet approval in such areas as bar admission procedures, legal education, granting of degrees and the rights and privileges of members.

The act raises the number of benchers—members who govern the society—to 40 from 30 and sets out procedures by which they may take disciplinary action against members.

Members would be given 15 days to appeal a disciplinary order to the Ontario Court of Appeal. At present, disciplined lawyers have no recourse to the courts.

Mr. Wishart also introduced an amendment to the Judicature Act to increase the number of High Court judges to 29 from 26.

This will be followed by other legislation to re-organize the jurisdictions of the three court levels—supreme, county and provincial.

In other business:

—Mines Minister Allan Lawrence introduced a bill to revise mine safety regulations through amendments to the Mining Act. The changes would include such features as ultra-sonic examination of shafts and equipment and fresh-air bases in deep mines for rescue purposes.

—Two Conservative backbenchers, Gordon Smith of Simcoe East and William Newman of Ontario South, followed the cabinet's lead in criticizing the federal white paper on tax reform. Both repeated arguments previously expressed by Premier Robarts and other ministers.

MPs Ask Overhaul Of Penal System

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition arties took advantage of a Commons debate on minor amendments to the Parole Act Friday to urge that the government undertake a major overaul of the penal system.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Cal-ary North) urged a fresh look t the treatment given those onvicted of drug offences.

Young people convicted of illegal drug use should be placed n "day-to-day parole" instead f receiving lengthy jail sent-nces, he said.

This would enable those con-icted to receive comprehensive ehabilitation treatment.

The legislation received sec-nd reading and was sent to ommittee for further study.

The Commons earlier gave hird reading to a Senate bill reventing the introduction to anada of infectious or conta-ious diseases. The measure ow needs only royal assent to ecome law.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc epin told the Commons domes-c copper prices will be in-reased by 3.5 per cent to 59 ents a pound—10 cents less han the U.S. price.

The move should have little or o effect on inflation in Canada, r. Pepin said.

During debate on amend-ents to the Parole Act, Jack igg (PC—Pembina), a lawyer d retired RCMP sergeant, id more trained magistrates d police officers are needed give more attention to reha-litating young people con-cted of criminal offences.

Social attitudes must be anged so prisoners are al-wed to communicate with her members of society.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancou-r East) said the penal system ould be revamped to give more emphasis to rehabilitation and less to punishment.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said the Commons justice committee should go out and talk to prisoners before approving the amendments to the act.

Canadian authorities have been overly-cautious in administering parole, he said.

Solicitor-General George McIlraith said MPs should remember that the amendments were "a housekeeping matter" and make no substantial changes in existing legislation.

Mr. Woolliams said the present laws often fail to reflect changing social conditions.

For example, about 60 per cent of those now in educational institutions had used drugs illegally at some time but only "a handful" was caught. Why should these few suffer while most offenders remain free, he asked.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said committees should be set up in prisons to put forth prisoners' views to administrators and the public.

Jail king

sher Hudson (PC—Victoria). is could be done by land as-mbly, providing serviced eas and then enticing the pri-te sector to build its facilities these areas.

Regina—A special govern-ent-appointed committee will set up to study the role of hall hospitals in Saskatche-an, Health Minister Gordon rant said. Only 28 of the prov-ce's 130 hospitals are profes-onally accredited and this is ust not good enough," he said.

Edmonton—There should be restraint on funds for hous-g, Municipal Affairs Minister C. Colborne said. He hit at e federal government's "pol-y of tight money and restraint hich resulted in a severe shor-ge of mortgage funds."

Victoria—A gloomy picture of ritish Columbia's economic fu-re was painted by George ussallem (SC—Dewdney) who arged that development is t in a "morass of logs and umps."

Mining Act to Be Revised

TORONTO (CP) — Mines Minister Allan Lawrence Friday introduced a "monumental revision" of the safety regulations in Ontario's mining industry.

He told the legislature the bill, an act to amend the Mining Act, is so complex it will be referred to a committee for detailed discussion by all interested parties.

The act is 235 pages long.

Mr. Lawrence said it was intended to revise mine safety regulations last year but industry unions were involved in strikes and contract negotiations and were not free to give it proper consideration.

Major changes in safety regulations proposed:

—Electro-magnetic testing of all hoisting ropes for their full length;

—Direct-fired heating of all underground workings;

—Ultra-sonic examination of shafts, brakes and other features of hoisting equipment and cranes;

—Prior notification of major electrical installations;

—Regulations for the use of guide and rubbing ropes used in shafts;

—New protections when cranes or power shovels operate near overhead power lines.

The bill also calls for fresh-air bases in deep mines for rescue purposes and specified personal protective equipment and clothing.

HASTINGS COUNTY EDUCATION WEEK COMMITTEE

To The CATHOLIC TAXPAYERS
Of
HASTINGS & PRINCE EDWARD COUNTIES

A serious breakdown has occurred in the relationship between the teachers and trustees of your School Board. The situation is so grave that the future of Catholic Education in the two Counties is seriously threatened.

A major difference of opinion regarding the 1969-70 proposed salary agreement led to 89% of the teachers submitting their resignations to their Provincial representatives last November.

This action resulted in a mediation meeting being held between teacher and board representatives on November 23. The meeting proved most cordial and amiable and resulted in an agreement to set up a teacher - trustee committee whose duty was, in part, to examine and bring forward recommendations to the Board on the definition of levels (the definition of levels, or salary classificaton of teachers, was the major point in the dispute).

On the strength of this agreement the teachers' resignations were not filed with the Board on the legal resignation date of November 30.

On December 17 the teacher - trustee committee came to unanimous agreement regarding the main definition of levels.

On February 3, the Board announced that 'it unanimously rejected the teacher-trustee committee's recommendations on definition of levels for the year 1969-70. It is to be noted that the Board members who voted in favor of these levels in the teacher - trustee committee voted against them at the full board meeting.

The teachers believe that the Board in refusing to accept the Committee's recommendations is in breach of the spirit of the agreement reached at the mediation meeting of November 23.

They wonder if the Board's seemingly co-operative attitude of November 23 meeting was not a device to delay the filing of resignations with the Board beyond the legal resignation date.

They are of the opinion that they would be unfit to teach their pupils the principles of honesty and fair play if they did not stand up for their own rights and expect the members of the Board to honor their obligations.

J. KUCHINAK,
President of Provincial Ontario
English Catholic Teachers' Association

THANK YOU . . .
FOR PAYING YOUR CARRIER PROMPTLY

Collections by your Intelligencer carrier are timed to provide you convenient service and best meet his school and study schedules. He may begin collections Thursday and complete his collection on Friday, so that he can pay for his papers on Saturday morning.

Your thoughtfulness in paying him the first time he calls to collect will encourage him in giving you prompt service. It will save him extra work for which he would receive no additional profit.

It will give him more time for school and other activities . . .

No Staff For Drug Education

TORONTO (CP) — The Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation hasn't enough staff to provide advice on drug problems to high schools, Education Minister William Davis said Friday.

Tim Reid (L—Scarborough East) told him "there is a crisis in drugs in the high schools of this province," and suggested that a recent information project with students from Richview collegiate in the borough of Etobicoke be repeated by schools across the province.

Eleven Richview students were selected by the school to get facts on drugs from the government-sponsored foundation. They then took their information back to the school—where half the 1,186 students are believed to have used drugs.

Eddie Sargent (L—Grey-Bruce) asked Mr. Davis whether he would close down a school with an epidemic of typhoid or smallpox, suggesting drug use is an equally-serious problem.

Davis told him closing a school is the responsibility of the local medical officer of health.

Will you ever make enough money to own your own home?

WILL the next five dollar raise put you in the home buying league? Or even the five dollar raise after that?

MAYBE you're in a dead end job?
Or a dying industry?

Maybe you should be looking for a way to break out.

THERE is a way out. Thousands of people have taken it. Most of them young people, in their twenties and thirties. Most of them ordinary people — high school graduates

ALL of them became junior computer programmers. And all of these people learned to become junior computer programmers at the same school - Electronic Computer Programming Institute ECPI.

ECPI is a major educational institution with over 100 branches.

NO, you don't have to be good in math to be a computer programmer.

AND no, it doesn't matter if you remember your high school algebra or not.

COMPUTER Programming is a brand new ball game. You start from scratch. And at ECPI you start right in, with practical work, on real computers.

YOUR next step is to send away for our free aptitude test. It'll give you some idea if you can make it in computer programming. (Most of the people we turn into programmers never thought they had the brains for it.) Correspondence courses also available.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Handshake Seldom Spreads Germs

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is so scared of germs he won't shake hands with people. He says you don't know where people's hands have been, what they have been doing, or when they have been washed last with soap and water. Isn't this carrying it too far? — Mrs. B.

Comment: In a nation where the custom is to greet friends and strangers with the hearty handshake, it will be difficult indeed to pass any resolution to prohibit handshaking. That's the American way, and I have nothing to say against this friendly custom.

Your husband is riding to the opposite end of the pendulum-swing — not wanting to shake hands at all. I've known people who were afraid to touch doorknobs for the same reason — fear of germs. This can become an unnatural anxiety.

However, there is a midpoint in the pendulum-swing that makes good sense: making a habit of keeping one's hands clean. Often mothers are careless with their youngsters. They will let them sit down to eat without having washed their hands with soap and water. Neither do they teach them to keep hands clean after going to the bathroom.

In many cases, I believe this disregard for ordinary cleanliness has caused infestation — and relapses — due to pin worms. Pinworm eggs reach the intestinal tract of the youngster by way of hand - to - mouth route.

Your husband has some basis for anxiety, Mrs. B., in that we don't know "where people's hands have been." For example, they may have unconsciously been "fiddling with their nose." We know that the nose is often a warm nest for the staphylococcus germ. It's possible that staph might go from hand to hand, contaminate one's food and cause intestinal upsets.

I admit these possibilities. But better tell your husband that we shouldn't live in unnecessary anxiety. Being afraid to indulge in the familiar handshake is going too far against the law of probability.

All that your husband should do to protect himself is wash his hands well with soap and water before eating. The handshake is a necessary and reassuring way of life. Using ordinary precautions, it shouldn't be thought of as a germ carrier. Your husband must be aware there are more germs in the air he breathes than on the hand he shakes.

For Mr. F.: "Itis" means inflammation. Hepatitis is inflammation of the cells of the liver. The usual cause is a virus. There are two classifications: infectious hepatitis and serum hepatitis. Jaundice may or may not be present in either case.

In the infectious type it may take three to five weeks before hepatitis breaks out. This is the incubation period — when the virus is massing for attack. This type of infection may be due to crowded conditions and spread throughout a community. The cause may be person-to-person contact, or drinking contaminated milk, water or food.

But serum hepatitis is spread in another way: by contaminated needles or other hospital apparatus. Sometimes by blood transfusion. It has a much longer incubation period: about two to four months.

Main treatment is bedrest for weeks and special medicines and diet prescribed by the doctor. Blood tests for liver function tell us how the disease is progressing. How or why did you come down with it, Mr. F.? Sometimes we never actualy know.

For Mrs. Y.: You are correct. Ozone is a form of oxygen. But the molecule contains three rather than two atoms.

NEW POWER UNIT

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Construction is going ahead here to add a 100,000-kilowatt thermal generating unit to the Nova Scotia Light and Power Co. Ltd. plant at Tufts Cove. It will double the plant's output. The project, to cost $17,300,000, is to be finished in 1972.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For March 1

Your birthday today: Everything depends now on your will to change and grow. Even rather routine decisions turn out to have more effect than expected. It is a year of action within a relatively narrow range of choice, not so much a matter of what you do but more of how you do it and for what reasons.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your tolerance of others is tested this Sunday. When you remain serene and reach out to cheer your loved ones, you build a better life for all.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Plans for the day are upset as older people change their minds and younger ones work on your sympathies. Just keep yourself comfortable. Let matters straighten themselves out rather than forcing issues.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Somebody's moods spoil the fun today. Your efforts to brighten things up and keep plans intact may tip the balance. Make an early evening of it.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You must pursue arrangements youself if you really want anything done today. Others tend to leave out essential details, or forget their appointments. The simplest course of action is the best.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): The temptation this Sunday is to take on more than your share of the leadership — this makes everything that happens later your fault.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): It is better to discuss issues in detail with one or two, logically, than to say half a dozen words to a hundred.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your patience with family and associates is greatly appreciated. A stay-at-home Sunday is most likely to work out, but even that may be hindered by neighbors' doings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Children and education come to your attention. You may find later that any promises you make this afternoon and evening cannot be kept.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You can make yourself look snobbish today with almost no effort. There's likewise no point in argument with older people. Keep things simple, even if it means going it alone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your calm refusal to respond to bickering saves much of this Sunday. Social appointments fail, but impromptu arrangements turn out well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Make your full share of the community expression of faith, then work out the fine points of your connections with groups, organizations. Stick to the issues rather than personalities.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Keep your plans to yourself. Home questions you had thought answered and finished pop up again.

For March 2

Your birthday today: Your effort this year is generally uphill; put the results of your work into new tools, self - improvement programs, and the like. Personal energy leads to eight very active months plus a four month period of consolidation. Creative expression is featured strongly; the problem is farm out parts of the work for others to do.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): What seems to be coincidence promises some adventurous incident and the acquisition of something valuable. Make full use of fleeting opportunity.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Partners and associates carry a little more than their share of joint ventures today.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Everything you do now shows your better qualities. Get an early start and pursue work vigorously.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Show the world and yourself how much and how well you can do today. Improve your surroundings, capitalize on your previous achievements. Sentimental interests beckon this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Begin the day and the week with the biggest, hardest task you have since the time is right to clear the decks for action.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Check new contacts, new projects, get something started. Your energy should be enough to also cover a home-improvement project as well. Family and relatives co-operate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your estimate of the situation is possibly too logical now; pay attention to your own and others intuitions. Organizing, building activities thrive. Travel to quiet places produces good results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Press your regular routines systematically; leave time and space where you can for any new contacts or undeveloped projects. Offer help and expect it from other people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Enjoy the bustle and chance to get things done — but don't take the work home for the evening. That is priceless time for self-expression, so dress up and enjoy yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Get through the work day with a normal amount of effort, but focus your main energy on social contacts, relationship. Choose vigorous, cheerful companions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Confidential matters, dealings with institutions thrive well. Establish precedents, settle your long-range plans, get records verified. Be sociable this evening; avoid serious discussions.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): What you buy now promises to be with you for a long time to come; select carefully.

Before you say you're for or against Mr. Benson's White Paper, read these facts.

If the Government White Paper on tax reform becomes law, you will pay as much as 60% more income tax than you would in the United States. In certain circumstances the capital gains tax will be double the rate in the United States. You'll find it extremely difficult to start your own business, retire outside Canada, or build up a large amount of capital.

These are some of the consequences of the White Paper. Are you happy with them? If not, read the facts in this article and make your views known to your Member of Parliament:

The Government White Paper on taxation is an ominous document. As it moves rapidly towards legislation, only public protest and outcry from concerned Canadians can stop it.

This article is presented by such a group of concerned Canadians. They come from many walks of life. They are opposed, not so much from personal points of view (many of them would pay less tax under the White Paper), but because of what it holds for Canada and all Canadians.

No Canadian can quarrel with the White Paper's efforts to lower the tax burden for people at the low end of the income scale—or with a tax at a reduced rate on realized capital gains—or with enforcing laws to eliminate tax avoidance schemes and expense account abuses.

But the White Paper goes far beyond these sensible limits. It is a complete tax reform that promises to kill incentives to work and save, increase the brain drain to the more attractive tax climate in the United States, lead to the withdrawal of capital from Canada and slow down the development of our natural resources.

Every Canadian will find that the White Paper has something to say to him personally:

Do you earn less than $9,000 a year?

If you are a married taxpayer whose wife does not work and if you earn and continue to earn in the future $9,000 a year or less, the White Paper will bring you long-overdue tax relief. For example, if you are married with two children your tax will drop by $96 if your income is $6,000 or by as much as $127 if you earn $4,000. This assumes that you do not realize taxable gains on the sale of your house or assets.
HOWEVER, if you are single, or if your wife earns more than $1,500 your tax will be increased if your income is $4,000 or more. If your wife earns $4,000 or more, her tax will be increased too.

Do you earn more than $9,000 a year?

Your taxes will go up, and you will also pay tax on capital gains on the sale of your house and other assets.

Will you be able to resist the attractive tax climate in the United States?

Mr. Benson says, "Canada needs the full effort of those with outstanding ability", yet his White Paper seems to offer more incentive for emigration than effort.

The table as shown in the next column is a comparison of Canadian Federal and Provincial tax payable by a resident of Ontario with the taxes payable by the average U.S. homeowner with the same income. No province imposes a lower tax than Ontario. The comparison includes New York State income tax (the highest in U.S.) and the State of Ohio (one of the lowest).

These figures have been prepared by an international firm of Chartered Accountants, on the basis of the recently enacted changes in U.S. tax law.

Married Home Owner with Two Dependent Children

Gross Income	Ontario Resident Taxes	State of Ohio Resident		State of New York Resident
		Tax	% lower than Cdn. Tax	Tax	% lower than Cdn. Tax
$ 8,000	$ 1,044	$ 416	60%	$ 473	55%
10,000	1.658	690	58%	800	52%
12,000	2,327	1,007	57%	1,181	49%
15,000	3,370	1.486	56%	1,772	47%
20,000	5,262	2,480	53%	3.002	43%
25,000	7,434	3,488	53%	4.274	43%
40,000	14,711	8,039	45%	9,819	33%
50,000	19,631	11,636	41%	13,948	29%

If you move to the United States, your income tax will be lower by as much as 60%. This favourable tax position has been achieved in the United States in spite of the incredibly expensive war in Vietnam and sending men to the moon.

The brain drain has long been a problem in Canada. The White Paper promises to make it a bigger problem. Our tax system must be competitive—particularly with the United States—if we are to keep our talented people at home.

What will you be worth on "V" Day?

The White Paper proposes a capital gains tax. This means that money you receive from all sources inside and outside of Canada will be included in your income and taxable at your full personal or corporate rate. A deduction will be available for capital losses but not in all circumstances.

On "V" Day—Valuation Day—you will be expected to calculate the current market value of all your assets worth more than $500. This includes cars, houses, stocks, cottages, boats, antiques, paintings, stamp collections and so on. The market value on Valuation Day will be the basis for all future capital gain taxes.

Do you have a boat, cottage, antique chair or house that you might sell someday?

All profit that you make from Valuation Day to the date of sale must be added to your income and is taxable.

Example: Assume you have a house that is worth $20,000 on Valuation Day. Two years later you sell it for $30.000. After deducting the $1,000 a year allowed for appreciation and $150.00 a year for improvements, you are left with a capital gain of $7,700 which is taxable. These deductions can easily be eaten up by inflation. If you're in a 40% tax bracket, you'll pay $3,080 in tax; if you're in a 50% tax bracket, you'll pay $3,800 in tax.

However, if you should sell it for less than $20,000 your loss is not deductible from income.

Are you trying to build your savings by investing in the stock market?

Your profits after Valuation Day will be taxable. In fact, even if you buy shares in widely held Canadian companies and don't sell them, you'll still pay tax. Mr. Benson's White Paper proposes to tax by revaluing shares every five years. So if your investments double in five years you'll pay tax on that profit—even if you haven't sold them.

Do you think about leaving Canada for business, health or retirement reasons?

Mr. Benson doesn't want you to leave Canada. So he has introduced a "departure tax". This means that if you leave Canada, all your assets (house, car, investments etc.) are treated as if you had sold them to make money. You pay a tax at full rates on the increase in value over Valuation Day.

Do you dream of going into business for yourself someday?

Canada has always prided itself on being a land of opportunity for men with ideas and enthusiasm. These men have usually started small businesses, and with the help of tax incentives, they have blossomed into many of our large companies. They have contributed a great deal to this country's prosperity.

The White Paper will change all that.

The White Paper will make it difficult for the small businessman to survive, and doubly difficult for him to expand and grow. It may well discourage many bright young people with ideas from setting out on their own. Or drive them out of the country.

Example: Right now the small businessman in Canada is entitled to a low tax rate of 21% to 23% (depending on the Province) on his first $35,000 of taxable income. This gives him the all-important cash to put back into his business. This cash is what keeps him afloat, and later helps him to grow. Under the White Paper the company will pay a flat 50% on all taxable income or it will be taxed personally in his hands. He will have to put out additional thousands of dollars in cash for taxes, money he sorely needs just to survive in the early years.

If you're a student in law or medicine, will you ever be able to set up your own practice?

The first two years are the toughest for any professional man on his own. The experts say you should be able to carry yourself for at least one year without cash income from your practice.

That's why, under the present tax system, you pay tax on a cash basis—on what money comes in. Under the White Paper, you will pay on an accrual basis—on accounts receivable, and time billed, and work in process not yet billed.

It makes little difference to the Government in amount of money collected over a period of years. But it poses a huge hurdle for the young doctor, lawyer, dentist, accountant, engineer or veterinarian starting out on his own.

Example:

A young lawyer, married, no children, bills his clients for $25,000 and has $10,000 work in process. He has office expenses of $9,000 and collects cash of $15,000.

Present system:

Cash available	$6,000
Tax payable	817
Balance left for food, shelter etc.	$5,183

White Paper system:

Cash available	$6,000
Tax payable	8,758
Borrowings to pay tax before any money available for food, shelter etc.	Minus $2,758

What Canada might be like after a few years of White Paper taxation?

- There will be a slow but sure decline in the number of small businesses.
- There will be a sharp drop in risk-taking by Canadians.
- The brain drain of talented young Canadians to other countries will grow. They will move to countries like the United States that offer greater incentives for hard work and bright ideas.
- Foreign investment in Canada will slow down because of the unfriendly tax climate.
- Capital will be withdrawn from Canada as people with modest wealth leave this country to retire elsewhere because of our Estate Tax and Capital Gains Tax Systems.
- The cost of money will rise as capital is removed from Canada and the remaining capital is diverted from debt to equity situations.
- The new tax system will prevent the build-up of private capital in the hands of individuals. Ultimately all economic power and capital will be transferred to an all-powerful Government.

What are you going to do?

Here are some ideas.

1. The best — write a letter to your Member of Parliament, (if you do not know his name use the box # and put your address on the outside of your stamped envelope). Your letter does not need to be long or technical.

or

2. If you are basically opposed to the White Paper, fill in a coupon below. Put it in a envelope and mail to Box 4430, Ottawa. If you put your name and address on the envelope, it will go directly and unopened to your MP.

plus

3. Encourage your friends to write to their Members of Parliament and to send in coupons.
